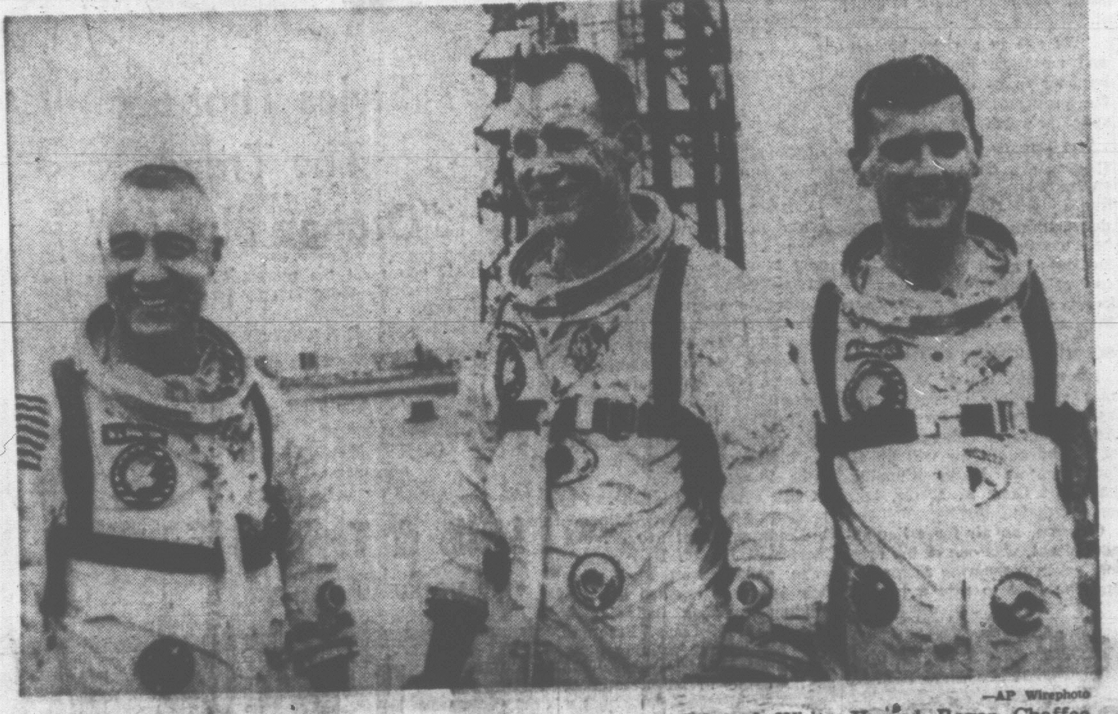
This is "open house" weekend at the University of Victoria, with its steadily expanding campus.

Marking the occasion, Times' photographer Bill Halkett has taken a look at some of the different styles of architecture in the conglomeration of buildings housing the various university functions. For the results turn to Page 9.

DEATH OF THE ASTRONAUTS

'Fire in the Spacecraft' Desperate Cry, Then Silence



—AP Wirephoto

Top Trio Lost By U.S.

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — One of the three Apollo astronauts cried, "fire in the spacecraft," a split second before all three were to die in their spaceship, the head of an investigating team said today.

The victims were Virgil I. (Gus) Grissom, 40, Edward H. White, 36, and Roger B. Chaffee, 31.

Maj.-Gen. Samuel Phillips, Apollo program director, said it was not known whose voice crackled over the radio-monitoring system as a searing flash fire snuffed out the three lives.

It was the first time in the U.S. space program that the chilling cry had been heard, for it was the first blaze ever to erupt inside a capsule.

Earlier, it had been reported that no word came from the spacecraft and the astronauts apparently died in the first quick flash of the fire.

COUNTDOWN ON HOLD

The tragedy struck as the countdown on a simulated flight was being held at T-minus 10 minutes because of difficulty in the quality of communications between the spacecraft and the checkout building, Phillips said.

Phillips, head of a preliminary investigating team which began seeking the cause of the blaze that turned the space ship into a death trap, that until a board has made its findings, he could not speculate on plans for future Apollo flights.

One and one-half miles from Pad 34, site of the tragedy, the bodies of the astronauts lay in an infirmary.

They were practising for a two-week space mission, the first of the Apollo flights which will culminate in the lunar landing, when the hot blaze snuffed out their lives in an instant.

CALLS FOR HARD LOOK

Space officials said they would push on with the program, but the tragedy which capped a long series of troubles with the Apollo spacecraft will call for a soul-searching look before other lives are risked.

Apollo, first scheduled to blast off before the end of last year, has been plagued by malfunctions.

During the final checkout and testing of Apollo I, many changes and modifications were made.

Two of the victims were space veterans, the other a rookie.

Grissom flew in Mercury and Gemini programs, helping blaze the first American trails in space. White was the first U.S. astronaut to leave his ship and become a human satellite. Chaffee was training for his first lanch.

All three were married and each has two children.

Twenty - seven launch pad crew members were overcome by smoke in brave but futile efforts to get through to the astronauts. Two were taken to hospital.

Moon Further Away As Apollo Reviewed

HOUSTON (AP) — The U.S. moon program has suffered heavily, not only by the personal tragedy of losing three astronauts, but also by stalling perhaps for months the effort to land men on the moon by 1970.

However, officials say it is too early to tell whether the U.S. goal of trying a moon trip by the end of the decade is in jeopardy after Friday's disaster.

Several major factors are involved in determining how long the National Aeronautics and Space Administration now must wait before launching its first manned Apollo flight, a mission of up to two weeks.

First, an investigating board must determine exactly what caused the fire, whether it was something only peculiar to this one spaceship, or whether it was a problem that might force a re-designing of the Apollo vehicle's systems.

Then, there is the matter of equipment — whether the spaceship involved in the fire must be completely discarded and a new one used in its place.

NASA has other spaceships. The delays would result, though, from weeks of testing required before a vehicle is taken to a launch pad—tests the final ship already had completed.

'TRAGEDY' SAY RUSS WORKERS

Times News Services

Europe and Asia joined the United States today in mourning the loss of America's three Apollo astronauts.

In Moscow, the only official reaction was a terse, four-line dispatch about the tragedy by the Tass news agency.

Russian office workers, hurrying to their jobs, however, were shocked and dismayed upon hearing the news.

"It is a tragedy," said one. Let's hope it's the last tragedy in space exploration."

Despite unconfirmed reports in the West, the Russians have always denied any fatal space accidents of their own.

Here is what prominent leaders said:

President Johnson: "Three valiant young men have given their lives in the nation's service. We mourn this great loss and our hearts go out to their families."

Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey, chairman of the national aeronautics and space council: "The United States will push ever forward in space and the memory of these men will be an inspiration to all future spacefarers. . . ."

Paul T. Hellyer, Canadian defence minister: "We are shocked and saddened by this tragic loss of the young men who have contributed so much to space exploration and the advancement of man's knowledge of his universe. The sympathy of the Canadian people goes to the families, friends and colleagues of these fine astronauts."

China-Soviet Tiff Fanned in Moscow

MOSCOW (AP)—The Chinese embassy called an unprecedented press conference today and released a message from Premier Chou En-lai and Foreign Minister Chen Yi accusing Soviet police of "bloody repression" against Chinese students in a Red Square scuffle Wednesday.

Later, the Soviet foreign ministry called a rival press conference and charged the Red Square incident was a planned provocation "unprecedented in Soviet-Chinese relations."

A Chinese spokesman said the skirmish, in which the Chinese claim 30 students were injured—10 of them with bloody faces—was "one more example of the criminal collusion between the Soviet revisionist ruling clique and the U.S. leaders.

The Chinese claimed 69 students on their way home from studies in Western Europe were attacked by police when they placed a wreath at the Lenin Mausoleum in Red Square.

The Soviet Union claims the Chinese students molested Russians in Red Square, disrupted procedures for visiting the mausoleum, and that enraged Russians pushed them away.

Sixty of the students, many of them with faces smeared with iodine and bearing plaster patches, left by train for Peking Thursday. Several others were said to have been too badly injured to travel.

In their press conference, the Soviet said Mao Tsyun, a first secretary of the Chinese embassy, directed the incident in Red Square.

Tass reported Boris Pyadyshev, deputy head of the press department of the foreign ministry, told correspondents the incident was "nothing but an undisguised prococation, planned in advance."

The aim, he said, was to damage Soviet-Chinese relations and the friendship between the two peoples. Another aim was to make the Chinese students returning home from Western countries join in the current internal struggle in China on the side of Mao Tse-tung, Chinese Communist party chairman.

Troops Blast Soviet

PEKING (Reuters) — Armed Chinese troops took part in a demonstration against the Soviet embassy for the first time ever today.

Soldiers and airmen in uniform with rifles and fixed bayonets drove to the area of the embassy on the third day of a massive demonstration against alleged Soviet atrocities on Chinese students in Moscow.

The troops shouted slogans attacking Soviet leaders and waved their weapons in the air.

Eastern European sources said that Friday night demonstrators stopped the car of Hungarian Ambassador Jozef Hálasz as he drove to the Soviet Embassy.

The sources said the demonstrators tore the Hungarian flag from his car and broke a window.

BOOS, CATCALLS DROWN WORDS

Minister Faces Angry Students

By DESMOND BILL

An angry but orderly rally of about 1,500 students hooted, booed, hissed and catcalled Education Minister Leslie Peterson outside the legislature Friday.

They had marched in the heavy rain through downtown Victoria to protest the refusal of the government to spend more money on higher education.

The students roared applause for Opposition Leader Robert Strachan when he said he supported equalization grants for out-of-town students and the setting up of an independent grants commission to finance universities.

They threw flowers at Mrs. E. E. Dailly (Burnaby North), the New Democratic spokeswoman on educational affairs, when she promised them her support.

And they long and loudly cheered Liberal Leader Ray Perrault when he blasted the government for ducking responsibility for education and promised to carry the students' demands into the House.

But the mood changed completely when Education Minister Peterson appeared on the steps. He had kept the students waiting 10 minutes in the rain before he came out.

They whiled away the time singing a satirical song. "In Bennett's Hands" to the tune of "Blowin' in the Wind". Each verse outlined their complaints and ended with the chorus:

"The answer, my friends, is in Bennett's hands,
"The answer is in Bennett's hands."

Mr. Peterson started by saying to the massed students, who filled all the steps in front of the legislature and spilled over on the lawns:

"It is not often I have the chance to deal with such a large group of political scientists."

His sarcastic opening made the students groan.

Then he continued:

"I do not support this type of demonstration." There were loud boos and he waited for them to stop before continuing.

"We have the right of free speech in this country. I am

AFTERMATH OF SNOWSTORM

Looting in Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — Looters roamed Chicago's streets today and all police leaves were cancelled as Illinois, Indiana and Michigan struggled free of snow.

The storm left at least 37 dead in Illinois—28 in Chicago—as well as 10 in Michigan, five in Wisconsin and three in Indiana.

The weather bureau said the storm — "one of the biggest snowstorms of the century" dumped 23 inches on Chicago in 29 hours and surpassed the 19.2-inch record for a single storm set March 25-26, 1930.

Civic leaders estimated the storm would cost the city $35,000,000 in lost business.

Temperatures tumbled toward zero in Chicago as police chased looters from the streets.

A 10-year-old girl was shot to death during an exchange of gunfire between police and about 50 looters.

Virtually every city and suburban school closed, as did courts, financial exchanges and most businesses. Officials said O'Hare International Airport, closed for an unprecedented 36 hours, probably wouldn't reopen until 5 p.m. today.

Trains ran as much as 16 hours behind schedule.

MARITIMES AWAITS LASH FROM WINTER

TORONTO (CP) — Quebec and the Maritimes braced today for a vicious winter storm which dumped 11 inches of snow, rain, sleet and hail on dozens of southern Ontario communities Friday.

Many Toronto motorists abandoned their cars as they stalled after slashing through the huge puddles which covered the streets.

In other areas, drifting snow was a bigger problem.

BATTLE CREEK, Mich.—A young marine on leave and headed for Vietnam was snowbound at a state police outpost today just a few miles from his wife while his four-day pass slowly ran out.

Lt. James Rohrback, 23, was headed to see his wife, Vickie, 20, a nurse in training at Bronson Hospital in Kalamazoo. Huge drifts stopped his progress on Interstate '94 and he was taken to the Battle Creek state police post.

He left Camp Pendleton, Calif., Thursday night and must be in Camp LeJeune, N.C., Monday night. From there he goes to Vietnam.

CAIRO — Egypt's 2,000 belly dancers today waited for Mustapha Darweesh to make up his mind about their navel manoeuvres.

Darweesh, Egypt's new chief censor charged with deciding if the girls can again strip down to the traditional scanty costume banned six years ago, has been spending his days watching up to six moving pictures of belly dancers doing their bumps and grinds.

But Friday night he went to a nightclub to see it in person as sort of a royal commission investigation.

MOSCOW — Drunkenness, low morals and vicious fights have become a way of life at Moscow Training Institute and have driven one girl student to suicide, according to a Soviet newspaper.

The regional Moscow newspaper Leninskoye Znamya said modeling student Tamara Zyuzzzina jumped to her death from a fifth floor dormitory window Jan. 3, because of "an assault on her virtue" by a male student.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. — The Young Republican Club of New Jersey voted itself out of existence Friday night. It had been censored by senior party members for singing anti-Semitic and anti-Negro songs at a recent state convention.

Conover Spencer, executive director of the Republican state committee, said the dissolution of the Young Republicans was a "move aimed specially and exclusively to get rid of the rat finks."

He added, "This is the first time in the nation that this has happened. Usually these movements wither away. This one had to be put out of business."

Ice Floe Break Greatest Fear

BRECHIN, Ont. (CP) — Protected from the elements and plentifully supplied with food, the greatest fear for 11 men rescued Friday from a five-mile-long ice floe adrift in Lake Simcoe was that the ice would disintegrate under them.

Police spokesmen said the men were in little danger of exposure while waiting to be rescued from their fishing huts. The men said they had food and fuel that could have lasted a week.

Pilots Clifford Lewis, 46, and Paul Foster, both of Orillia, 15 miles northwest of here, said the ice was crumbling by the time the airlift of the men was completed.

The two pilots were successful in landing their planes on the ice several hours after RCAF search and rescue helicopters were grounded at Trenton air force base.

ICING BAD

"It was the worst icing conditions I have ever flown in," said Lewis, a former RCAF pilot and 10-year veteran with Orillia Air Services Ltd., who flew his two-seater plane over the windswept lake to rescue the first of the men.

In all, the pilots made seven landings during the rescue.

Foster was forced to return to Orillia after the first flight with his three-seater for de-icing.

Charles Shier, 45, of Brechin, one of the men caught on the flow, said he had plenty of supplies with him but was concerned about the thickness of the ice. He said it was between five and eight inches thick but should have been about two feet thick for this time of year.

Rescue operations with the two aircraft lasted for almost three hours before all of the men were brought ashore about 5 p.m.

Police said they had several spotters around the lake with binoculars to keep the men in sight through the swirling snow.

Winds reached 45 miles an hour. A spokesman said that at one point, there was a danger of the floe colliding with an island and breaking up.

A truck, several motorized toboggans and all of the huts had to be abandoned on the flow.

Quit Malta British Told

LONDON (AP)—A delegation of British MPs flew to Malta for urgent talks today, hours after Britain had been ordered to quit the Mediterranean island.

The delegation from the House of Commons will investigate the effects on the island's economy of projected cuts in British forces stationed there.

Malta's premier, Dr. Borg Olivier, issued his ouster ultimatum Friday night. He contended Britain will be breaking its defence pact with the tiny island when it reduces the Malta garrison.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Arctic air continues to retreat northward through the interior of B.C. as mild moist Pacific air spreads across southern sections of the province. Overnight low temperatures of 45 at Vancouver and Nanaimo gave the mildest night since mid December. A disturbance moving northeastward toward Vancouver Island will give rain to coastal B.C. on Sunday.

...'FIRE IN THE SPACECRAFT'

than seven hours after the fire broke out, were the bodies removed from the smouldering spaceship.

"They didn't have a chance," said a space agency spokesman. "It was instantaneous."

Some day, every spaceman knew in his heart, it was bound to happen. It was too much to hope that the perilous route to the moon could be travelled without loss of life.

But when it came, they thought, it would be in the far reaches of space, not this way.

The emergency escape system was closed to them, because the entire craft was locked in a protective gantry.

Fire hot enough to ignite metal seared and blackened the spaceship. Bodies of the astronauts were badly charred.

Until this sudden disaster, so far unexplained, Americans had come through many daring space rides without a mishap. Three other astronauts had died, but in plane crashes. The deaths leave the American space program with 47 astronauts.

Johnson and officials of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said the moon program would push forward with renewed dedication and purpose — as the three men would have wanted it.

"If we die," Grissom once said, "we want people to accept it."

"We are in a risky business, and we hope that if anything happens to us it will not delay the program. The conquest of space is worth the risk of life."

The astronauts were in their space suits, in a pure oxygen environment, when the blaze flared up. During the countdown, minor troubles had been reported with the communications and environmental control system, but it was not known whether the fire resulted from this.

SCHIRRA TAKES OVER

Navy Capt. Walter M. Schirra now steps into Grissom's role as command pilot for the first Apollo mission. Other members of the backup crew will be air force majors Walter Cunningham and Donn F. Eisele, both space rookies.

Grissom, an air force lieutenant-colonel, was one of the original seven pioneering astronauts and the first to ride a blazing rocket twice into the skies.

After his first flight, a suborbital hop in a Mercury spacecraft, Grissom wound up swimming for his life when the ship sank in the Atlantic.

With Commander John W. Young, he flew the first three-orbit mission in Gemini 3 and became the first American to manoeuvre a spacecraft in flight.

White, also an air force lieutenant-colonel, was the first American to walk in space, orbiting outside the Gemini 4 spacecraft for 21 minutes.

Chaffee joined the space program in 1963 with the third group of astronauts after logging more than 1,800 hours in jet aircraft. He was a navy lieutenant-commander.

The president and five astronauts — Gordon Cooper, Scott Carpenter, Neil Armstrong, Richard Gordon and James Lovell were at the White House in the hour of tragedy. They were celebrating the signing of the treaty on peaceful uses of outer space.

Other astronauts killed—all in the line of duty—were Theodore C. Freeman, Elliot See Jr. and Charles A. Bassett II.

See and Bassett died when their jet plane crashed into the building housing their space capsule at St. Louis. Freeman was on a routine training flight when a goose hit his windshield as he came in for a landing.

HOUSTON LOWERS FLAG TO SALUTE DEAD TRIO

HOUSTON (UPI) — Mayor Louie Welch today proclaimed a state of official mourning in this city of 1.5 million persons because of the deaths of astronauts Virgil Grissom, Edward White and Roger Chaffee.

Welch said the city would observe a period "until after last rites as a time of mourning."

He ordered all flags lowered to half-staff throughout the city. The sprawling manned spacecraft centre is located on the outskirts of the Houston metropolitan area.

Education Department Refuses To Set Aims of School System

The department of education has deliberately not laid down the aims of the public school system in the province.

This was revealed Friday night by A. J. Longmore, assistant superintendent of schools for Greater Victoria.

He made the statement under questioning by Canon Hilary Butler at the opening session of the Community Conference on Education at the Oak Bay Beach Hotel.

Mr. Longmore was sitting in on one group that was discussing the aims of education. Canon Butler, canon-lecturer at Christ Church Cathedral, asked him, "What is the stated aim of the public school system?"

Replied Mr. Longmore: "There is no stated, documented aim laid down by the department."

Canon Butler pointed out that the Chant Royal Commission had recommended that the primary aim of education should be "the development of the intellect.'

True, said Mr. Longmore, but this aim has never been accepted and endorsed by the department.

"Courses set out specific aims but there are no general aims," Mr. Longmore said.

Mr. Longmore said some general aims were stated up until 1960 when they were deliberately dropped because the Chant report criticized them as being too generalized.

The group also discussed the question of whether the public schools tried to teach "values" to students and, if so, how they were inculcated.

Alan Batey, principal of the Institute of Adult Studies, said values are taught, often unconsciously, in every course of study. He said a student taking a course in auto mechanics could often absorb a sense of values, even unknowingly.

But his statement was questioned by Gordon Price, a student at Victoria Senior Secondary School, who said, "There is a credibility gap in what I hear.

"When I sit in class I see no direct teaching of values. If they are taught, I've never been aware of them until now," he said.

Mr. Price said students he knows criticize education on the grounds that teaching of the sciences is too specific and teaching of the humanities is too generalized.

"Maths are taught in unnecessary depth. But literature is taught in survey courses that don't explore anything in depth.'

The conference continues today. Delegates are representative of various community groups and were described at the opening session Friday by Ray Wunderlich, co-chairman of the conference, as the "decision-makers and opinion-molders in the community."

Canadian Nazi Party Adopts New Name

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Nazi party went out of existence Firday night and in its place rose the Canadian National Socialist party.

William John Beattie of Toronto remains leader of the newly-named organization. He said Friday night he decided to change the name of the party because the word Nazi is a slur.

He said in an interview his decision was influenced by Martin Wieche of London, Ont., national chairman of the National Socialists, who convinced Beattie that the word Nazi is "a propagandist slur."

Beattie also said he intends to talk with Prime Minister Pearson about the refusal of the Royal Bank of Canada to allow him to open an account in the name of the party.

THEY LOVED SPACE JOB

HOUSTON (AP) — They knew each other as Gus, Ed and Roger. And they shared one real love that bound them together as a team — they lived to fly.

For Lt.-Col. Virgil I. (Gus) Grissom, the first Apollo mission would have been his third trip into space, a distinction no man today can claim.

For Lt.-Col. Edward H. White II, it was a flight that commanded his eagerness as much as his first when he slipped outside Gemini 4 for a breathtaking 21-minute walk in space; America's first.

And for Lt.-Cmdr. Roger B. Chaffee, it was his first opportunity to travel in space.

Grissom and White were air force officers, Chaffee a navy man.

The three died together when fire erupted inside the Apollo spaceship they were to take up on a voyage of up to 14 days in orbit around earth, beginning Feb. 21.

Some called Grissom a hard-luck astronaut. As one of the famed original seven Mercury spacemen, he had to swim for his life after taking a 15-minute suborbital flight July 21, 1961, when his tiny spaceship, Liberty Bell 7, blew its hatch and sank.

Then, March 23, 1965, he and Cmdr. John W. Young had the honor of launching the United States into its highly successful Gemini program with a three-orbit flight in Gemini 3.

Grissom, 40, was a short man with a deep, businesslike voice who wore his hair in a crewcut.

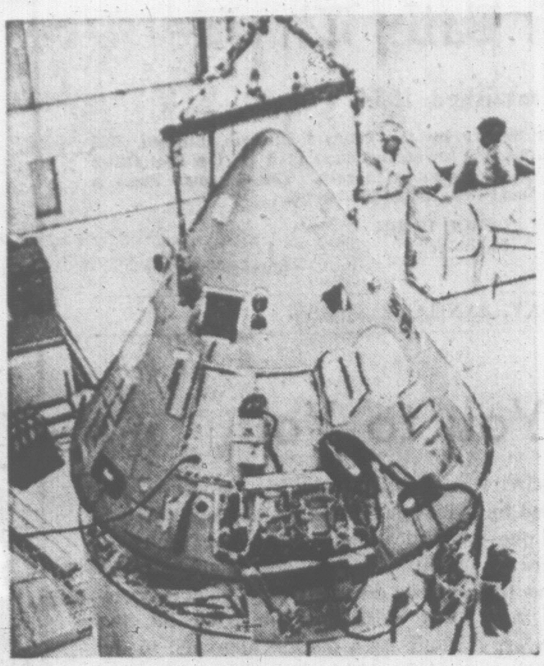
During the Korean War Grissom, too young for Second World War flying, finally won his wings, going on to fly 100 missions and win the Distinguished Flying Cross.

The son of an air force general, White, 36, was born in San Antonio, Tex., but lived there only a short time.

DEEPLY RELIGIOUS

A deeply religious man, White, a Methodist, attended church regularly. He kept his six-foot frame in top physical condition. In fact, he ranked No. 1 in physical aptitude in his class of 1952 at West Point, and set a 440-yard hurdle record.

Chaffee inherited his love for the air. His father, Donald Chaffee of Grand Rapids, Mich., is a former barnstormer who flew at county fairs in an open cockpit plane.



NOSE of Apollo spacecraft is seen as vehicle is moved from test stand in operations building for mating with an adapter section at Cape Kennedy, Fla. Three-man crew was killed during a simulated launching.

THEY TALKED OF RISKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Only last month the first U.S. Apollo astronauts were asked to comment in a television interview on the possibility they might be killed.

"No, you sort have to put that out of your mind," answered Virgil Grissom. "There's always a possibility that you can have a catastrophic failure, of course, this can happen on any flight.

"It can happen on the last one as well as the first one. So, you just plan as best you can to take care of all these eventualities, and you go fly."

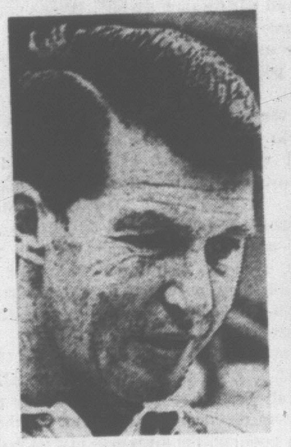
ASTRONAUT WARNED AMERICANS:

Death Part of Space Risk



SCHIRRA

ARMSTRONG
. . . wild spin

SPACE CENTRE, Houston (UPI) — "I hope that the people in the United States are mature enough that when we do lose our first crews they accept this as part of the business."

U.S. astronaut Frank Borman spoke those faintly chilling words in 1965.

Friday, the inevitable caught up with the American space program — but it came in a way no one expected.

Although the general public had come to regard spaceflight as fairly safe and almost routine, the people most closely associated with it — space agency officials and the men who built the rockets — knew sooner or later disaster would strike.

ON THE GROUND

Launching and re-entry, probes into deep space, space walks — these were the parts of a manned space flight considered critical. What no one expected was that disaster would strike on the ground.

Disaster has always lurked just at the heels of the space program, but until Friday it had never quite caught up with it. As far as space officials could determine, the crew of Apollo 1 were the first spacemen to die in an accident involving a space ship.

Grissom faced a near disaster once before, at the end of his Mercury flight. He had to scramble from his spacecraft minutes after he splashed into the Atlantic Ocean because the space vehicle was sinking.

The nearest disaster has come to striking in space was during Gemini 8. Astronauts Neil Armstrong and David Scott had completed five orbits and performed history's first docking with another vehicle in space when their spacecraft began spinning dangerously.

BACKED AWAY

Hurriedly they backed away from the Agena target rocket and headed for an emergency splashdown in the Pacific Ocean, far short of the three days they planned in space.

The splashdown, however, was nearly perfect.

The other time tragedy knocked at the space door it failed to gain admittance. That time it was on the launch pad, the same place disaster struck Apollo 1.

Gemini 6 astronauts Wally Schirra and Tom Stafford had sat in their spacecraft through a perfect countdown. Then, when the engines ignited, a plug fell out prematurely, and the rocket gave a mighty puff but did not leave the pad. Its engines shut off automatically.

LAUNCH PAD

Schirra and Stafford sat in their Gemini until the launch pad was finally declared safe. Later, the rocket was launched on a successful mission.

There has been speculation some Russian cosmonauts have died in the Soviet space effort, including one report that the dying beats of a heart were heard over a radio from a Russian spacecraft. These reports, however, remain unconfirmed as does most information about Russia's manned flights.

From You to You

MAYOR STEPHEN HAS AGAIN drawn attention to the need for a full-scale study of the whole question of financial relations between the provincial government and the municipalities. One wonders how much longer Mr. Bennett's government can dodge this very obvious duty.

Mr. Stephen charitably says that the plight of the municipalities has been overlooked too long, but the government's inaction cannot really be described as overlooking the problem. It is deliberately ignoring the situation in spite of frequent protests from municipal authorities and the growing concern of the public.

One of the key features of the present system of provincial aid to municipalities is the unsound "personal gift" type of relief for municipal taxpayers. Instead of allotting municipal governments a fair sum each year with which to help finance their growing responsibilities, Mr. Bennett has built into the system his Santa-Claus arrangement of personal grants to homeowners whereby as much as $110 can now be deducted by the individual taxpayer from his annual municipal tax bill.

This method of handouts is intended to relieve the burden of the taxpayer while presumably enabling the municipality to raise its tax rate to a level the taxpayer could not otherwise tolerate. But the aid in the guise of a personal gift from the Premier helps only those taxpayers who are living on their property. For all other property the high rate must be met in full.

This ramshackle manner of aiding municipalities is essentially a political gimmick designed to inspire gratitude each year as the homeowner deducts the Premier's generous $110 donation from his tax total. As a mature approach to the real problem of municipal financing it is sadly lacking. As Mayor Stephen says: "it does not assist us one iota in our financial dilemma."

To this improbable structure is now to be added home-builder grants, for no other apparent purpose than to let another bloc of the population in on Mr. Bennett's bounty, with, presumably, resultant feelings of gratitude and political support.

The crowning irony, of course, is that the very people who enjoy these various forms of relief from property taxation are in reality themselves providing the money. The grant barrel can only be filled from other revenue—raised from income or sales tax—and the public dutifully each year takes its $110 from one pocket and puts it into another with—according to the plan—appropriate sentiments of regard for its apparent benefactor.

Obviously, this is a false and sick situation, a candy-stick system of financing which should be swept away and replaced by legitimate annual grants to municipal governments on a scale to permit them to meet their proper responsibilities while keeping the levy on real property to a level that will not discourage home building and improvement. Parlor magic is no substitute for a proper system of accounting.

With Greater Independence

THE LONG-HERALDED FEDeral transport bill now requires what should be only formal approval before it becomes law, and it is hoped that its sweeping provisions will place Canada's railways on a new and practicable basis of operation.

Essentially the legislation will free the railways of much of the existing governmental control of rate-setting policies, and restore competition as the chief factor in transport prices. This should have beneficial effects on the whole transport system in this country by challenging the railways to meet their competition. The matter of freight rates is obviously a vital one in a country such as Canada, where the railway so far is the most feasible system of moving heavy or bulky freight from one part of the nation to another. But a vast system of government-set rates has resulted in the need to streamline the schedules, reduce uneconomic operations and generally modernize the conditions under which the trains must run.

A new over-all transport commission will consolidate government agencies now dealing with the three fields of railways, airlines and shipping, and a better co-ordination of policy should result.

The problem facing the railways is of course a highly complex one and no solutions will become effective overnight. But the rail systems should now be much freer to undertake economically feasible steps which will meet the changed conditions of our times.

The Sticking Point

WHEN PRIME MINISTER WILson returned from Paris Wednesday, after assessing in all the member countries, the possibility of Britain's joining the European Common Market, he stressed that he had not expected a flat yes or no answer. French information sources confirmed that the question had not been posed by Mr. Wilson nor had the French volunteered any hint of what their reply would have been if he had. The purpose of the visit was not to negotiate a definite position but, Mr. Wilson said, to discuss possibilities.

However, as Mr. Wilson was flying home, French Foreign Minister Couve de Murville was interviewed on television and said that the six ECM members would want to know what risks they would be taking if Britain did enter. Specifically, they want to know if the pound sterling can be maintained as a world reserve currency by Britain or if it would devolve on the other members of the ECM to maintain it.

Bit by bit, then, as other problems of British Common Market membership recede, the status of sterling emerges as the strongest barrier. Since Mr. Wilson has pledged so fervently that he will not devalue the pound, as the Europeans feel he should, it is becoming more unlikely that under his government, at least, Britain will become a partner in the ECM unless France and the other partners decide that the benefits of British membership are worth the risk that they might have to take over the bolstering of the pound.

Naturally, in an Arena

THERE WAS SOMETHING AT once contemporary and classical in the robust reaction of those attending the special ceremonial opening of British Columbia's legislature in Queen's Park Arena as a centennial gesture to New Westminster.

Here the athletic following of lower mainland teams have cheered or booed heroes or villains respectively for years. The environment is conducive to vocal spectator participation.

Classically, an arena was the scene of gladiator contests, where the spectators made the thumb-up or thumb-down gesture to the performers. And semantically, arena is the Latin word for sand, which may account for a certain grittiness in the good nature and good humor with which Mr. Bennett concluded the ceremony.

Helping Young Musicians

We would like to take this opportunity to publicly thank the Victoria Symphony Orchestra and conductor Simon Streatfield for taking the time out for rehearsal and performance to accompany the young musicians of Vancouver Island in the special concert at McPherson Playhouse Thursday.

It was a delightful concert and is without a doubt a most important stepping stone in all the lives of the young artists who performed. To be able to have this experience with such a sympathetic and understanding group of accompanists will help them all through their musical careers. Victoria has much to be proud of in her symphony in its community efforts.—Mr. and Mrs. James Hendry.

West Coast Trail

Three cheers for Mr. Bruce Scott who appears to be making an effort to get the west-coast trail opened and the Boy Scouts who are going to try and reclaim it by their own efforts.

The West Coast Trail could indeed be one of V.I.'s most popular tourist attractions. I have travelled all over Canada and spent many summers along the Atlantic seaboard, including the famous Cabot Trail, but nowhere have I seen anything to compare with the scenic beauty and beaches of the west coast of Vancouver Island.

However, any effort to have this trail opened should also be coupled with a demand to have this declared a park area or at least a green belt of half a mile to one mile in depth to preserve its scenic beauty and prevent the logging and mining interests from spoiling it and polluting the seafront.—J. Dunsmuir, 3691 Wascana.

The UN—Often Quarrelsome But Still a Family

Frye

THE United Nations is groping its way into 1967 like a teen-ager forced to care for a large and heavily dependent family. The parents — the great powers — were divorced early on, and have been preoccupied with quarrelling ever since. There are few resources in the bank, and many debts to pay. Fighting periodically tears the children apart. It is, perhaps, remarkable that the family has survived at all. Plenty of prophets have predicted its doom.

Yet somehow the UN has managed to provide a household in which the highly independent, egoistic and sometimes delinquent members of the world family can live together.

Criticisms of its management have been many.

- It is "too democratic," some say. Every tiny ministate, whatever its population, its influence, or its military and economic might, has "equal voting power" with the larger and more "responsible" members of the world community.
- It does not have the objectivity, balance and maturity of a court of law; its decisions are politically motivated, and sometimes distorted by evasion, improvisation and a double standard of morality.
- It is a captive of its parents' cold war — either too Communist-influenced or too Western-dominated (according to the viewpoint of the critic); or alternately, it is not deeply enough involved in critical cold-war problems, such as Vietnam.
- It is unwilling or unable to insist that all members, including the parents, share costs of maintaining the household and of ending quarrels within it. Thus it is chronically in debt, and correspondingly limited in its capacity for action.
- It is too selective in its membership, and should open its doors to all in the neighborhood, notably Red China; or alternately, it is not selective enough, and not only should bar Peking but should evict some countries now members.

Even UN people would acknowledge that some of these criticisms are justified.

There is no question, for example, that UN decisions are politically motivated, representing a balance of political power which is sometimes achieved by log-rolling, pressure, and tactics resembling blackmail.

But it is not remotely true that the tiniest of the ministates have an influence over this process equal to that of the great powers.

The United States can normally muster at least 35 to 40 per cent of the votes in the 122-nation General Assembly, and at least seven or eight of the 15 votes in the Security Council (its own negative vote being a veto).

The Soviet Union can command between 10 and 15 per cent of the Assembly, and three or four of the Council votes. It, too, has the veto.

Other influential countries — Britain, France, India and certain of the Africans, for example — can similarly persuade camp followers (or "clients" or "satellites" or "brother states") to vote as a bloc on many issues.

Thus there is, in practice, a form of weighted voting already in existence. The great powers may not have as much influence as they want, but they are certainly not on a par with the ministates.

Nor is it clear that a more formal system of weighting the votes would increase the influence of the West, let alone restore the American working majority of the 1940s and early 1950s.

The United States mission fed into a computer some 175 of the most important roll calls taken in the General Assembly over the past 20 years. It recalculated what would have happened if the votes had been weighted according to two frequently-proposed criteria: population and contributions to the UN budget.

The result was that although American power to fend off unwonted pressure was increased, Soviet influence was increased even more. Weighted voting would not have been a contribution to the United States national interest.

Moreover, if China and Russia ever were to get together, or if Russia and India did so consistently, the equating of population with voting power would have a disastrous effect on American influence.

Thus the UN's critics, while numerous and vocal, are not always on target. The UN may run a boisterous household, but not all the neighbors' suggestions would in fact be improvements.

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

FOR an exciting little expedition go out to Niagara Canyon, off the Island Highway at the foot of the Malahat, and see the falls.

You can get beside the stream that is now running high through the shale rock. It has cut into the rock until the sides look as though they had been built by hand.

When you get to the bend the falls come into view. They are tremendous, dropping more than 100 feet in a large sheet of foaming water with a roar that vibrates against the canyon walls.

The spray fills the narrow gorge like a dense fog or mist. You will get drenched unless properly clothed. The falls have created a deep pool at the foot which boils and swirls before it rushes down the channel.

The walls of the canyon are 100 feet high and the trees growing along the high sides are soaked with water, giving them the appearance of a jungle rain forest. Through the mist the dark green of the mosses and polypody ferns takes on fantastic shapes.

Scattered along the stream bed there are numerous chunks of quartz, some of which are stained with oxidized iron which glistens against the grey-brown of the shale.

As the water emerges from the tunnel under the road it spreads and forms many little streams, each one forming a different pattern, till they once again merge and empty into Goldstream River. Each little stream seems to have its own song as it tumbles over rocks or around a tree trunk.

These falls run all year, but during the summer the waters run underground when they leave the pool and the stream bed is dry.

FROM CALGARY

By JAMES H. GRAY

Who Cares for the City Left in Alien Hands?

Gray

THERE is nothing newsworthy about busybodies rushing around forming new organizations, but the emergence of a new group in Calgary underlines a new problem that is arising in the cities of western Canada. That is the consequences of the disappearance of the local boosters.

The Calgary group has chosen the name of Civic Action Committee. Its organizers managed to spell out its beef after less than two hours on a local open-line radio show. Its objective is to take up the leadership slack in civic affairs that has developed in the wake of the disappearance of the home-grown business leaders.

Until yesterday, the biggest status symbol of them all in the west was a downtown office building. Winnipeg had its McIntyre Building, Boyd Building, McArthur Building and Calgary its Lougheed Building, Lancaster Building, Burns Building, Bamlett Building. The people who owned the big downtown buildings lived in the cities and were very active in municipal affairs.

They were the people who were always coming up with ideas to promote their cities. They pushed city councils into things like parks and better sidewalks and fewer potholes. In the rapid growth of the western cities, they have been submerged completely where they have not died off. In the place of the men and their civic consciousness are faceless corporations who contribute nothing and couldn't care less.

In a real sense, the cities of the west are coming to reflect all too accurately large segments of the Canadian economy. They are owned by absentees, whose main concern is financial and who have no interest whatever in local affairs.

Downtown Calgary is now dominated from one end to the other by huge office buildings that are owned by oil corporations or by mortgage companies and financial companies from eastern Canada. Like every other city, Calgary has its problems, but it gets no help in the solutions from any of the people with the biggest stake in the city—the owners of the downtown real estate.

Calgary, for example, has two potentially rather beautiful downtown rivers that have been crying out for landscaping for 50 years. When the CPR launched a plan to run its railway tracks along the Bow River, it stirred up some local interest. A group was formed to push for the beautification of the Bow River valley. The CPR plan died and with it interest in the river.

The City Planning Department recently unveiled a master plan that will cost the taxpayers $60,000,000 or $100,000,000 to redevelop the downtown area. Casual remarks about the weather have stirred up greater interest.

Similarly, the Stampede Board has been threshing around trying to find some way of breaking out of the real estate straight-jacket it is in. It needs room to expand and there is none. When it makes noises about going someplace else, only the customers complain. The Stampede is the city's greatest drawing card, cultural facility and myth creator. As such one would expect its health to be the concern of all Calgarians. But nobody really cares enough to come up with an idea.

When the richest citizens had a big stake in downtown real estate, they tended to be over-protective of the mill-rate. Thus to counter-balance their leadership in civic progress was their opposition to raising the tax rate.

Now there is neither. So civic departments tend to follow Parkinson's laws — bodies multiply to full all available space and expenditures expand to absorb all income. The city council tends, as well, to become the monopoly of small bore businessmen and lawyers who like the publicity they get as aldermen.

The total effect is to produce a sort of non-city. The foreign corporations take no interest in it, neither do the transient managers of the foreign companies who are here today and gone tomorrow. And where the local politicians listened to the big local business men because they were big, local and businessmen, they pay little attention to any local citizens who take the trouble to write or phone them.

The operation of the city becomes the business of the civic employees. If nobody else cares they step into the vacuum, or they sit in it and do nothing. It was all this that got the local group off centre and led to the establishment of the C.A.C. It is significant that all its sponsors were small time businessmen and salaried employees. There wasn't a tycoon anywhere on the horizon.

A New Lieutenant Appears

Quebec L'Evenement

Barely a year after getting into active politics, the member for Quebec West, Mr. Jean Marchand, has been named Chief of the Quebec caucus of the federal Liberal party. It is a new, important responsibility which he will handle simultaneously with his functions as minister of immigration and of manpower. The rapid rise of Mr. Marchand in federal politics is a rather rare phenomenon in our political annals. In the trade union movement, Mr. Marchand had already given proof of a remarkable ability and of a sense of responsibility. These are precious qualities which he knew how to use profitably in federal politics.

In Parliament the elected members are the representatives of their electors. They are not there primarily to represent a particular province but to legislate for the common good of the nation. However, in practice, French-Canadian members must, on certain occasions, speak up for Canadians of the French language.

It is because of this law, unwritten but nonetheless useful in national politics, that the governments which functioned well in the past in Ottawa included in the cabinet a minister with a somewhat special character who represented the other nationality; it was a French-Canadian when the prime minister was English-speaking and an English-Canadian under Laurier and St. Laurent.

Mr. Marchand plans to re-establish Quebec's communications with the federal government. He will have a great deal to do in this domain.

Hees Building Up Support For Tory Leadership Race

By PETER C. NEWMAN

(The Times Ottawa commentator interrupts his series on the "New Fathers of Confederation" to examine the implications of the Conservative party meeting this weekend called to consider John Diefenbaker's leadership convention proposal. The series of interviews with Canada's premiers will resume next week.)

OTTAWA—As executive officers of the Conservative party meet this weekend to discuss John Diefenbaker's call for an early convention, the leadership contenders themselves are frantically trying to hammer together regional and ideological coalitions strong and broad enough to help them win the crown.

The man whose discreet backstage bargaining has so far achieved the most spectacular results is none other than that hard-breathing refutation of the theory that all Canadian politicians have to be stuffy: George Harris Hees.

Newman

While his competitors posture and pronounce, Hees has been quietly lining up the votes of future convention delegates. Nearly every weekend since he returned to federal politics 14 months ago, Hees has been out in some distant constituency, relentlessly glad-handing local power brokers, searching for the levers of persuasion that would enlist them in his cause. "They love ham out there," says a Hees backer, "and George can cut the slices."

At the same time, Hees has been steadily wooing members of the parliamentary caucus. One informal tally of Tory MPs indicates that more than a dozen Western Tories have secretly pledged their support. This could be significant, because up to now it's been assumed that once John Diefenbaker retired, Prairie Conservatives would automatically switch their allegiance to Alvin Hamilton.

That's still true of the Saskatchewan Tories, but many Conservative members from Alberta and Manitoba, as well as British Columbia, are turning to Hees. The former trade and commerce minister's aproach has been that the future of the Canadian West depends on trade and industrialization, not agriculture, and that he's the man who can help the MPs most in exploiting the political advantages of this trend.

Hees organizing committees have been set up in every province. The most active groups are reported to be headed by two former Tory MPs: Art Smith in Calgary and John Taylor in Vancouver.

The greatest geographical liability of the Hees candidacy is the absence of any significant support in Quebec. While he did spend two years as president of the Montreal Stock Exchange and learned a kind of passable political French, Hees has yet to find a suitable Quebec lieutenant. The politician he'd like most of all to get on his side is Jean Drapeau, the dynamic mayor of Montreal. The feelers are out, but Drapeau's associates scoff at the idea that he would agree to becoming a federal politician under Hees' sponsorship.

(The two men did get to know and admire each other when John Diefenbaker's indecision held up Canada's application for Montreal as the site of the 1967 world's fair. It was Drapeau, working through Hees — and Bill Hamilton, then postmaster-general — who finally pushed the Conservative government into meeting the application deadline.)

Pushing Hard

Hees has been pushing himself hard as a politician with leadership stature. Although his parliamentary performance in the past two sessions has been undistinguished, his supporters maintain that he'd be a good leader because he can pick competent advisors and loves to delegate authority. One of his detractors said this week: "George still thinks you can win votes in this country with big white teeth and greasy kid stuff hair and the trouble is, he may be right."

GEORGE HEES
. . . quietly gaining

The most bitter opposition to the Hees candidacy will probably come from the party faithful who recall his abrupt resignation in February of 1963, and how he went skiing in Switzerland during the tough election that followed. (Ironically, the man who master-minded that campaign for John Diefenbaker was Dalton Camp, working round the clock at national PC headquarters in Ottawa without pay.)

If the anti-Hees feelings grow strong enough, they could force the formation of an alliance behind Davie Fulton, designed specifically to prevent the party from falling under Hees' control. Where John Diefenbaker would stand in such a confrontation is difficult to imagine, but those who keep tab on his priority of personal vendettas believe he would cheerfully support Hees to stop Fulton.

The Conservative leader's current campaign for an early leadership convention is a desperate attempt to break up the anti-Diefenbaker coalition put together by Dalton Camp for the party's last annual meeting. Mr. Diefenbaker may have been convinced by his ardent disciples that if he could get his opponents fighting each other instead of him, some trick of kind fate might grant his failing stewardship a renewed mandate.

ALVIN HAMILTON
. . . losing ground

But that's a long hope. John Diefenbaker is too conscious of his place in history to delay his departure beyond the limits that would mark him as a man who cared more for personal power than for his party or his country.

NEWS HIGHLIGHTS OF THE WEEK

Reviewed by Peter Murray, Times Wire News Editor

Once again President Charles de Gaulle appears to have slammed the door on Britain's entry into the European Common Market.

Prime Minister Harold Wilson would not admit it, but reports following his meeting with de Gaulle in Paris indicate his reception was chilly.

Paris was the second stop on Wilson's tour of European capitals to test the water for a new application by Britain for membership in the ECM.

In Rome last week he found encouragement, as he is expected to do in the other four capitals. But France is the stumbling block.

It seems clear that eventually Britain will link up with the European trading community, but not until de Gaulle is succeeded by a French leader less rigid and haughty in his approach to world politics.

After the current round of negotiations de Gaulle is expected to propose associate membership for Britain on terms Wilson would have to reject to preserve any national honor.

In the meantime de Gaulle has put the subject off until April to allow time for a summit meeting of the ECM leaders in Rome and the French parliamentary elections.

Wilson was reported to have been confronted by two main questions in his Paris talks:

The ECM is prospering at the moment and Britain is not, so what advantage is there for the Market in British membership?

Would Britain's vulnerability as leader of the sterling bloc bring new financial hazards to the ECM?

On the sterling question de Gaulle maintains that if there was a run on sterling reserves in London the ECM would be compelled to bail Britain out.

The world kept looking for clarification of the China confusion but still there was none.

The reports refer to "battles" and "fighting" but doubt persists that these terms taken from wall newspapers and Peking Radio mean much more than word battles rather than real warfare.

Premier Chou En-lai was reported to have committed China's 2,500,000-man army to the struggle to crush opponents of Mao Tse-tung, but again the army's role may be more of a propaganda agent than a fighting force.

Whatever form the upheaval is taking, most of Mao's opposition appears to be outside the capital, in the northern provinces of Shansi and Manchuria and in the south around Canton. Accurate accounts of what is happening there are almost impossible to get.

●

Some of the reports coming out of Washington on the Vietnam situation were almost as hard to decipher as those from China.

On Tuesday President Johnson sent his annual budget message to Congress which called for expenditures of $19.4 billion on the war this year and $21.9 billion in 1968. The total defence outlay for each of the years is about $70 billion.

Johnson admitted the "deep imprint" of the Vietnam war on his budget.

Then, later in the week, Johnson declared it was time for the U.S. to start worrying about the effect on the economy when the war is ended. There is a need to prepare plans to avoid a possible peacetime recession, he said.

Simultaneously, Defence Secretary Robert McNamara said the Viet Cong are beginning to hurt and he sees a levelling off in the war. Infiltration from North Vietnam only matched Cong losses in the South, he said, and the Communists now are unable to win a military victory.

●

South Vietnam Premier Nguyen Cao Ky wound up his visit to Australia and New Zealand and returned home to a political crisis touched off by his ouster of Lt.-Gen. Nguyen Huu Co, who had been deputy premier and the leading southerner in the military junta which has been riven by regional strife.

Some supporters of Co were imprisoned and other generals from the south protested that the northerners led by Ky were stamping out all opposition.

Ky ran into some of the stiffest opposition of his tour in New Zealand. Demonstrators threw themselves in front of his car in Auckland and students hurled rotten eggs.

Another visiting leader who was greeted with "go home" leaflets was President Nikolai Podgorny of the Soviet Union in Italy.

Offices of the Italian Communist party were dynamited in Rome and Milan just before Podgorny's arrival on a week's visit.

A South African inquiry blamed blunders by officials for allowing the demented Demetrio Tsafendas to stay in the country and get a job as a messenger in parliament, where he assassinated Premier Hendrik Verwoerd.

The Slow, Slow March To Improved Penology

By ART STOTT

An understandable disappointment pervades speeches of protagonists for change in the juvenile delinquents act delivered in the Commons last week.

Specifically, Mr. Frank Howard, former B.C. legislator who is now Skeena's MP in Ottawa, sought second reading of his private bill to at least keep young offenders under 16 from being sentenced to penal institutions where they mingle with adult, and presumably, hardened criminals.

Stott

This was one of the changes sought immediately by the Fateaux report of 1956. It became the point of Mr. Howard's private bill read a first time in the Commons a year ago. Last week the bill was "talked out"—which means the debate continued to the limit of time allowed and no vote was taken.

Mr. Howard and Mr. David MacDonald, a Conservative member for Prince Edward Island, both recognized the fact that the bill dealt with only one phase of the larger problem of juvenile delinquency now troubling Canada. Both sincerely regretted the delay which has occurred in parliamentary action to convert present law more fully to treatment of the juvenile offender along rehabilitative lines as opposed to punishment, and both used their discussion time to range further over the field of modern thought concerning correction.

They regretted, among other things, the loss of potential to Canada in the diversion of some young Canadians from the straight and narrow into lives of crime and specifically pointed to penitentiaries where, under existing law, it is still possible for a boy to take advanced instruction in criminal activity from the old lags.

No doubt the case they presented earned sympathy throughout the House. Humanitarian instinct cries out for reclamation of the erring and restitution of the transgressor to society as an honest, constructive individual.

It is a mark of our social evolution toward civilization that this sentiment prevails.

It is an indication of how far we have to go that more primitive instincts and reactions retard that evolution.

The relatively law-abiding citizen has in him from the early beginnings of man an instinct of self-preservation. He wants protection from the forces that threaten and sometimes injure him. And, where he is able, he has an almost overwhelming inclination to strike back at those who hurt him or his.

Mr. MacDonald made an eloquent plea for consideration of the offender, young or old, as an ill person, not necessarily physically or mentally ill, but suffering from an ailment which diverted him from decent behaviour. He suggested an analogy between cruel treatment of the deranged a century ago and some penal practices still applied to criminals.

★ ★ ★

This is a subject which has been explored and argued over the years, with a consensus developing in favor of treatment rather than punishment. Gradually, but very gradually, practices and institutions are changing in appreciation of this philosophy.

I happen to agree with the point of view expressed by Mr. Howard and Mr. MacDonald, but I doubt that sentiment, even humanitarianism, is going to bring an end to the tedious and costly process of gradualism.

In my view, in our materialistic society, I think we have to bring an economic and pragmatic approach to the issue.

★ ★ ★

The fact is that too many of our penal projects don't work in a rehabilitative way for those subjected to them. It costs too much money to maintain temporarily in houses of correction, which don't correct, individuals who then return to crime on release. If what we're doing doesn't work, let's try something that might. Some of the treatments now suggested may turn out to be no better than some ineffective systems now in use, but trial is justified in the hope that others might.

This isn't a sentimenatl argument. It's hard-boiled. And if an inclination remains in our society to punish for the sake of vindictiveness, let's start figuring how much vindictiveness is costing and what it's accomplishing.

Is it reasonable to suppose that the vast majority of Canadians can't move more quickly toward a solution for the problem of the small minority who are offenders?

As Mr. Howard and Mr. MacDonald pointed out, we're dragging our feet, wearing out a lot of economic shoe leather and furnishing only a very unreliable brake on crime.

BLACK RULE COMES TO BAHAMAS

By J. HALCRO FERGUSON

LONDON — Black power, in its least militant sense, has come to the Bahamas, the nearest of Britain's remaining colonies to the southern states of North America, with the decision of the single white independent MP to serve as neutral speaker in the new Parliament.

In a snap election called by the ruling United Bahamian Party, which stands for the islands' White Ascendancy of Bay Street businessmen, the UBP got 18 seats in the legislature. So did the largely Negro Peoples' Liberal Party, to its own astonishment. The remaining two successful candidates were a Negro of the local Labour Party and the white Independent.

LYNDEN PINDLING
. . . probing gambling

This could well have meant a tie, or possible a new election. But the white Independent, Alvin Braynen, a former member of the UBP, has told Lynden Pindling, leader of the Peoples' Liberal Party, that he is willing to become the neutral speaker.

One of the first tasks of Mr. Pindling's government will be to examine allegations of corruption in Bahamas affairs and links between one of its gambling casinos and the eastern syndicate of the United States underworld.

Corruption

Corruption is thought to have developed since the Bahamas took Cuba's place as the centre of overseas gambling nearest to American shores. Mr. Pindling was in London last month to ask the colonial secretary to set up an inquiry into gambling.

A PLP government will also certainly do something about constituency boundaries, which the Negro majority claims work against them. And the result of the elections will not only have repercussions in nearby Bermuda, where the Bahamas' social, racial, political and economic pattern is closely parallelled, but also in the southern American states which lie closest to the Bahamas.

The Bahamas have gone a long way in the decade since the colored registrar of the University College of the West Indies was refused overnight accommodation in an hotel in the capital, Nassau.

Japanese Are Apathetic As Nation Goes to Polls

By RICHARD HALLORAN
The Washington Post

TOKYO — The most notable aspect of the Japanese election campaign that will end with balloting Sunday has been the apathy of the voters and the desultory tactics of the politicians.

Both reflect newspaper polls showing that about half of Japan's electorate is thoroughly disenchanted with its politics. A recent poll in the Asahi Shimbun, Japan's leading daily paper, showed that 42 per cent of the voters think that Japan's postwar "democracy" is not working well. Only 26 per cent said it is functioning well.

Television and newspaper coverage of the campaign further substantiates the feeling of malaise in the Japanese body politic. Pictures of candidates making campaign speeches tend to be only that—because the voters either don't come out to listen or hurry past while they are talking.

Newspaper editorials have taken no sharp stands. They criticize all parties in mild terms for failing to address themselves to important issues and plead for something to save Japan from its slippage away from parliamentary government. But there are few editorials of urgency.

Local Fights

Part of the reason for the lack of cohesion is that the race for the 486 seats in the lower house of the Diet (parliament) is fought mainly at the local level, with few national appeals from Premier Sato, leader of the ruling Liberal Democrats, Kozo Sasaki, head of the Japan Socialist Party, or top people in the minor parties.

Moreover, much of the debate has been on somewhat abstract issues that don't appeal much to the ordinary voters — retaining the mutual security treaty with the United States or resuming diplomatic relations with Communist China or issuing national bonds or not.

The issue of corruption, known as the "black mist" here, has been well hashed by both sides. Some discussion of a major economic problem, the continually rapid rise of consumer prices, is just beginning to receive attention from the opposition.

Perhaps the most important aspect of the election is the infighting going on within the LDP, rather than between the conservatives and the opposition parties. This arises from Sato's desperate attempts to regain his hold on control of the party and an "anti-mainstream" group's effort to dislodge him.

Sato managed to have full LDP support withheld from a large number of his opponents' candidates, which in turn has led them to criticize him and his associates openly during the campaign.

This factional struggle is encouraged by Japan's complex electoral system, under which a party's candidates may be running not only against opposition candidates, but also against others from his own party. The more candidates one party runs in a district, the more likely that the vote will be split, thus helping the opposition. Thus the real contests are between pro-Sato and anti-Sato conservatives running against each other in the same district.

Sato has reduced his prediction from 300 seats for the LDP to 280. The ruling party now has 278. The JSP, with 141 now, says it will get between 160 and 170.

All eyes will be on the performance of the Komeito, a tightly disciplined and well-organized party. It has 32 candidates up for the lower house for the first time. Most analysts here expect it to get between 25 and 30, based on its past record of well calculated political moves.

PREMIER SATO
. . . sees fewer seats

The DSP says it is looking for 40 seats, against 23 now, while the JCP may double from four to eight.

A simple majority will be 240 but the magic number of a working majority is about 270. If Sato's LDP falls below that, it will have a hard time controlling the Diet because cabinet ministers are taken mostly from the lower house. And Sato's opponents within the party will renew their efforts to force him to resign.

No Great Rush for Seats On First Trip to the Moon

By The Canadian Institute of Public Opinion

Are Canadians an adventurous people? "No," says 84% of men and women across the country. No, they would not like to go along on the first rocket trip to the moon.

In the United States, about 18 million people have said they would volunteer for the first trip to the moon. Using the same population yardstick in Canada, 2,100,000 persons (15%) feel similarly adventuresome.

The question: "Would you like to go along on the first rocket trip to the moon?"

A VOICE FROM THE GALLERY

Artists Have Head Start In Selecting Paintings

By TONY EMERY

Emery

It is not surprising that artists should be, in general, the most ardent and perceptive collectors of objects that please them by reason of their shape and color and tactility: a heightened sensibility in these respects is, after all, an artist's most important attribute. And because most artists of any considerable merit are relatively free from visual prejudice it is usual to find in their homes and studios all kinds of interesting, colorful and arresting objects, collected from fields and junkshops, markets and fairs, on travels abroad as well as in forays into the "five-and-ten."

Most artists collect works of art, too, though I have been in the studios of one or two who had nothing on their walls except a poster or a couple of pages cut from a magazine, and I know one celebrated practitioner who has never been known to hang anything but his own work on his own wall. A closed shop, you might say. But that was in another country. . . .

Of course the artist as collector has a slight edge over the ordinary man in that he can offer to exchange work with his contemporaries. Henry Moore, for example, is very proud of the sheet of music manuscript which Stravinsky swapped for a Moore carving, and he also has a nice Ben Nicholson painting acquired in an even trade.

The artists of Victoria are notable for their lack of egocentricity; they collect one another's work and it is more usual for them to pay in cash than in kind. Whether this will ever lead to the pleasant state in which they might all get a living by buying and selling work by themselves and friends I must leave to brighter economists than I can claim to be, but it looks as if an encouraging start has been made in this directon, to judge from the present show in the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria, "Local Artists as Collectors."

Herbert Siebner has a Molly Privett called "Whistler's Mother Whistling." Molly Privett has a Nita Forrest, Nita has a couple of good works by Herbert Siebner. But they all have some other excellent things as well. In any show in Victoria one is bound to be drawn to anything that has the charm of unfamiliarity and in this show there are several items in this category. P. K. Irwin's little Leonora Carrington panel scores close to the maximum for rarity value.

◆

I can't remember seeing another exhibited since 1939 and I would urge you to make its acquaintance while the opportunity exists to see something from the hand of this poetic visionary.

Max Bates's landscape by W. L. Stevenson, Nita Forrest's small Giacometti lithograph, E. Schleicher's Foujita drawing, Michael Morris's little Braque, and the four fine prints belonging to Pat Martin Bates (by Giguere, Stasik, Gaucher and Christ-Janer) are also not to be missed.

On the whole it is the objects in the collection that provide the most interest for the spectator, and reveal the sharpened eye for quality that I spoke of at the outset.

Ricky Ciccimarra's two pots from Mashiko moved me to make several mental dents in the commandment that inhibits covetousness, and if I did not know how efficient the Gallery's anti-theft precautions are I should probably by now be hatching a plot to remove P. K. Irwin's pre-Columbian votive figures and the tiny Eskimo carving — almost a "netsuke" — belonging to Ricky Ciccimarra.

◆

In the small gallery are a number of Walter Phillips's delicate little colored woodcuts.

His prints seem to me to be much more successful in capturing the line and mass of the Rocky Mountains than the larger — and emptier — works of more celebrated Canadian painters who tried conclusions with this massive range and came off second-best.

Two Local Writers In Project

Two Victoria writers are participating in a Vancouver Little Theatre Association centennial project.

The Immolation by Joan Mason Hurley and The Marfax Inheritance by Roland Goodchild, are two of five one-act plays that will be produced between Feb. 22 and March 3 and will be adjudicated by Malcolm Black, artistic director of the Vancouver Playhouse Company.

Three winning plays will be given an honor performance and the authors will receive cash prizes.

Opera Adds Glamor to 'Symphony Month'

By AUDREY JOHNSON

February, 1967, could go down in the annals of Victoria Symphony Society as "The Great Month.".

Before it has run out, three of the four (possibly five) conductor-applicants will have been observed in action and within the space of four weeks the orchestra will have played a total of eight concerts.

First comes Gregory Millar who will guest conduct the pair of concerts at the Royal next weekend and on the evening of the 6th at Duncan.

Two weeks later the orchestra will be joined with the touring Canadian Opera Company in Donizetti's charmingly melodic comic opera, Don Pasquale.

The Victoria Symphony becomes a pit orchestra for this glamorous occasion and the two performances — Feb. 19 and 20 — will be conducted by Otto-Werner Mueller.

This production is being made possible by the Canadian Centennial Commission.

●

Canadian-born, of Greek and French extraction, Millar grew up in Vancouver but left there early to continue his studies abroad and has since considerably distinguished himself on the North American continent.

In the past 15 years he has gained a rich experience, conducting most of the major symphonic repertoire, has directed the New York Philharmonic on 10 outstanding occasions and is noted for having built several Eastern U.S. orchestras.

As an associate director of the N.Y. Philharmonic, he won a standing ovation in Carnegie Hall on an occasion when he was suddenly handed the baton by Leonard Bernstein with the words ... "I have complete confidence in you."

●

In recent seasons Millar has conducted, besides the New York Philharmonic and his own Kalamazoo Symphony, the Pittsburgh, Detroit, San Francisco, Portland, Connecticut and CBC Symphonies, the Los Angeles Philharmonic and the National Symphony of Mexico.

His press notices have been highly favorable wherever he has gone.

In New York, Sargent in The New Yorker commented: "Millar ... tackled works that demand great poise and authority if they are to be projected in a coherent manner ... he proved himself to be a singularly gifted and compelling maestro."

●

"I have only praise for Gregory Millar's agile and deft conducting of the Philharmonic," said the N.Y. World Telegram critic.

Other major critics have referred repeatedly to his authority, intuition, sensitivity and dynamism.

Millar was the unanimous choice for conductorship of the 90-piece Kalamazoo Symphony which has grown tremendously in stature since he became its director in 1961. Last year it was given a $600,000 grant by the Ford Foundation.

For his appearance on the Victoria podium, Millar has chosen the Brahms Symphony No. 1 in C minor as the principal work. Rossini's Overture to La Gazza Ladra will open the program.

Soloist on this occasion will be the lovely lyric soprano Sheila Marks, who previously has been heard with the Victoria Symphony in presentations of Bach's Christmas Oratorio and Beethoven's Ninth Symphony.

The work chosen by Millar and Mrs. Marks for this program is considered one of the all-time masterpieces of vocal music with orchestral accompaniment.

Les Nuits d'ete (Summer Nights) by Hector Berlioz, is a cycle of six songs, settings of poems by Theophile Gautier.

These songs have been called "miraculous ... spilling over with sensuous, singing melody ... a peak of French vocal writing that has never been surpassed."

Last year, Mrs. Marks was a finalist in both the San Francisco and Metropolitan Opera Auditions.

HAROLD FARBERMAN
... from Boston

Third of the maestros under consideration by the Symphony Society Board and its advisors, will conduct the Feb. 26-27 pair and in Sidney the night of the 27th.

He is Harold Farberman, a young man, critically hailed as comparable to Bernstein, who has recorded, composed and conducted with outstanding success.

Born in New York City, educated at the Juilliard School of Music and New England Conservatory, he was a member of the Boston Symphony Orchestra from 1951 to 1963.

In 1960 Farberman assembled a group of young professional instrumentalists under the title of the New Arts Orchestra.

●

Concerning the debut of this group, Cyrus Durgin in the Boston Globe commented: "For players and conductor alike the demands here were fierce, continuing and relentless. The performance reflected enormous credit upon all concerned."

And the Christian Science Monitor enthused: "Not only did he (Farberman) conduct; he wrote a piece for the concert, spoke to the audience, chose music with an interesting unifying idea. Mr. Farberman is a talented young man with ideas, drive and obvious know-how."

In 1964 the conductor took his New Arts Orchestra to New York and Howard Klein in the New York Times said ... "Mr. Farberman brought a powerful program to Carnegie Hall last night. The players under his excellent direction gave a first-rate reading."

●

"It would seem that Mr. Farberman's success as a conductor is assured. Last night at Carnegie Hall he directed a stunning program," noted the N.Y. Herald Tribune.

In 1965 Farberman was appointed as conductor of Orchestra U.S.A. and was also directing the Cosmopolitan Youth Orchestra in New York.

The program he will conduct for Victoria Symphony is a demanding one and will satisfy some of the symphony goers who have been hungering for "newer" music.

●

To begin with, this concert will feature the world premiere of a new Canadian composition. Commissioned especially for the Victoria Symphony Orchestra by the B.C. Centennial Committee, it is the work of Montreal composer-conductor Michel Perrault.

Mr. Farberman will also conduct the Shostakovich Symphony No. 5 and Khachaturian Violin Concerto.

Guest soloist in the latter work will be Calvin Sieb.

Mr. Sieb has been concert master of the Montreal Symphony, Montreal CBC, and National Film Board Studios, and the Stratford Festival Orchestra.

For the last two years, he has been a member of the orchestra at the Casals Festival in San Juan, Puerto Rico.

At 17 he was a Fellowship student at the Juilliard Graduate School of Music, and later studied in France with Nadia Boulanger and Jacques Thibaud.

In 1951, Mr. Sieb was one of the prize winners of the International "Concours de Violon," sponsored by the French government.

This calendar of performances within a four-week period, would seem to place extreme demands on our semi-professional orchestra.

But the challenge it represents is a heady one and the orchestra has a reputation for accepting and rising well to such challenges.

There is, undoubtedly, much to be said for causing people to stretch their minds and their capabilities. They may not achieve everything, but they will certainly achieve more than if they operate always within what they belive to be their limits.

A month from now, many people will know a lot more about what the orchestra can and cannot do and what its future is likely to hold, than they do at present.

My guess is there will be some surprises, especially for the doubters and the knockers who, unfortunately, are always with us.

INDIAN TALES are featured in the Canadian mosaic Les Feux-Follets which will be performed in McPherson Playhouse at 2:30 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. next Saturday in a cross Canada tour. Jigs and reels of Nova Scotia and French Acadian dances are also presented.

OPERA is on the symphony program for February. Appealing Eleanor Calbes will sing the role of Norina when the Canadian Opera Company brings the comic opera, Don Pasquale to the Royal.

The somewhat delayed breakup of the Beatles finally came to light last week when Paul McCartney announced in an interview that, "Now we Beatles are ready to go our own ways and I'm no longer one of the four mop-tops."

Until last week, we were led to believe that the group was simply taking a rest and that they would shortly return to the music scene.

But the idea I'll buy is that they actually split up sometime in the latter part of 1966 and until now manager Epstien was trying to hold them together so he could add a bit more to his already overflowing treasury.

Elvis' birthday release (Jan. 8) of Indescribably Blue and Fools Fall in Love seems to be following the path of past Elvis hits and should rate No. 1 shortly.

The Monkees' second LP, More of the Monkees, has been certified as a gold LP even though the disc was only released two weeks ago. Advance orders so far number 1,500,000 copies. Their first album hit well over 3,000,000 in sales and it is expected their second effort will top that.

A comedy LP strictly for teen-agers but written and performed by a slightly older duo, Gail Parent and Kenny Solms, both in their mid-20s, is being cut under the title I Were a High School Graduate. Sub-title is Not Recommended for Adults.

Now that Winchester Cathedral hit has brought Rudy Vallee back in vogue a U.S. discery is issuing the original Vallee recordings of his vintage hits.

Big Changes For Guild's Keller Story

A new concept of staging for the Victoria Theatre Guild will mark production of the stirring drama, The Miracle Worker.

It will be seen at Langham Court Theatre starting Feb. 10 and running through Feb. 18.

Director Allan Purdy who has assembled an outstanding cast has instituted some sweeping changes from the style of presentation customarily seen in the little theatre.

He sees the play (about Annie Sullivan's struggle to help Helen Keller) as an illumination of the courage and indomitable spirit that have allowed mankind to surmount fantastic difficulties throughout the ages.

"Contrary to what some people may suppose," he comments, "it is not gruelling or sombre in its total impact. In fact it is turning out to be a warm, exhilarating experience, because that is the way we see it."

Tuesday, Feb. 7 through Saturday, Feb. 11, 8:30, McPherson Playhouse: Naden Amateur Concert Society present Gilbert and Sullivan's The Pirates of Penzance.

Sailors To Turn Pirates

Following last year's resoundingly successful production of HMS Pinafore, the Naden Amateur Concert Society will present Gilbert and Sullivan's Pirates of Penzance at McPherson Playhouse Feb. 7 to 11.

Well-known Victoria soprano Ruth Champion will sing the leading female role of Mable but most of the rest of the cast are Naval or Dockyard personnel.

LUSTY ROLE

Dockyard employee Ray Middleton's fine baritone will be heard, for example, in the lusty role of the Pirate King, and "Major-General Stanley" will be played by Major Alex Cumming of the naval establishment.

Major Cumming, who directed Pinafore, is also staging Pirates.

A Pacific Command talent show triggered the birth of the Naden Amateur Concert Society. This will be its third production.

Lt.-Cmdr. Tudor Jones is the musical director of the current effort.

Special Title For '67 Thaw

The traditional Canadian satirical revue show, Spring Thaw, will cross Canada under a special title this year.

My Country ... What's It To You? starts its annual trek in Charlottetown, PEI, next Friday. Six weeks later it will arrive in Victoria when it will be seen at McPherson Playhouse March 7.

The show will feature Barbara Hamilton, Peter Mews, Dean Regan, Don Harron (its author), Diane Nyland, Catherine McKinnon and several more.

With everyone getting understandably serious about Centennial Year, Spring Thaw taking its habitual cock-eyed, tongue-in-cheek view of history, will add a welcome note of zany humor.

GOSLEY SEARCHING FOR SMILE TALENT

Auditions for the 1967 Smile Show will be held Feb. 15 at 7:30 p.m. in the School of Theatrical Arts, 1318 Broad Street.

A seven-week run is planned for the 15th summer of the popular show and Jerry Gosley is looking for the opportunity to introduce new talent among instrumentalists and entertainers with versatility.

GOOD BOOKS FOR CHILDREN

HIDDEN AMONG THE TRASH

Adventures of Tiddly Widdly Pit Pat and All That

Today we present the first of a series of articles on choosing books for children. Next month Mrs. Terry will discuss books for 7 to 11 year olds.

Reviewed by Judith Terry

Sooner or later everyone has to buy a book for a child, and the problem of choosing the right book has become a matter of some difficulty, if only because of the vast numbers of books involved. The children's book trade is doing roaring business, and although there are proportionately more good books available than ever before, there is also proportionately more trash.

Some beloved books are read over and over again; "My book and heart, shall never part" as the eighteenth-century New England Primer put it. In face of this devotion we ought to feel some responsibility, not in any way to censor what our children read, but simply to ensure that, when they feel like something better, it is there for the finding.

In this series of articles, besides reviewing new books, I shall suggest a number of titles which, though not necessarily recent, are still available; and I shall discuss in turn the needs of each age group, mentioning not only what is to be recommended but also what is to be avoided. I should like also to talk about some books by well-known authors of the past that deserve a little more attention, and about the new generation of children's writers.

If you are beginning a book collection for a child of say, two and a half, there is no better author to start with than Beatrix Potter. Hers are the classic first books, or indeed, first, second and third books, since they can be enjoyed equally by children and adults.

There are 23 books in the series, and if you haven't already begun collecting them (at $1.25 each they are not expensive) I would suggest starting with Appley Dapply's of Cecily Parsley's Nursery Rhymes, and progressing through the tales of Peter Rabbit and Tom Kitten to the longer tales of the Tailor of Gloucester and Samuel Whiskers (who wanted Tom Kitten made into a roly poly pudding). The tales are simple and imaginative.

●

What more natural, or more amusing, than that the trout who seizes Mr. Jeremy Fisher, the frog, should spit him out again because of the taste of his macintosh?

The language is equally appealing. On the whole it is simple, with a warmth that reaches out to each child individually, but there are touches of the quaint and unusual and an occasional long word or two, the experience of which children enjoy immensely.

Then there is Beatrix Potter's sure ear for the memorable refrain, which echoes all through one's childhood — the Puddleducks who march up the road, "pit pat, paddle pat! pit pat, waddle pat!" or Mr. Jackson, who expressed his tolerant disdain for the thistledown seed Mrs. Tittlemouse offers him for dinner by blowing it away, "Tiddly, widdly, widdly! Pouff, pouff, puff!"

●

If you compare this with another immensely popular series for small children, the Noddy books by Enid Blyton, it is evident how poverty-stricken these latter books are.

Someone said of Enid Blyton's style that it is "drained of all difficulty until it achieves a kind of aesthetic anaemia."

The names invented for the inhabitants of Toy Town — Mr. Plod, Miss Fluffy Cat, Mr. Wobbly-Man — reflect the dearth of imagination or skill in the depiction of the characters themselves. It is evident from sales that Miss Blyton knows, as she claims, exactly what children like.

Perhaps if she were a more responsible writer she would add to that knowledge her own knowledge of what is good. As it is she churns out ten thousand words a day and at one time was producing 200 books a year. My heart sinks as I see the notice at the end of each Noddy volume "Look out for the next Noddy book." I can only applaud those libraries in England which have banned her books.

No one has equalled Beatrix Potter's achievement, though there have been many imitators. Alison Uttley, however, who has produced many good books for children of all ages, has a good series called the Little Grey Rabbit books, published by Collins. These are similar to the Potter books in layout and design, and the tales are charming, though probably too long for anyone younger than five to concentrate on.

●

The author who seems most likely to achieve the lasting popularity of Beatrix Potter is Dr. Seuss. His imaginatively absurd rhymes and pictures delight children and parents equally. My own favourites among these are Green Eggs and Ham, Hop on Pop and Horton Hatches the Egg. Seuss style resembles that of P. D. Eastman, the author of several excellent books including Are You My Mother?

Books for young children are inclined to get rough handling. If you want something for the baby who likes to look at pictures by himself sometimes, the Golden Shape books, available in supermarkets, are quite sturdy, and since they cost only 39 cents, it doesn't matter too much if he wants to tear them up and eat them as well as read them.

In fact the productions of the Golden Press are often worth looking at. They do vary immensely in quality, but if you search carefully you can often find something worthwhile, and they are cheap. I have just come across a particularly good Golden "Read-it-yourself" Book called The King Who Learned to Smile. The particularly bad ones are often those copyright to Walt Disney; although he produced some splendid films in his time, his books are usually very poor. This is no doubt because when static his cartoons lose all their charm; but perhaps the big business empire he built up was also partly responsible for his low standards.

The latest example of this can be seen in Disney's adaptation of Winnie the Pooh. He was shrewd enough not to move very far away from the classic illustrations by E. H, Shepard, but just compare Disney's pictures with Shepard's. The vulgarisation; the reduction of the extraordinary to the ordinary, is what I have come to expect of Disney books.

For obvious reasons the illustrations are often more important than the text in books for children of this age. Printing techniques have improved so much in the years since the war that picture books are now more diverse and exciting than ever before. They seem to fall into approximately two groups; those with wildly flamboyant and exhilarating color, and those in a neo-Victorian style, meticulously fine dense lines, sometimes washed over with color. One of the leading exponents of the first style is Brian Wildsmith.

His Mother Goose, ABC and versions of the fables of La Fontaine are beautiful, and would make superb additions to any child's collection. A recent production which belongs to this group is a book written and illustrated by Victor G. Ambrus. The Three Poor Tailors. The use of color is rich and vivid, and the droll characters of the tailors who ride to inspect the sights of the nearby town on the back of a nanny-goat are amusingly drawn and differentiated. Based on an old folk tale it is told simply and with humor. It is a lovely book, and well deserves the Kate Greenaway Medal which it was awarded in 1966.

Two of the artists who often draw in the neo-Victorian style are Edward Ardizzone and Maurice Sendak. Edward Ardizzone's Tim books are splendid for little boys who like exciting adventure stories. They move through thrills to the warm and comfortable climax in a properly abbreviated way, and the pictures, both plain and colored, are plentiful.

A little book called Penny by Beatrice Schenk de Regniers and Marvin Bileck also belongs to this group. I like its small size. There are too many huge picture books whose spines invert like roof-ridges over small knees, frustrating the reader and making it only too easy to tear the pages. Bileck's drawings for Penny are charming: a kind of spidery tracery washed over with subdued pastel shades of pink, brown and green. And the decorated capitals are pleasing. The fault I find is with the story.

It is the Thumbelina story, so little changed that it is almost piracy. There are changes in detail, but the bones of the story are exactly those of Hans Andersen's, and I cannot see that Miss de Regniers has at all justified her re-telling it. It is well-produced but costly at $4.95. If you like the Thumbelina story then I would look first at the Andersen version, published by Scribners, with delightful illustrations by Adrienne Adams.

If Maurice Sendak's name is on a book it is usually a sign of quality. I have recently read several Little Bear books that he has drawn to Else Holmelund Minarik's texts, in the Harper and Row "I can read" series. These are excellent in all respects. The bears seem to live and move on the page, dressed up as they are, and pictures and text alike are full of that spirit of warmth, security and affection which invests the simplest pleasures with great joy.

My experience of this "I can read" series has been altogether satisfactory. If you have a little boy of a practical bent, try the "What do they do?" books within this series, by Carla Greene and Leonard Kessler. These deal with soldiers, sailors and railroad engineers among others, and may save you answering a lot of questions.

The books I have mentioned are of course only a fraction of the ones available. Since I shall be dealing next time with the 7-11 age group, I will end by naming a few other titles well worth considering if your child is pre-school age or just beginning to read:

●

Virginia Lee Burton, Mike Mulligan and His Steam Shovel.

James Thurber, Many Moons.

Ezra Jack Keats, John Henry.

Herge, King Ottokar's Sceptre, and the other Tin-Tin books.

Morris Sendak, Where The Wild Things Are.

Marcia Brown, Cinderella.

Ludwig Bemelmans, Madeline and the Gypsies.

PROFESSOR MAKES CASE FOR U.S. IN VIETNAM

REVOLUTION AND RESPONSE, ed., Charles Hanly; McClelland and Stewart; 142 pp.; 1966; $2.50.

MUST THE WEST DECLINE? by Lord Harlech; Columbia, 1966. 62 pp.; $3.50.

Reviewed by Richard Gravil

During 1966 the complex and bewildering events in Asia, Africa and Latin America, together with signs of increasing restraint and respect in relations between the West and the U.S.S.R., made the language of simple cold-war hostility seem increasingly crude and irrelevant.

These two books offer powerfully contrasting approaches to present-day international relations. The first is a fascinating record of the 1965 International Teach-in at Toronto University, and the second, a single-minded survey by a former British ambassador to Washington.

Professor Hanly has collected a series of talks which form an engaged and enlightening debate. In the opening section Z. K. Brezinski, professor of government at Columbia, and Vadim Nekrasov of Pravda offer opposing perspectives on ideological conflict. The ideals they express are not too far apart, and both, refreshingly, readily admit past mistakes. But Brezinski seems to need more sophistry to reconcile principle with the policy he defends.

●

The difference of attitude is much greater in the exchange on the Alliance for Progress.

Then Vietnam is discussed by Professor Scalapino of Berkeley, a noted Kremlinologist, whose case for American involvement is more nearly persuasive than any I have seen, and by the Rt. Hon. Phuong Margain of Cambodia.

Again, it is not on principles that the protagonists differ, but on facts.

Mr. Margain's extremely moving speech is perhaps the most significant chapter in the book. We have it on Scalapino's authority that Cambodia — and Prince Sihanouk in particular — have much to lose from Chinese domination of Asia. It is all the more impressive, then, to follow Margain's exposition of Cambodia's staunch opposition to U.S. involvement. The lengthy quotations from Prince Sihanouk's own proposals give a clear view of the political realities which the U.S. must learn to face.

Three submissions on self-determination conclude the discussions on foreign affairs: an exposition of African diplomatic concepts; a brilliant Marxist study of neo-colonialism and debilitating "aid" from the former vice-president of the French National Assembly; and a long-term view of Western policy in the Far East by Patrick Gordon Walker. Mr. Gordon Walker's case for involvement until the East develops its own "balance of power" presents a sort of thinking man's guide to what Western intentions in that area might be — if kindly construed.

GORDON WALKER
. . . views on Far East

Perhaps the most stimulating part of this book is the final debate in which Canada's most redoubtable conservative, George Grant, discusses the value of protest with Lord Fenner Brockway and an American activist. Professor Lynd, of Yale, uses the U.S. Nuremberg philosophy of individual responsibility to support his view that non-violent disobedience is a part of the democratic process.

He finds an ally in Professor Grant of McMaster; "How can a conservative not feel sympathy with the outrage of the new left against the emptiness and dehumanization that this society produces?" His address makes some stimulating observations on the role of Liberalism, Technology, the Social Sciences and the Universities in the process of trivializing our society.

●

Clear ideological differences exist in the book, yet cold-war mythology is kept to a minimum on all sides and the result is an encouraging exercise in international dialogue — which, of course, was the object of the teach-in.

But where Revolution and Response buries the platitudes and myths of the last decade, Must the West Decline? enshrines them. Using the freshness of Professor Hanly's book as a yardstick one soon locates the besetting vices of Lord Harlech's approach.

At his most engaging he is still thoroughly paternalist (referring, for example, to nations who feel they are exploited) and assured of the West's superiority. He evokes the Judeo-Christian-Hellenic tradition of the West, which he associates unapologetically with the cold war — and curtly dismisses the claims for the truth of Eastern philosophies.

He believes the major challenge to the West is still the Soviet military threat. And he resorts to the simple equation of Communism with "materialism" and the denial of value in human life — whereas the West, of course, is the repository of spiritual values and human sanctity.

His language is that of cold-war demagogy. Communism, he says, has been "riveted on the long-suffering Russian people" (page 8) by a "ruling gang" (page 28) which has "blinkered and dragooned" previously "free man" (pg 39) and which threatens for us a "long night of enslavement under a ruthless materialistic creed" (page 62). Such diction could not have survived the honest truth-seeking atmosphere of the Toronto teach-in.

●

The logic with which he pursues his argument is less than adequate. Consider his views on nationalism. The same phenomenon — resurgent aspirations to national sovereignty — is used to prove on the one hand that France and other vainglorious European nations are threatening the inherently noble Western "community," and on the other hand that heroic rising nationalism in Eastern Europe shows the inadequacy of the Communist "monolith."

Paternalism and superficiality are joined by arrogance. He ascribes Khrushchev's Cuba "climbdown" purely to Soviet military inferiority, and elsewhere enlists God on our side: "the ecumenical movement . . . heralds the arrival of reinforcements for our society on the spiritual front."

Lord Harlech's vision for the future of the West involves an impregnable alliance between a United Western Europe and "a United States of America and Canada" from which the West's way of life could be exported to the world.

He has good ideas on a new international reserve unit of currency, and on aid, but one's over-all impression is that Lord Harlech's ideas — and his view of realities — do not belong to the sixties, however well received they may have been by his Columbia audience. It would not be unfair, I think, to follow his example in quoting his family motto: "Late, but in earnest."

On Obscenity

There is no such thing as a moral or an immoral book. Books are well written, or badly written.—Oscar Wilde.

Levenson's Play on Words Soon Becomes Pun-ishing

EVERYTHING BUT MONEY, by Sam Levenson. Simon and Schuster, New York. 285 pp. $6.25.

Reviewed by Marion White Jenkins

Despite the material poverty of his childhood and the spiritual poverty of the middle-class world into which he grew, Sam Levenson, in his sometimes humorous, but more often didactic, autobiography, stresses the idea that it is "Better to light a candle than curse the darkness."

This adage is continually reflected in his parent-centred, education-conscious home with its material deprivations, and in his experiences as father, teacher and homely philosopher living in a society with middle-class values which are badly in need of reform.

As the youngest child in a family of eight children living in a tenement section of New York, the adult Levenson reminisces about his childhood and the standards set for him by his parents, who followed their own practical philosophy, rather than depending on theories of modern psychology.

In an environment in which material things were desired but not possible, the Levenson code was to make use of what one had, whether it was brains, talent, love, or those everyday oddments that might be made useful: newspapers were used for everything from "lining drawers, making hats, corking bottles, covering books, making dress patterns to a means of punishment." At first such details are amusing, but as they become more frequent, the book dissolves into a series of lists, and our interest soon begins to flag.

In this series of reminiscences, one learns little about the actual people in his life, except by the author's general comments about them — that his brothers and sister became successful in spite of their material disadvantages.

NAME STANDS OUT

The only character who really stands out is Mama Levenson, who is described clearly and colorfully. She is not portrayed as the modern mother with Dr. Spock in one hand and a child psychology book in the other, but as a domestic, hard-working, loving mother with her own instinctive philosophy on how to raise children.

A basic tenet of this philosophy was to rid the house of all traces of dirt; in modern terms, she is the compulsive housekeeper. "Her fight against dirt was based upon the premise that circumstance makes poor, but people make dirt, and that if everyone cleaned his own house inside and out, the whole world would be clean."

Levenson's colloquial language is colorful, but his play on words, which is at first humorous, dwindles, with repetition, into monotony: "I had no idea, for instance, that I was entitled to a bed of my own. It was obvious to an ordinary kid like me that the more kids you slept with the more fun you had in bed. I figured that was what they meant by 'bedlam.' I didn't know that beds were supposed to be soft. To me 'bed and board' meant one and the same thing."

Also, he uses familiar contemporary terms to define personal situations, "When in doubt the neighbors were called in — socialized medicine," but the vivid details of these experiences are usually far more amusing than the punning definitions which sum them up: "It was quite a traumatic experience to be lying in bed surrounded by a tribe of lady medicine men in kitchen aprons calling out cures: 'Make him vomit, suck a lemon, breathe into a paper bag, etc.' "

●

In the second half of the book, Levenson, as an adult, now removed from the tenements and placed in a middle-class environment, reflects more seriously on the old vs. the new values and comes to the conclusion that the old values instilled in him as a child still continue to shine for him as a light in the darkness of a complex, modern world.

The modern mother is bewildered, "outer-directed," no longer dependent on maternal instincts and common sense, unlike his own mother and mothers of the past like her.

'GET INVOLVED'

He also offers solutions to current problems, particularly the stifling of the individual in educational systems and man's lack of true freedom. His advice, in the form of an address to his children, is "Do not 'play it cool.' Get involved. Now is the time for all good men to come to." Levenson's moral and social criticisms, in addition to his suggestions for improvement, however, are all too familiar, and the tone finally becomes that of a sermon, distracting from what this autobiography could have been — a lively depiction of a struggling family attaining their goals. Nevertheless, the book is at the top of the U.S. best-seller list. It is obvious that today's reader still likes to hear advice based on other people's experiences.

OUTRAM'S POETRY DOESN'T ENTIRELY SATISFY

Pleasant, Polished, Passionless

EXSULTATE, JUBILATE: by Richard Outram; Macmillan Company of Canada, 1966. $4.25.

Reviewed by Grant McOrmond

Richard Outram, a Canadian poet, was born in Oshawa, Ont., and now makes his home in Toronto. He was educated at the University of Toronto.

His Eight Poems appeared in 1959. Exsultate, Jubilate, his second volume, contains some 60 poems, all of them short. It is divided into four sections: "Mute Woman," "Widdershins," "Primer" and "Exsultate, Jubilate."

Outram's poems concern themselves with the common experiences of life, as in his "Charm for Martha," beginning, "Who is there? Martha Fleming? Is she fair? Past telling?" or his "Wineglass and Candelabra."

Here is a poet attempting to convey his own sense of the mystery of life, his intense awareness of beauty, and to resensitize his readers to the wonders of creation.

However, the simplicity, grace and beauty of Richard Outram's poetry is not entirely satisfying.

Some readers' reactions may be tempered by the realization that Outram's art lacks originality and passion, though it is both pleasant and polished.

In theme and tone his poetry resembles that of Blake; his language reminds one of the Imagists. The end result is a collection of verse that fails to etch itself upon the mind or the emotions.

Exsultate, Jubilate is an extremely attractive book in its outward appearance.

It is unfortunate that the contents are not as satisfying to the mind as the volume is to the eye.

A Gentle, Devastating Voice

HOME FREE, by George Johnston. Oxford University Press, 1966. $4.25.

Reviewed by G. V. Downes

George Johnston is one of my favorite poets, but trying to define his work is like going to catch a falling star. His quiet personal blend of lyricism, irony and satire is unique, and although he strikes no poses, his gentle voice is far more devastating than the shouts of better-known literary figures.

At the basis of his work is a strain of pure lyricism, even mysticism, which puts him in the company of Herbert and Herrick. But he rarely speaks directly in this vein.

His acute sensibility to the strains and anguish of the human condition is expressed, rather, in deceptively simple satiric verse about characters called Sadie and Daisy and Edward and Mrs. McGonigle.

The pure fun of these poems, the strong rhythms which carry the reader from verse to verse, almost make one forget that the poet is projecting a vision of Heaven and Hell onto the contemporary Ottawa scene.

One forgets too, that he is one of the most accomplished practitioners of verse in Canada.

The subtle use of accented and unaccented syllables, pauses, and particularly the stresses of familiar speech, give his work a personal flavor which is inimitable.

Individuality but Compatibility . . . . . . That's Architectural Intent at Uvic

No single style dominates the architecture of the University of Victoria.

Some observers say the variety of approach in building design is like an "architectural Irish stew".

Architect R. W. Siddall, who is general consultant to the university, says the intent has been to create a homogeneous campus character. Buildings have individual styles but are compatible with one another.

Photo No. 1 shows one of the two latest additions to the campus, the Education and Arts Building. It was designed by J. Alan Hodgson, of Victoria, and features big, bold forms using exposed materials with emphasis on massing. Above it in separate picture is a close-up of wooden sunshades on its windows, which makes an interesting pattern of light and shadow. They are referred to by some members of faculty and students as "the horse blinkers".

Photo No. 3 is the McPherson Library, designed by the general consultant, Mr. Siddall. It has a simplified modern form. Precast concrete facade, designed by Vancouver sculptor George Norris, has been made an integral part of the structure. A study of the facade is given in the upper photo. It was intended to be purely decorative — a study in forms.

Photo No. 4 shows one of the Women's Residences, also designed by Mr. Siddal. It is of modest design, to form part of the college complex that is now on the drawing boards. This building will be only a small part of the complex.

Photo No. 5 is view of the Social Sciences Building in which Victoria architect John Di Castri has taken an organic approach in his design. This building has just been opened.

Photo No. 6 shows entrance to the Elliott Science Building, which was designed by the B.C. Department of Public Works.

Decline Snaps Three-Week Rally in Toronto Trading

By LARRY DWORKIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Despite some discouraging news for Canada's stock exchanges this week, investors maintained their composure and prices closed with only moderate losses.

The decline snapped a three-week rally and the Toronto exchange's industrial index, key indicator of the market's performance, dropped 1.37 to 157.51. It fell 1.19 to 159.04 at Montreal.

At mid-week the U.S. treasury asked Congress to double the interest-equalization tax. The effect would be that U.S. purchasers of most Canadian stocks would have to pay a 30-per-cent tax instead of 15.

The immediate reaction was a heavy sell-off which resulted in the Toronto index suffering its heaviest loss since Oct. 1. But by Friday the market began to trim its losses.

The tax should have little effect because there has been almost no U.S. participation in Canadian markets since the 15-per-cent tax was first imposed in 1963.

However, investors received some encouraging news when Chase Manhattan Bank announced it was cutting its prime interest rate on business loans to 5½ per cent from 6.

The Bank of Canada announced Friday night it would reduce its interest rate to 5 per cent from 5¼ effective Monday.

At Toronto, International Minerals fell 3¼ to 43¾ and Harding Carpets A 2½ to 29 after the company said it doesn't expect its 1967 growth to be as good as it was in 1966. Algoma Steel dropped 1½ to 24.

Maclean-Hunter gained 4 to 38, B.C. Forest 2 to 23½, Avco 2½ to 30 and General Developments 1½ to 8½.

Western oils, one of the few groups with a high percentage of U.S. participation, tumbled four points on index to 141.38. However, the group recovered a large portion of its losses Friday.

Scurry-Rainbow declined 1½ to 22½, Union 1⅛ to 35, Home A 1 to 25 and Great Canadian Oil Sands 1 to 11.

NORANDA GAINED

Noranda, which recently increased its Canadian price of copper to 47¼ cents a pound, advanced 1⅜ to 57⅞ in base metals.

Denison retreated 2¼ to 55, Pine Point 1½ to 49½ and Rio Algom 1 to 24.

Golds continued to decline in reaction to France's announcement that it had abandoned its position for an immediate increase in the price of gold.

Hollinger was down 1¼ to 23½ and Kerr Addison ½ to 12¾.

PNE ENJOYS BIGGEST YEAR

VANCOUVER (CP) — Officials of the Pacific National Exhibition were told Friday that last year was the most successful ever for the fair.

At the year's end, the net loss for 1965 of $14,000 had been turned into an operating profit of $138,000, honorary treasurer W. M. Anderson told the annual meeting.

A major reason for the success was increased gate admissions during the fair, he said.

Shortage Of Wood Warning

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada will face a wood shortage after 1975 unless immediate steps are taken to improve forest policies and management techniques, R. M. Fowler, president of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association, said Friday.

He told the association's annual meeting that estimates indicate world need for pulpwood will rise to 27,000,000 cunits in 1975 from 17,000,000 in 1965.

The total for the year 2000 would be 92,000,000 cunits.

A cunit represents 100 cubic feet of solid wood.

The Canadian pulp and paper industry would be able to meet demands to 1975, but it may be a "tight fit," Mr. Fowler said.

"The changes in demand will, in a few years, tax forest resources to full capacity and Canada will face a shortage of wood, unless we move quickly towards better forestry legislation, improved silviculture and protection and grow the wood we need."

However, there was little indication that this sort of action was being taken.

Mr. Fowler said pulp and paper production was moving into the hands of large international companies.

"If we are not willing or able to accept forest investment in this industry, it will go elsewhere, and growth based on Canadian efforts alone will be much slower.

"We must be on our guard against nationalistic notions that would limit the inflow and lead to retaliation against the outflow."

Underwriting Set by Bata

VANCOUVER (CP) — An underwriting with options covering 600,000 shares of Bata Resources at prices ranging from $1 to $1.50 has been completed with H. H. Hemsworth and Co., the Vancouver Stock Exchange announced Friday.

CONSTRUCTION

Cut Instability Industry Told

TORONTO (CP) — John Deutsch, chairman of the Economic Council of Canada, says Canada's construction industry needs to reduce instability in its economic growth.

Speaking to 700 delegates at the 49th annual convention of the Canadian Construction Association, he emphasized a point made in the ECC's third annual review last November — that the industry needs steadier growth and less of a boom-bust atmosphere.

Governments now account for 50 per cent of Canada's construction spending so there is no reason why proper planning can not be built into the industry, he said.

Peter D. Dalton, new president of the association, said government should pay more attention to the construction industry. "They should tell us what they are going to do before they do it, not afterwards

"Governments should have a five-year plan for the industry which could be reviewed on a yearly basis."

Rumor Opens Run on Bank In Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Members of Montreal's Greek community "appear to have regained confidence" in the Montreal City and District Savings Bank and have started redepositing some of the $2,500,000 withdrawn Thursday, a bank spokesman said Friday.

The spokesman credited Finance Minister Sharp, Louis Rasminsky, governor of the Bank of Canada, and the Greek consul in Montreal with stopping the rumors about the bank.

The heavy withdrawals started at five branches in the Greek district after rumors spread that the bank was going bankrupt.

Armored trucks were used to haul $5,000,000 in small bills to the five besieged branches to meet the demand.

No one among the Greek community seemed to know how the rumor had started.

However, bank officials said Friday many of their patrons have returned their deposits and withdrawals have diminished "to a trickle."

MACMILLAN BLOEDEL LIMITED

NOTICE OF DIVIDEND NO. 92B

At a meeting of the board of directors held on the 25th January, 1967, a quarterly dividend of thirty cents (30c) per share was declared payable on the issued Ordinary shares of the Company in Canadian funds on the 15th March, 1967, to shareholders of record as of the 13th February, 1967, and to holders of Ordinary share warrants.

Said dividend will be paid at par in respect of the Ordinary shares specified in any Bearer Share Warrant of the Company upon presentation and delivery of Coupon No. 92B on or after the 15th March, 1967, at any branch of The Bank of Montreal in Canada (far Northern points excepted) or at the Offices of Agency, Bank of Montreal, New York, or Bank of Montreal (San Francisco), San Francisco, or at the First National Bank of Chicago, Chicago.

By order of the Board.

Mobility Program May Be Extended

TORONTO (CP) — The federal manpower mobility program may be extended to cover workers about to become unemployed through planned layoffs in companies cutting back on or going out of production.

Manpower Minister Marchand said, in a speech before the York-Scarborough Liberal Association Friday, he believes the whole mobility program could be made "more realistic" by removing the present four-month unemployment clause.

"This program is by no means completely effective when you consider that we expected to spend some $3,500,000 on mobility in the first 10 months of operation but succeeded in putting out only $90,000," he said.

The mobility program, which went into effect a year ago, provides grants or loans to unemployed workers to help them move to a place where they can get work.

BUSINESS VIEWS

Home Ownership Poor Investment

By AB KENT
Business Editor

Victoria's plight in the squeeze of municipal financing was outlined by Mayor Hugh Stephen at a service club meeting this week.

KENT

His aim was to force more attention to the problem by senior governments, who have failed to offer local governments new revenue sources or expansion of existing sources to properly fill requirements.

But an example he gave should be of interest to the investor generally, and that boils down to this: Putting capital into a home and property is a poor investment compared with the benefits to be had in such other sources of income as high-yielding bonds.

Property tax provides 55 per cent of civic revenue, the mayor said. The base upon which it is levied is unchanged in proportion to added reponsibilities.

The mayor argues that in the period 1961-65 taxable assessments have risen 9 per cent compared with 22 per cent in tax payments.

Since 1945 per capita tax has gone up 500 per cent and per capita assessments have risen just 268 per cent.

In a squeeze of this kind it is the mill rate that must give, and since 1945 it has risen from 42 to 62.5 mills, the mayor said.

He illustrates further:

"Let us take a modest home with a value on today's market of $20,000. We will assume the land is valued at $4,000 and the improvements at $16,000.

"At current rates the tax on this property will amount to $500. Ignoring for the moment the homeowners grant, this means the tax becomes in essence an annual levy on capital of 2½ per cent.

"Let us assume that instead of investing in real estate our homeowner had placed his $20,000 in 6 per cent bonds yielding an annual income of $1,200.

"His $500 on property tax may now be seen to be the equivalent of a tax of almost 42 per cent on income.

"At what point, it is fair to ask, does a tax of this severity become a disincentive to property ownership or property improvement?"

The mayor feels that for Victorians the alternative of putting property dollars into more lucrative areas is a distinct attraction.

Incidentally, without the homeowner grant to property owners — replaced by equivalent grant to the city — council could reduce the mill rate by 9 per cent and so benefit all taxpayers, he pointed out.

A flood of several dozen complaints has been received by the Better Business Bureau regarding a form of soliciting business by mail from outside the province.

BBB warns businessmen to be wary of invoice-type requests for payment for advertising or company listing in business directories that were not ordered originally.

Recent "look-alike" forms have come from Edmonton and Los Angeles, purporting to be billing for $20, $56 and $68 respectively.

"I suggest anyone who gets these things file them in the garbage," said BBB manager William Tindall.

As forecast in its annual report, Craigmont Mines Ltd. will close its open pit copper operation at Merritt at the end of February, laying off 110 men.

This will leave a work force of about 440 to operate the mill using about 5.3 million tons of stockpiled ore, and to convert the operation to underground block-caving.

This highly mechanical type of mining uses trackless drill and haulage units, which have been delivered to the site ready for use in late summer or fall.

Mayfair Moly Mines Ltd. is making its first public offering of shares to finance the first part of a two-stage development program near Alice Arm.

The company is selling 30,000 shares at 35 cents to yield $105,000.

Consultant Dr. H. A. Quinn recommends $82,265 be spent on prospecting, mapping and magnetic survey on 160 claims stretching some four miles between the Illiance and Dak rivers less than three miles east of Alice Arm.

Mineral finds there go back to the First World War and include copper, molybdenum, gold, silver, lead, zinc, arsenic, iron and other metals.

Nearby properties include B.C. Molybdenum, Highland Bell, Newmont and Sileurian Chieftain.

Dr. Quinn suggested $286,270 be spent on the second stage for follow-up work and drilling.

Bank Agencies To End Problem?

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government may yet pacify the American government over its new banking legislation without backing down on the Mercantile affair.

Finance Minister Sharp said last Oct. 5 that his mind is open on the subject of allowing foreign banks to establish agencies in Canada.

He has said nothing on the subject since. But the appropriate time comes up Thursday, when he is expected to announce further amendments to the Bank Act.

It will be his first appearance before the Commons finance committee since the committee began study of the current Bank Act revision.

RECIPROCITY

Foreign bank agencies in Canada would give the American banks reciprocity for the important operations of Canadian agencies in New York City.

The step would not require Mr. Sharp or Prime Minister Pearson to go back on repeated rejections of any change in the amendment applying to the Mercantile Bank of Canada.

In a radio interview Friday night Mr. Pearson said:

"We are in a very strong position in Canada on this matter. We intend to maintain this position."

He said the Mercantile issue is not a question of economic nationalism but of Canadian control over banks in Canada and the need to ensure there is no concentration of ownership beyond 25 per cent.

EXCEEDED MARK

As a wholly-owned subsidiary of the First National City Bank of New York, Merantile will be required to keep its assets at a level only 20 times its authorized capital and it has already exceeded this mark.

Only by selling 75 per cent of its shares can Citibank qualify the small institution for further growth.

Citibank has said it is not interested in operating only agencies in Canada. And it says it cannot see how 25-per-cent ownership in Mercantile would be worthwhile.

James P. MacFadden, Mercantile president and a Citibank vice - president, doubts there would be buyers for the shares, but Finance Minister Sharp does not agree.

He said Thursday night in a CBC television interview "quite a number of people" have told him they would like to buy Mercantile stock.

"I think it's a very saleable proposition."

Federal Surplus Reported

OTTAWA (CP)—A federal surplus of $142,900,000 was reported Friday night for government financial operations in the first nine months of the fiscal year that began April 1, 1966.

Figures released by Finance Minister Sharp put budgetary revenues at $6,146,200,000 and expenditures at $6,003,300,000 for the nine-month period ending Jan. 1, 1967.

In a supplementary budget Dec. 19, the finance minister said he expected total revenues in the 1966-67 fiscal year to be $8,260,000,000 and budgetary expenditures to be $8,580,000,000. This would mean a budgetary deficit for the year ending March 31 of $320,000,000.

REVENUES LOWERED

A 1966-67 surplus of $150,000,000 was forecast last March by Mr. Sharp in his main budget speech but he said in December it would be turned into a deficit because of a mid-summer 1966 business slump that lowered revenues and a number of new government programs that would increase spending.

The statement Friday gave budgetary revenues in the month of December as $811,600,000 and expenditures as $861,900,000, with a resulting deficit of $50,300,000.

This compared to December, 1965, revenues of $696,200,000 and expenditures of $683,000,000, with a $13,200,000 surplus.

Nine-month figures in the 1965-66 fiscal year were $5,724,000,000 in revenues and $5,192,100,000 in expenditures, with a surplus of $531,900,000.

INJUNCTION HALTS PROJECT PICKETING

POWELL RIVER (CP) — Work at a $22,000,000 addition to a pulp mill here resumed Friday after Judge Kirke Smith granted an injunction in Vancouver prohibiting picketing by a group of 40 iron workers.

The injunction was against the individual picketers, not the iron workers union.

The Supreme Court gave Elanders Installations Ltd., the injunction after lawyer Marshall Bray told the court the group had taken part in an illegal strike in defiance of the union local's officials.

RECORD GROWTH FOR B.C. TEL

VANCOUVER (CP) — B.C. Telephone had a record 761,129 telephones in service as of Dec. 31, 1966, company president J. Ernest Richardson disclosed Friday.

This was an increase of 7.3 per cent over 1965.

Average number of daily local calls during 1966 was 4,900,000, an increase of 400,000 over 1965.

The largest numerical increase in telephones came in the company's coastal division, which covers the Greater Vancouver and Fraser Valley areas, but the largest percentage increases occurred in the northern division, the northern two-thirds of the province.

Coastal division telephone gain was 30,449, bringing the year-end total to 489,331, up 6.6 per cent from the end of 1965.

In the northern division, which includes Prince George, the gain was 6,617 or 15.7 per cent, bringing the year-end total to 48,800.

The Island division, covering Vancouver Island and some upcoast mainland communities, had 151,872 telephones in service at year-end, a gain of 9,151 or 6.4 per cent from Dec. 31, 1965.

The interior division, which includes the East and West Kootenays and the Kamloops regions had 71,126 telephones in service at the end of 1966, up 5,348 or 8.1 per cent from a year earlier.

Bank of Canada Cuts Rate

OTTAWA (CP) — The Bank of Canada will reduce its interest rate to 5 per cent from 5¼ per cent effective Monday, signalling a general easing of credit.

The decision was announced Friday night by the bank's governor, Louis Rasminsky.

"This reduction in the bank rate should be taken as an indication of the bank's view that the recent easing of credit conditions is appropriate to Canada's domestic economic circumstances and its external financial position," he said in a statement.

The Bank of Canada rate had remained unchanged since March 14 last year, when it was increased to 5¼ per cent.

Interest rates on short-term credit have been cut recently by several lending institutions in Canada and the United States.

SETS TREND

The Bank of Britain trimmed its record 7 per cent rate to 6½ per cent Thursday. At the same time, the Chase Manhattan Bank, the second-largest commerical bank in the U.S., cut its prime rate for business loans to 5½ from 6 per cent.

The Bank of Canada rate applies only to deposits with the central bank by the chartered banks, but it usually sets the trend for the entire credit system in the country.

Premier Will Wait and See

Premier Bennett Friday night said it was unclear whether the Bank of Canada's reduction in interest rates on loans to chartered banks will ease general interest rates.

"It may or may not do anything. By itself, it's hard to tell," he commented after an announcement that the rate would go down to 5 per cent from 5¼ per cent.

"I would like to see the federal government announce a reduction in rates for housing, for small businessmen and for Industrial Development Bank loans," said Mr. Bennett.

"If they announced that, there would be some immediate effect.'

Attorney-General Robert Bonner said it was too early to tell how much impact the move will have but described it as "a step in the right direction."

Profits Jump

TORONTO (CP) — Shell Canada Ltd. reports estimated net earnings of $43,500,000 or $1.31 a class A share for 1966 compared with $34,200,000 or $1.03 in 1965.

The company said in a statement that increased refined product sales, higher prices for gasoline and sulphur and higher production or crude oil and natural gas liquids were the main factors contributing to the improvement in earnings.

LOOKS AT SPORTS

Two weeks ago our five-year-old opened the front door, bellowed "Hi! Mom! I'm home" and slammed the door. The second gesture was redundant, the first alone is enough to awaken the entire Russian infantry in the dead of night.

With the super-kinetic child it is not absolutely necessary to ask how things went at kindergarten. The procedure — the only procedure — is to sit down and wait for a torrent of dialogue. If you pay attention you may get part of it . . . if you're lucky.

"Charley came to school today!" she said in her best ultra-soprano.

"That's nice," we said. "Charley who?"

"Charley, the guinea pig," she said. "He's funny."

For the next few days we received daily reports on Charley. He was eating well and often. He was thriving on adulation. He apparently committed no major indiscretions when freed from his box.

A few days passed and when no more was mentioned of Charley we presumed that everything was A-OK.

Then one dripping, dew-ridden noon (aren't they all that way, madam?) she came home louder than usual. She didn't slam the door this time. She walked right through it.

"CHARLEY," she bombed out, "has babies. Four. Four babies!"

"He has?" I asked, spilling tomato soup all down my shirt.

"Yes," she said. "Charley's not Charley any more. He's Charlene!"

If things are not always as they seem, well, that's the way the guinea pigs bounce, I suppose.

Paige and Three Could Beat Nine

Thoughts of Charley (pardon, Charlene) rippled through my reminiscence this week when Leroy "Satchel" Paige visited the village. He came with the Harlem Globetrotters. As "business manager."

When he was introduced at Memorial Arena ("Now we want you to meet the great, the legendary Satch-el PAIGE!") there was a bare ripple of applause.

I found this disturbing. I wondered if the 5,000 present would have been so restrained if, say, Bobby Feller or Dizzy Dean had been introduced.

Years ago when I sported plus-fours (you can tell by that how many years ago) Satchel Paige was a kind of god to kids who played pickup baseball.

Feller and Dean received more publicity than Paige because they played in the big leagues. But from time to time there were stories (which I read eagerly when I was supposed to be occupied with Social Studies) of Paige.

The stories said that you could catch Paige in a rocking chair, meaning his control was near perfect; that his fastball moved so swiftly he once played with only a catcher, first baseman and one outfielder and still beat a nine-man team.

Doors Opened Too Late for Satch

I once asked my father why Paige didn't play in the majors.

My father explained that a Jim Crow law existed in baseball, although baseball owners never had the courage to put in in writing. Paige was a Negro; Jim Crow meant "No Negroes allowed."

Occasionally major league all-star (white) teams would play exhibition games against Paige's team (he was with Newark then) and Paige always muted their best bats.

When Branch Rickey made the noble experiment of breaching Jim Crow by using a Negro, Jackie Robinson, with Brooklyn, I thought sure Paige would follow. Then in day-to-day combat, it would be apparent if Paige was as good as he seemed.

But my father pointed out that baseball's doors of equality were opened too late for Paige. "He's an old man now," my father explained. "Too old for those kids."

Paige did get a chance, of course, years later. Bill Veeck signed him for Cleveland. But he appeared only in relief and very short relief too. Still he looked as if he belonged.

He later barnstormed, played a few summers on the Canadian prairies. Last year he went to Kansas City and pitched three scoreless innings against Boston Red Sox.

Most Great Ones Are Warm People

There is a tendency to equate greatness in athletics with greatness in street clothes. I don't mean greatness in terms of sheer awe but graciousness.

Out in the boondocks great athletes are rarely seen. But after talking to Stan Musial or Gordie Howe you come away thinking of them not so much as gifted artisans but warm people.

When I first met Paige this week, he was signing autographs. He wrote without expression, nor words to the faces around him. When he looked up and saw a boy who had returned a second time he said, unsmiling, "You're a hog, aren't you?" The boy blushed. "This one's for a friend," he said.

At half-time we went into a room off the Trotters' quarters. When a photographer asked him to stand up for a picture, Paige said: "What's the matter with you, man? You were out there the first half and you ignored me." The photographer explained that he couldn't shoot against a crowd backdrop.

He sat down and said, "Ask your questions."

Did he feel he was born 40 years too soon when he read that another Negro, Baltimore's Frank Robinson, had signed for $100,000?

"Naw," Paige said. "He ain't gonna get to keep more than a third of it. Uncle Sam gets the rest."

Campanella Only a Third-Stringer

But he can receive it because baseball no longer worries if a player is white, black, green or has hair down to his ankles.

"Didn't you, Satch, want to play against the best and not be confined to your race?"

"Who says the majors were the best?" Paige snapped. "I'll tell you how best the majors were. Roy Campanella was a third-string catcher in our league. Hardly got off the bench. Brooklyn brought him up and all of a sudden he's one of the best bats in the league. What's that prove?"

He paused and answered his own question. "It shows that we had the best pitchers and hitters."

He said the majors are even weaker today. "Aaron, Mantle, Mays, Willie Davis is the only stars they got."

Then he got up and left. Some of the Trotter contingent said he hadn't been feeling well lately. Maybe he just had one of those days.

Even so it made a man realize that with legends and guinea pigs, things are not always as they seem.

Blades Hustle To 6-1 Win At Los Angeles

Three days ago Victoria Maple Leafs headed for California thinking of second place in the Western Hockey League.

Today they are in danger of slipping out of the fifth position.

Leafs were again unable to find anything sunny about California Friday. They suffered their second straight defeat of their four-game safari when they were laced, 6-1, by the Blades in Los Angeles.

It was the second successive game in which the Victorians managed only one goal. Clipped, 3-1, at San Diego Wednesday, the Leafs couldn't match speed with the Blades before 3,806 fans Friday night and their defeat left them only one point in front of sixth-place Los Angeles.

Seattle Totems improved their fourth-place bulge over Victoria to three points Friday by whipping Oakland Seals, 5-2, in Seattle. The runner-up Vancouver Canucks remained six points ahead of the Leafs when they were nipped, 3-2, on home ice by Portland's front-running Buckaroos.

SERIES SQUARED

Squaring their season's series with Victoria at four victories each, the Blades were skating with relentless speed as they caught the Leafs with defensive troubles.

Coach Fern Flaman's Blades wasted little time in making life miserable for the visitors. They rapped in three goals in the first period, added two more in the second and wrapped it up with another tally in the third session.

Hopes flickered briefly for the Leafs in the second period when Bob Barlow followed up to slam a pass from Milan Marcetta behind goalie Jack Norris. However, the Blades needed only one minute to get that back through Murray Hall.

Willie O'Ree boosted the margin to 5-1 and Hall got his second goal of the night in the closing period to wrap up the assault against Victoria goalie Al Smith.

NORRIS ALERT

Mel Pearson, Leo LaBine and Tommy McVie counted for Los Angeles in the first period, in which the Leafs outshot the home club 11-9 but couldn't get any rubber behind an alert Norris.

Norris finished with a total of 25 saves while Smith blocked 27 shots.

Buckaroos maintained their mastery over the Canucks at Vancouver, as they boosted their league lead to 15 points. The Bucks have won seven and tied one of eight games against the Canucks this season.

Len Lunde, Bill Saunders and Cliff Schmautz scored for Portland and Ken Block fired both Vancouver goals.

TROUBLE IN NORTH

Seals, who have built up an impressive record in games against other California clubs, continued to have trouble in northern games.

They lost their fifth straight decision as the largest Seattle crowd of the season—9,752 fans—saw Totems score their sixth successive home-ice triumph.

Bill Dineen paced the Totes by scoring once in each period. Other Seattle goals came from Guy Fielder and Jim Powers.

Danny Belisle and Forbes Kennedy scored for the Seals in the second period to trim a Seattle lead to 3-2, but the Totems were in full command the rest of the way.

The Maple Leafs continue their rugged five-games-in-six-nights schedule tonight at San Diego and wind up their California safari at Los Angeles Sunday.

Surge in Second Half Gets Totems to Semis

REGINA—Visiting teams made mincemeat of their Saskatchewan opposition Friday in the opening round of the Centennial Luther invitational high school basketball tournament.

Sudbury Blue Devils defeated Saskatoon Redmen 71-45; Victoria Totems downed Regina Luther Lions 39-28; Raymond, Alta., Comets trounced Montreal Lakeshore Expos 61-31, and Winnipeg Glenlawn Lions whipped Regina Sheldon - Williams Spartans 57-42.

In championship semifinals today, Sudbury played Victoria and Raymond faced Winnipeg. The winners play tonight for the title.

In today's consolation round, Saskatoon met Regina Luther and Regina Sheldon-Williams took on Montreal.

The Comets, from the little southern Alberta town of Raymond, are the defending tournament champions, and have won it for the last three years. They had little trouble with Montreal.

Victoria, a pre - tournament favorite, had trouble with Luther Lions, trailing 19-15 at half time.

SERIES OF ERRORS

An offensive burst by Victoria early in the second half and a series of Luther errors gave the Totems their win.

Olie Moilanen scored 20 points for the winners.

Also scoring for the Totems were Len Roueche (9), Dexter Mason (4), Joe Teler (3), Greg Schroeder (2) and Barry Moen (1).

Ken Bryant fired 13 points for Luther College.

Totems were far from their best in the early stages but took command after the intermission as they controlled the ball with crisp passing.

They were expected to need their best today against Windsor in a game which brought together clubs with opposite styles. The Blue Devils are a free-wheeling club that revels in a wide-open game, while the Totems normally go after victories with hard-checking and tight ball control.

Winnipeg Glenlawn had been lightly regarded before the tournament, but got an early jump on Regina Sheldon - Williams. George Johnson sparked the Winnipeg attack with 21 points.

For Gary Smith, A Winning Debut

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Goaltender Gary Smith is a travelling man, both on and off the ice.

Smith, who has played in three hockey leagues this season, stunned National Hockey League fans while playing with Toronto Maple Leafs last month by skating to centre ice before passing the puck.

He returned to the American Hockey League Friday night after more than a month with Victoria Maple Leafs of the Western Hockey League and led Rochester Americans to a 7-1 rout over Buffalo Bisons.

Cleveland Barons defeated Providence Reds 4-2 in the other scheduled game.

Smith made 26 saves in his first game with Rochester since Nov. 1.

Bronco Horvath, Larry Hillman, Gerry Ehman, Don Blackburn, Mike Corrigan, Stan Smrke and Darryl Sly scored the Rochester goals. Wayne Larkin was the Buffalo marksman.

O'KEEFE'S OUTING POSTPONED AGAIN

For a second straight weekend, weather has forced Victoria O'Keefes to mark time in the team's efforts to regain first place in the Pacific Coast Soccer League.

Sunday's scheduled match with Vancouver St. Andrew's has been postponed because of saturated field conditions at Macdonald Park.

O'Keefes trail Columbus by one point but Victoria has a game in hand. The Vancouver team can add to its lead Sunday when it plays New Westminster Royals at Callister Park.

Also affected by recent rains is the District League schedule. Tally-Ho and Hourigan Kickers, originally scheduled to play at Central Park, will move instead to Beacon Hill Park to make up a first-division doubleheader. They'll meet at 12 noon. A game between Red Lions and Luckies will follow at 2 p.m.

PALMER TWO BEHIND

Massengale In Top Form

LOS ANGELES (CP) — The life and experiences of a professional golfer can be subject to change by the day and week, as Don Massengale can attest.

Massengale, a graduate of the sand greens of his native Jacksboro, Tex., and a former star golfer at Texas Christian University before he turned professional in 1960, was the leading man today going into the third round of the $100,000 Los Angeles Open.

Massengale now has his two best ever back-to-back rounds of 67-65 for a 36-hole score of 132, tying the tournament record set in 1956 by Lloyd Mangrum for the Rancho Golf Club course.

ARNIE TWO BEHIND

And he held a lead of two strokes over Arnold Palmer, 10 over National Open champion Billy Casper, and 11 over Jack Nicklaus.

This may seem heady stuff for the tall Texan, the defending Canadian Open champion, but he seemed unawed.

Palmer blasted out a seven under par 64 Friday. He finished ahead of Massengale, and it appeared the round would belong to Arnie and his army.

SHOOTS 65

But Massengale began to make noises with a 32 at the turn, and he came home in 33 for 65.

Five shots back of Massengale were the first round leader, Jacky Cupit, with 66-71; Bill Martindale and Gay Brewer, each 67-70, and Bert Yancey, 67-70.

Among those who failed to qualify for the final rounds—145 was the cutoff score—were two past winners here, Dow Finsterwald and Ken Venturi, as well as New Zealand's Bob Charles and George Knudson of Toronto.

Knudson shot 72 Friday but his 75 Thursday gave him a two-round total of 147.

Bill Ezinicki, former National Hockey League star with Toronto Maple Leafs, qualified for the final two rounds with 145.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Tax Court ruled Friday Paul Hornung, halfback of Green Bay Packers, must pay taxes on a sports car he received in 1962 from a sports magazine.

Hornung received the car — a 1962 Corvette — from the magazine after he was named the outstanding player in the National Football League championship game Dec. 31, 1961.

The court also ruled that Hornung did not have to pay taxes on two other cars that were furnished him by an automobile company for his use in Green Bay.

The court said also that Hornung does not have to pay taxes on a mink stole given to his mother by the Packers before the end of 1961.

Hornung had tried to prove that the Corvette was a gift from the magazine and not taxable under a provision of federal income tax law that exempts from taxation prizes given for educational, artistic, and civic achievement.

Judge Austin Hoyt said professional football cannot be viewed as an educational, artistic, or civic "field of endeavor as those terms are used in the statute no matter how fond of the sport we may be."

The Internal Revenue Service had charged that Hornung's income tax for 1962 was deficient in the amount of $3,163.76.

GRAHAM, PHILLIPS IN FRONT . . . . . . FALL COSTLY FOR COFFIN

Coast Skaters Cast Eyes on Vienna

TORONTO—Joni Graham and Don Phillips know it's a long way to Vienna from Vancouver, but they'd like to find out the exact distance.

You couldn't blame them for thinking about the trip after the Kerrisdale pair won the initial round in the senior dance competition at the Canadian figure skating championships.

Two dance teams will be picked at the close of competition Sunday to represent Canada at the world figute skating championships Feb. 28 March 5 at Vienna.

But Joni and Don have to compete in the freestyle dance final Sunday before they start packing their bags for the world finals. The initial round of four compulsory dances is worth 60 per cent of a dance team's final mark and the freestyle 40 per cent.

Joni, 18, and Don, 22, had four firsts in total ordinals and 142.0 points. Judy Henderson, 20, and John Baily, 22, both of Toronto, were right behind them with three firsts and 141.4 points. Maureen Peever of nearby Newmarket and Wayne Palmer of Toronto were third with 133.3 points. Another Vancouver pairing—Dale Newmarch, 14, and Brice Swetman, 28, socred 133.9 points but were placed fourth because Peever and Palmer had fewer total ordinal points.

The only national title decided Friday night was in junior men's competition.

Bob Emerson, 18, of Toronto came from behind to win it with a brilliant freestyle solo. He was in second place going into the final round, but the leader, David Coffin, 17, of Vancouver fell twice during his solo.

Emerson was awarded five firsts and 766.7 points while Coffin received 760.9 points. John McWilliams, 15, of Toronto was third with 732.0.

Earlier Betty and John McKilligan of Vancouver won the initial round in the senior pairs competition with 70.9 points. Anna Forder, 15, and Ricky Stephens, 18, both of Port Perry, Ont., were second.

Valerie Jones, 18, of Toronto, scored seven firsts in the compulsory figures to take the lead in the senior women's competition. The freestyle final will be skated Sunday.

Miss Jones, who finished second in women's national competition last year to Petra Burka of Toronto, was awarded 1041.1 points after the gruelling, six-figure competition.

Karen Magnussen, 14, of Vancouver, finished second with 976.2 points. Roberta Laurent, 17, of Toronto, had 982.4 points, but was placed third because Miss Magnussen had fewer points in total ordinals.

Nancy Greene says it bothers her to be singled out from the rest of the members on Canada's national ski team.

"We have some great kids on both our men's and ladies' team. It bothers me a little to be singled out like this."

Miss Greene, who has taken the European ski slopes by storm this year, added:

"There are so many others on the team who deserve the same treatment . . . . The others work every bit as hard and put in as much time."

The 23-year-old Rossland girl was the central figure when the team arrived in Vancouver this week and has been in the spotlight at various functions preceding this weekend's international ski meet at Whistler Mountain, about 70 miles north of Vancouver.

Miss Greene won four of seven races on the European circuit this year and is leading in the World Cup competition for individual performance by a female skier.

She has a comfortable lead over Annie Famose, 23, and Marielle Goitschel, both of the French national team, but these girls have remained in Europe to compete in events counting for World Cup points. The International this weekend, the first phase of an event that ends at Mont Orford, Que., next weekend, does not count toward the cup.

TUDORS TRIUMPH

Nick's Trio Not Enough

Nick Nicoletti blasted three goals in less than four minutes Friday night at the Sports Centre but his scoring outburst wasn't enough to get Armed Forces Combos home in front.

Tudor Monarchs had built up a 5-0 lead by the time Nick went to work in the second period, and the early margin enabled Tudors to hold on for a 9-5 Esquimalt Hockey League decision.

Victory kept Tudors within six points of the front-running University of Victoria Vikings, who collected their ninth win in 10 league starts by thumping Stockers North Americans, 7-3.

Bill Rudyk was the only Viking to score more than once, and his two tallies left him tied with club-mate Ted Sarkissian for second place in the league goal-scoring race, two goals behind Nicoletti, who now has 14.

Defenceman Steve Merriman was the Monarch leader with two goals and an assist. Dave Griff earned a goal and five assists with Tudors to take over fourth place in the scoring chase.

BOWLER OF WEEK

Commuter from Duncan, Ernie Moon, had hot touch in Mixed Classic League at Gibson's Recreations. Moon rapped pins for blistering 352-275-315—942 series to win men's fivepin award in 14th week of annual Bowler-of-the-Week contest. Weekly winners in 27-week Times contest will compete in Bowler-of-Year roll-offs in May.

Rapid Jim Ryun Goes to Portland

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Six world record holders will compete in the Oregon Indoor Invitational Track and Field Meet tonight at Portland's Memorial Coliseum.

One will be Jim Ryun, who has run the fastest mile and half mile, making one of his two indoor track appearances of the year.

Manchester Clubs Win As Cup Play Lures Fans

LONDON (CP) — Inside forward Denis Law sent favored Manchester United into the last 32 of the English Football Association Cup today—England's biggest soccer bonanza since the national team won the World Cup six months ago.

An estimated 1,000,000 fans poured into grounds all over England.

It was the biggest turnout for English third-round cup matches for about 12 years.

A crowd of 65,000 watched Manchester United one of the biggest crowd pullers — beat Stoke City 2-0.

Law, the £100,000 ($300,000) star, scored for Manchester against Stoke in the 35th minute. Then centre forward David Herd got another in the second half. Herd's shot went in off the post.

Manchester City, playing only a few miles away, defeated Leicester City 2-1 in one of Manchester's biggest soccer days in years. A total more than 100,000 watched the two games.

SCORED THREE

Geoff Hurst, who scored three goals in England's 4-2 victory over West Germany in the World Cup final, turned on his goal-scoring magic to save West Ham United's face against Third Division Swindon.

Hurst netted all his team's goals in a 3-3 draw against the underdog squad.

Tottenham Hotspur travelled to their near-London neighbors, Millwall, and was met by a sell-out crowd of 40,000.

The Second Division squad held the mighty stars of First Division Tottenham — Jimmy Greaves included—to a scoreless tie.

Tottenham could have taken the match when centre forward Alan Gilzean had a great chance. Greaves was waiting for a pass. Instead Gilzean let fly on a shot of his own and the ball hit Millwall's goalkeeper.

Glasgow Celtic was a first-round winner in Scottish Football Association Cup play, defeating Arbroath 4-0. Glasgow Rangers, however, fell 1-0 to Berwick Rangers.

Wildlife Picture Has Animals, Birds as Actors

Another of the Gordon Eastman wildlife films wil be presented in Victoria Feb. 14 and 15.

Scheduled for showing at Victoria High School, starting at 8 p.m., is the two-hour color film, "Adventures of the Great Outdoors." It will be the fifth successive year Eastman has presented a film in the city.

He has again combined hunting, fishing and wildlife in his latest film, which is made up of three stories—trophy mule deer hunting, Great Bear Lake fishing and "Innocent Adventure," a wildlife drama that has 20 animals and birds as its actors.

BIRDS WHIP HUSKIES

VANCOUVER (CP) — The University of British Columbia Thunderbirds defeated University of Saskatchewan Huskies 92-63 in an inter-collegiate basketball game Friday night.

Fraser Valley Squads Take Hoop Decisions

Visiting teams from the Fraser Valley flashed power in the home stretch Friday night and captured both decisions in high school boys' exhibition basketball games at Oak Bay Senior High School.

Despite a 26-point effort by Vancouver Island all-star Bill Robinson, Chemainus went down to a 66-61 defeat before Abbotsford Panthers.

In the second game, Oak Bay was clipped 44-39 by a hard-running North Surrey club.

Both Island teams reached the halftime intermission with a lead but couldn't contain their mainland rivals in the closing stages.

Tonight on the same floor, Chemainus will face North Surrey at 7 and Oak Bay will tackle Abbotsford at 8:30.

In a prelimary tussle Friday, Al Huddlestone scored 14 points to pace Oak Bay "B" to a 30-24 win over Colquitz Junior High.

ABBOTSFORD (66)—Larsen 8, Bryde 13, Bingham 8, Loewen, Wissen 16, Edgecumbe 6, Heibert, Bede 9, Dictcher 6, Roeske, Frienen.

CHEMAINUS (61)—Andruff, Francoeur, Watson, Macintosh, Harbo 16, Bayuk 1, Waller 6, Plester 12, Robinson 26.

NORTH SURREY (44)—Darryl Logan 7, Gary Youngman, Dan Howe 5, Eric Fran, Ron Rymer, Pat Therres, Gord Smith 16, Bill Mitchell, Jim Dudley, Rick Hawkins 4, Don Higham 12.

OAK BAY (39)—Don Burrows 9, Dave Wirtanen 8, Bill McCormick, Chris Hall, Dave Wallace 4, Paul Baines 5, Rory Walters, Terry Karpiak, Dave Green, Heinz Lissy, Dave Morgan 10.

Anglers' Meeting Slated for Feb. 4

Annual general meeting of the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association will be held on Saturday, Feb. 4, and not tonight, as previously reported.

Scheduled for the Ingraham Hotel, the meeting will start at 8 p.m. It will be preceded by a dinner at 6:30 and followed by a dance.

Annual meeting of the Chinook Club, an organization within the VSIAA, will also be held at the Ingraham on Feb. 25. It will follow the same format, with the meeting at 8 and dinner at 7.

THUNDERETTES WIN

CALGARY (CP) — The University of British Columbia Thunderettes downed the University of Calgary Dinettes 71-54 in a Western Canada intercollegiate women's basketball game Friday.

Clay Just Doesn't Qualify As Ring's Classic Example

NEW YORK (AP) — For the second time since it started making an annual award, Ring magazine has passed up naming a Fighter of the Year because it frowned on some of the non-boxing activities of heavyweight champion Cassius Clay.

The boxing monthly says that strictly on the basis of his ring achievements, which included five title defences during the year, Clay deserved the Fighter of the Year citation for 1966.

"The Fighter of the Year must by recognized as an example to the growing American boy," the magazine says adding that Clay did not qualify this year. It points out that Ring awarded Clay the citation in 1963.

Since 1963, Ring says, Clay has allied himself with the Black Muslims, "who avowedly are not friendly toward the United States of America," has protested his draft into the army, and "has been guilty of utterances which have not rebounded to the credit of boxing."

NEW HOMES PASS TEST

Have you ever heard someone say, when pointing out a stately old house, "They don't build 'em like that anymore!" Very likely you have.

But while such a statement is technically correct—they don't build 'em like that anymore—its inference is not so accurate.

It's true, there are features of construction in many older homes that cannot be economically duplicated today, but the superiority of old homes should not be assumed this readily.

AVERAGE HOME

First of all, the home that's pointed out as an example of yester-year's construction is seldom representative of the average home of its time, while it's often compared to the average home being built today.

This is somewhat like weighing construction qualities of a 1936 Rolls Royce against those of a modern economy car—it's comparing "apples with oranges."

Actually, the smaller, less-expensive homes of one and two generations ago had short lives, and most have long since disappeared.

This does bring up an important point, however: homes, constructed with quality materials, designed and built with the future in mind, are the ones that remain on the scene, continue to be functional and provide their owners with secure investments.

STATELY CHARM

Well-built older homes often have a stately charm, and some of the roomier ones provide ample space for large families at a reasonable price.

These homes can have their drawbacks, however. Many have waste space and fall short on storage and closet space by modern standards.

Since they were built before the development of efficient heating and weatherproofing techniques, they can be relativly expensive to heat. Outdated windows can add to this problem, as they aren't as weathertight as the quality windows available today, nor do they usually provide enough ventilation. The heating plant may be antiquated, too, requiring extensive repair or replacement.

INADEQUATE

Electric wiring is another frequent inadequacy, complicated all the more by the heavy use of modern appliances. The roof is still another area that may need renovating.

If you are considering the purchase of an older home, keep these points in mind. Many improvements may have been made, to say nothing of extensive remodelling projects, but it's up to you to determine what inadequacies remain. Add the cost of needed work to the purchased price of the home, and if the total price is still reasonable, changes are you're making a safe investment.

Today's well-designed quality homes are built for modern living requirements, and new building technology and products contribute additional advantages.

The family room plays an important role in today's home. It not only takes the "pressure" off your living room but gives you greater in-home versatility and privacy.

The family room can also be designed to double nicely as a dining room, eliminating the separate dining room which stands unused much of the time.

Half-Built Town Houses to Be Displayed

Combining the results of extensive studies by the natural gas and steel industries, architects, builders and suppliers, the Mod — a new trend in economical, attractive homes — will be unveiled as The Consumers' Gas Company's 1967 model home at the Centennial Year National Home Show in Toronto.

On exhibit will be three attached town house units, each in a different stage of construction, so that visitors will have full access to information concerning construction methods, materials, and the all-gas appliance system.

PRIVATE FIRMS

Construction of the Mod will be carried out and financed by private industry. Working together on the project are Consumers' Gas, The Steel Company of Canada Limited, and Home Show officials. The design is the creation of Toronto Architect Henry Fliess.

Each town house will be two storied, will have four bedrooms, a separate dining and living room, kitchen, utility room — 1,500 square feet of floor space in all, with front and rear balconies and a patio. The interiors will be similar in layout but the design aims for variety in exterior appearance, with varied grouping eliminating the dull, monotonous, side-by-side sameness associated with low-cost housing everywhere.

The Mod, combining custom-built and prefabrication techniques, and using the town house idea to ensure the maximum use of land, could be the answer to Canada's major problem, the provision of low-cost but still attractive housing, in a hurry.

Canada Visit Set

KINGSTON, Jamaica (Reuters) — Acting Prime Minister Donald Sangster of Jamaica has accepted an invitation from Canadian Prime Minister Lester Pearson to visit Canada Aug. 1-5, his office announced today. While in Canada he will visit Expo 67 in Montreal and take part in "national day" ceremonies at Jamaica's pavilion Aug. 3.

JOURNEYMEN MECHANICS
. . . AND THE FLOOD FIGHT

Well to the forefront in the battle against the rains little over a week ago were the skilled Journeymen Mechanics from the ranks of Victoria's Mechanical Contractors.

As is usual, they made their contribution quietly, efficiently and without fanfare.

Their duties during those two or three days of torrential downpour ranged from the mundane cleaning of storm drains to the quick installation of sump-pumps to hold the encroaching waters back from many a basement.

There was nothing particularly dramatic about their efforts.

They just moved in quietly and did what had to be done, whether it was the keeping of somewhat damp furnaces firing or preventing swirling water from wrecking a basement suite.

That's the way skilled technicians like to work.

But the community should appreciate that without that massed mechanical contractors' counter-attack, flood damage would have been much higher in the city than it was.

DON'T DELAY...

Yes, NOW is the time to have those repair and renovation jobs done around your home and office. Why NOW? Because service is faster, skilled labour is usually more readily available, materials are plentiful and winter discounts are often provided. Remember too that NHA and other home improvement loans will go a long way.

Think of what you can have done NOW. Interior and exterior painting, add new rooms, wallpaper old rooms, fix up the attic, finish the basement. How about a garage or carport, powder room, fireplace, steps, floors, roofing, cupboards, plumbing and fixtures? Or have your outboard and lawnmower overhauled . . . furniture reupholstered . . . rugs and drapes cleaned. Why wait for spring?

"Highways are happy ways

"When you stop at Brett's for gas."

Gimby and three other employees hooked up as a makeshift quartet to sing it on a once-a-week program on the local radio station.

"It's an overstatement to say the jingle was no hell," he admits. "But it helped business."

Thirty years later Gimby, 46, is a successful Toronto-based orchestra leader. He still writes jingles and he's good at it. But he has graduated to the company of composers.

His latest song—Ca-na-da—has caught on and shows every sign of being a hit. A bilingual marching song for children, its blending lyrics are bright, upbeat and move easily from English to French and back.

It was recorded by a chorus of seven English children from Toronto and seven French children from Montreal.

Originally it was used in a documentary plugging Centennial Year. Now it has been adopted by the centennial commission and is used in the centennial train making its way from Victoria east.

The train, a mobile montage of Canadian history, has six cars, the last one projecting Canada's future. That's where you can hear Gimby's song, the idea being that the kids singing it represent a part of what's ahead for the country.

SINGS ABOARD TRAIN

Gimby, dressed as a pied piper playing a four-foot-long jewelled trumpet designed by his daughter, was at the train's first stop in Victoria and led the children singing the song at banquets, parties and in parades in the city.

He meets the train at its first stop in each province and rounds up a group of local youngsters for periodic reprises. The next such appearance will be when the train reaches Jasper, Alta., Feb. 22.

In the meantime he's back in Toronto playing at dances—four orchestras use his name. He's also keeping an eye on sales of his record of Ca-na-da, described by the recording firm as a "promoter's dream."

Rights to the song will be held by the centennial commission until the end of the year but Gimby will make some money from sales of sheet music in both French and English at 75 cents a copy and hopes the government will hand over some of its profits to a children's charity.

As for those jingles, he's much in demand from advertisers and you're likely to hear one of his compositions promoting cigarettes, instant coffee, beer and breakfast cereals.

A native of Cambri, Sask., Gimby got his start as a professional musician aboard Alaska Steamship Lines, pulling down $90 a month in a shipboard orchestra on the run between Vancouver and Skagway.

He played two seasons in Vancouver clubs, then joined the Mart Kenny orchestra. Two years later he formed his own group and also took a job with radio's Happy Gang. It was supposed to be a two-week fill-in but he lasted 13 years until the program folded.

BLOWING jeweled trumpet and dressed as a pied piper, Toronto orchestra leader Bobby Gimby leads children in his centennial song "Canada". Gimby's catchy tune has spread across the nation and he makes a personal appearance at the first stop of the centennial train in each province. (CP Wirephoto).

TOPLESS DANCER Yvonne D'Anger, 22, failed to impress U.S. immigration and naturalization service officials with her 44-24-36 attributes Friday and was ordered deported for entering the country illegally. In hearing at San Francisco the topless go-go girl was ordered sent to France. (AP Wirephoto).

RUNAWAY BEST-SELLER

Orders Pour In For Kennedy Book

NEW YORK (AP) — Reports from the U.S. book industry indicate that William Manchester's The Death of a President may be one of the runaway best-sellers of the 20th century.

MANCHESTER
. . . $500,000 net

A spokesman for Harper and Row, the publishers, said orders are piling in so fast that they have not been able to fix the size of the first printing. The book has been the subject of a pre-publication row between Manchester and the family of the late President Kennedy.

"It looks as if it may have the largest advance sale in our history," the spokesman said.

Another publishing source declared "you can safely speculate that the book will have the biggest advance sale of our time."

In Chicago, Wendel Goodpasture, buyer for the major bookselling firm of Kroch's and Brentano's, said "I have seen nothing like it in nearly 50 years in this business." He predicted advance shipments to wholesalers might hit 500,000 copies. The retail price of the book is $10.

"It's the hottest thing in the book industry since the Gutenberg Bible," was the word from Laura Rivers, advertising executive of the May Co. stores in Los Angeles.

OUT IN APRIL

Many dealers said they expected a flood of orders as soon as the publication time — tentatively early in April—is firmly fixed by Harper and Row.

A few thought publication of an bridged serialization in Look magazine, which paid Manchester $665,000 for the rights, might take the edge off hard-cover sales. Most booksellers, however, voiced the view that Look's version had only whetted the public's interest.

Some secrecy still surrounds the division of proceeds from the book's sale.

Harper and Row has announced it will receive only 6 per cent of the net receipts, after normal overhead and taxes, from the sale of the first 100,000 copies only.

The publisher says a "substantial share" of proceeds will go to the John F. Kennedy Memorial Library in Cambridge, Mass.

Neither the publishers nor Manchester has disclosed what royalty the author will be paid per copy, but a Harper and Row spokesman said the library also would be given "a substantial portion of what otherwise would go to Mr. Manchester."

Manchester said recently his over-all receipts from the manuscript had been estimated by his agent at $1,500,000. Manchester said taxes and other expenses might leave him a net of $500,000.

Eight Plan Assault On McKinley

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Eight hardy mountaineers and scientists are making final preparations for an attempt to climb Mt: McKinley, an icy peak never scaled by man during the howling fury of an Alaskan winter.

Facing the path-finding expedition on the slopes of North America's highest mountain are temperatures as low as 100 degrees below zero, fierce snowstorms and winds that sometimes reach 150 miles an hour. Departure date is Feb. 1.

With all its modern equipment, the expedition will rely chiefly for protection against the wild winter of the 20,300-foot mountain on the Arctic's oldest and most primitive defence — the humble igloo, the Eskimo hut made of snow blocks.

QUIET RETREAT

Gregg Blomberg of Denver, leader of the expedition, said the igloo "will offer us a warm, quiet retreat."

He sees the snow hut as a temporary haven when storms hit, and when the climbers' strength is sapped by rough going and rarified air.

Bradford Washburn, director of the Museum of Science in Boston and an authority on Alaska mountaineering, agrees: "McKinley eventually will be climbed in every one of the 12 months of the year. If the party is well equipped and lives in igloos instead of tents, and if they have plenty of time to wait out bad weather, I am sure they will succeed without as much difficulty as some predict."

McKinley, 150 miles north of Anchorage, has been conquered in other seasons — but never in winter.

NEED FEW WORKERS

It takes only four men to operate a fully-automated British oil refinery, producing 200,000 tons of bitumen a year.

SLEPT ON THE PLANE

Maggie Smith commuted regularly from London to Italy while filming The Honey Pot with Rex Harrison and simultaneously rehearsing for Sir Laurence Olivier's stage production of Othello.

'Royal Palaces' Will Show Sunday For Hour on Ch. 5

Color special entitled "The Royal Palaces" will be shown Sunday at 10 p.m., on Channel 5. It will run for an hour.

It took four months to film, and even longer to complete by the time music had been added, with Sir Kenneth Clark's commentary. The over-all time from the day the first shots were filmed to the final editing was seven months.

The entire operation was as complex as the filming of a major movie. It entailed location trips from London to Windsor, Hampton Court, and right up to Edinburgh, in Scotland, with an additional journey to Brighton for brief scenes showing the famous Pavilion there.

Planning of the production, in fact, began some two years ahead when the idea for the program was first proposed. You can't just walk into the Royal Palaces and take pictures. The approach first had to be made to the Lord Chamberlain, and Queen Elizabeth gave her personal permission for cameras to be taken into the state apartments of the palaces for the first time. When the program had been completed a private viewing was arranged for her to see and approve.

The first step, once permission had been granted, was to engage Sir Kenneth Clark, the noted art critic and television personality, to prepare the script.

Boat Races

Feature coverage of the two outstanding speedboat racing championships of the "Orange Bowl Regatta" from Miami — the International Grand Prix and the 266 Hydroplane Championship — will be colorcast as an NBC Sports special on Sunday at 4 on Channel 5.

The spectacular races in which fearless drivers reach speeds of close to 150 miles per hour will be reported by Jim Simpson and Charlie Jones. Simpson announces the various qualifying heats and finals, and Jones interviews drivers and owners from the pits and covers the races from a boat in the infield of the water raceway at Miami Marine Stadium.

Heading a field of top U.S. drivers in the International Grand Prix, the highlight of the regatta, is Bill Sterett of Owensboro, Ky., who has won this championship event the past three years. Sterett drives a 7-litre hydro, "Miss Crazy Thing," and goes after an unprecedented fourth win against such competition as Mike Thomas of Harvey Cedars, N.J., in "Miss Washington, D.C."; Bill Heath of Homewood, Ill., in "Long Gone"; Skeeter Johnson of Cambridge, Md., in "Wa Wa Too," and Dr. Edward Johnston, a surgeon from Spokane, Wash., in "Annie's Dodge II."

Sports Feature

The National Finals Rodeo at Oklahoma City, the National Claybird Tournament finals and a never-before-broadcast film of the 1910 Jack Johnson-Jim Jeffries heavyweight title fight will be presented on "CBS Sports Spectacular" Sunday on Channels 7 and 12 at 2:30

The rodeo competition includes saddle and bareback bronc riding, bull riding, calf roping, steer wrestling and team roping. Leading money-winning cowboys on the rodeo circuit compete in the National Finals, crowning the year's champions in each event, plus an all-around champion.

The film of the Johnson-Jeffries fight includes not only the historic ring battle, when Johnson won by a technical knockout in the 15th round, but also training-camp shots of many of the personalities of the time and scenes of Reno, Nev., where the fight took place.

The bout was promoted by the famed Tex Rickard, who also was the referee. Rickard persuaded former champion Jeffries to come out of retirement to meet champion Johnson on July 4, 1910. More than 15,000 people turned out for the bout.

The National Claybird Tournament, a two-day team competition in skeet and trap shooting, is held at River Ranch Acres, Fla. Following regional shoot-offs around the U.S., the top shooters compete in the finals. Tracer shot shells and fluorescent painted targets are used in competition for better visibility for the television adience.

Lion Hunt

Marlin Perkins and Jim Fowler join Rhodesian game officials on an exciting adventure in South Africa to capture a lion and other wild animals, in "Bundu Rescue" on NBC Television Network's colorcast of "Wild Kingdom" Sunday on Channel 5 at 5:00.

During the expedition into the Bundu—African word for the great open plains where wildlife abounds—such wild animals as lions, hippos and elephants are caught for scientific and conservation purposes. In the captures, the hunters use pit traps, nets, ropes and a "cap-chur" gun that fires a drug-filled dart to immobilze the animal. At night lights are used to catch fleet-footed antelope.

A highlight of the hunt is the attempt to capture a lion. Since immobilizing drugs won't work on the big cats, and they are too smart to be fooled into falling into pit traps, Perkins, Fowler and the Rhodesian experts try something they never have used before—with the hope it will work. They spread a big net under bait and rig the net so that it can be jerked up on all sides when the lion is in the middle.

Sullivan Show

The Smothers Brothers, the Mamas and the Papas, Gale Martin, Nipsey Russell and Enzo Stuarti star on "The Ed Sullivan Show" Sunday at 8 p.m. on Channels, 2, 6, 7 and 12.

Other guests are George Carlin, comedian, and Your Father's Moustache, a singing and banjo-playing group who perform in the New York night spot of that name.

The Smothers Brothers will present a song and comedy routine. They are the stars of their own weekly programs.

The Mamas and the Papas, popular quartet, will present vocal selections, including their current hit record, "Words of Love".

Gale Martin, Dean Martin's daughter, whom Sullivan recently saw performing in Miami Beach, will offer popular songs.

Comedian Nipsey Russell will deliver a monologue, and Enzo will sing numbers from his repertoire.

ONE of these eight starlets will be chosen as the 1967 Hollwood Star of Tomorrow when Channel 4 telecasts the awards—live and in color—from the famous Hollywood Palladium tonight at 9:30.

ASK RITHET'S

Q. My underground connection to the city water main sprang a leak, causing some water damage in my basement. I am told that my fire policy does not cover such an occurrence. Is that true?

A. No. This is not true. The Extended Coverage endorsement excludes water from underground sewers and drains, but it includes escape of water from your underground water intake line, subject to the deductible, if any.

JACK WEBB
. . . triple threat

'Dragnet' Star Real Pioneer

Jack Webb is considered by those in the television and motion picture industry to be one of the foremost pioneers in presenting realism and authenticity.

This reputation began when Webb first put his famous "Dragnet" series on NBC radio in June of 1949, and it grew when the series moved to the NBC television network on January, 1952, for a seven-year award-winning run. The show was a three-time winner of the coveted Emmy Award and has been the recipient of more than 100 other citations, including the Sylvania Award, and honors from TV Guide, Look Magazine, American Weekly and others.

As producer, director and star of his own series, Webb was the first of television's triple-threat men. He amazes observers with his smooth transition from actor to director to producer and back again to actor. In addition, he does much of the writing, rewriting and editing of scripts. He frequently works 16 hours a day.

Webb is 46, and of age as far as his police sergeant stripes are concerned (he was often kidded about being the youngest sergeant on the force in the old series). He began his career as a radio announcer and advanced up as the star of "Pat Novak for Hire" on a San Francisco radio station in 1946 following the Second World War.

The show was a success and he followed in another San Francisco radio adventure, "Jonny Madero—Pier 23."

His thoughts by this time were concentrating on getting a radio series based on athenticated crime cases from police files.

ESTABLISHED

When the show went on, it immediately had a following of millions. "Only the facts, Mam," became a popular expression. By 1951, "Dum-de-Dum-Dum" and Jack "Sgt. Friday" Webb were established show-business symbols.

The "Dragnet" radio show made the natural transition to television and Webb again displayed his talents. His penchant for perfection took him into such areas as set design, wardrobe, make-up, sound recording and film editing. The series remained on the air until Webb, himself, called it quits.

Born in Santa Monica, Calif., Webb's childhood was marked by illness and he knew the lean times of the Depression years while growing up under the care of his mother and maternal grandmother.

In addition to his Dragnet success, Webb has made a mark in motion pictures. He produced, directed and starred in "Pete Kelly's Blues," "The D.I.," "30," "The Last Time I Saw Archie," and a full-length "Dragnet."

Story of Anastasia on CBC

Lynn Fontanne, Julie Harris Star In Color Feature

Lynn Fontanne and Julie Harris star in the hall of fame color drama special, "Anastasia," to be telecast on Wednesday, at 9:30 p.m., on Channels 2 and 6.

The Guy Bolton drama, translated from the original Marcelle Maurette play, poses the mystery of a girl called Anna Braun (Miss Harris), a victim of amnesia who comes forward as the sole survivor of the Russian royal family, massacred in 1918 by the Bolsheciks.

Is Anna Braun really the Grand Duchess Anastasia, fourth daughter of the late czar?

Prince Beunine (played by Charles D. Gray) finds Anna Braun, who firmly believes she is Anastasia. Beunine is not convinced, but he attempts to pass her off as Anastasia in order to share in the inheritance.

Lynn Fontanne, appearing in a drama without her husband Alfred Lunt for the first time in 40 years, plays the Dowager Duchess whose scrutiny Anna must pass if her identity is to be established.

Robert Burr plays Dr. Serensky and Paul Roebling is seen as Prince Paul in this 90-minute production, taped in New York for NBC Television.

It is based on the real-life story of Anna Anderson, who turned up in Germany claiming to be the youngest daughter of Czar Nicholas II and the only survivor of the Russian royal family. Though her claim was never proved, and many took her to be a mentally unbalanced impostor, Anna Anderson has stuck to her story and now lives in obscurity, a semi-invalid, in the Black Forest in Germany. Her case has been in and out of the courts for years and a final verdict is, in fact, due this year.

Telescope

A Brace of Immigrants, a close look at two of Canada's more illustrious and successful adopted sons, will be telecast in color on Telescope '67 Thursday at 9 p.m. in Channels 2 and 6.

In Vancouver viewers will meet Glasgow-born gladiator Jack Webster, and in Toronto, go on a trip with Arkansas traveller, rock singer Rompin' Ronnie Hawkins.

Multi-media journalist Webster is shown at work on his open-line radio show, one of the most listened-to on the West Coast. With some callers he is sympathetic, with others he is downright insulting, but always, he shows sincere interest.

In the 20 years since he arrived in Canada, Webster's success as a reporter and radio and television personality — more often in the role of gadfly than neutral observer — can be measured by his annual income. When he arrived in Canada with his wife and three children in 1947 his salary on the Vancouver newspaper he first worked for was $45 a week. Now it tops $20,000 and he has turned down reported higher offers to move east.

CBS Reports

A cat that leaps in terror from a mouse is contributing to science's investigation of the human brain, an organ more complex than the largest, most sophisticated computer ever built.

This reversal of basic instinct is a part of an examination of the mind and its processes on CBS Reports: "The Farthest Frontier," Tuesday at 10:00 on Channel 7.

The cat's unlikely fear of the mouse is a phenomenon caused by chemicals. The CBS Reports broadcast focuses on the progress that chemicals or "mind drugs" have made in the investigation of the function of the mind.

Included in this continuing study are the groups of brain cells which are involved in feelings, instincts and memories, and the chemicals which affect such processes of the mind.

The exploration is conducted through chemistry, says CBS News Correspondent Charles Kuralt, reporter on the broadcast. It is achieved, in part, by inserting drugs through tubes planted in the brains of animals precisely enough to pinpoint a single cell. It has been learned through this research that, among other things, even basic instinct can be reversed.

Housing Crisis

The high cost and short supply of housing in Canada's urban areas is the subject of the public affairs series The Public Eye on Tuesday at 10:30 p.m. on Channels 2 and 6.

The program, subtitled Canada's Housing Crisis, is the second of a two-part Public Eye study of this country's housing problem, and is mainly concerned with privately-controlled housing and apartment developments. The first program, on Jan. 24, concentrated on public housing.

On Tuesday's series host Warner Troyer interviews Minister of Labor John R. Nicholson about the housing crisis—why prices are rising and construction is slowing down, and what can be done about it.

The Public Eye also studies a unique housing development—the "planned town" of Kanata, near Ottawa, which now has about 2,000 residents and is scheduled to accommodate a population of 50,000 by the end of a 20-year phased plan.

MYSTERY of the Princess Anastasia has intrigued historians and fortune-seekers for half a century and now television viewers can hazard their guesses. Two reigning monarchs of the stage, Lynn Fontanne (right) and Julie Harris, appear together for the first time in the Coutts-Hallmark presentation of "Anastasia", to be presented on Channels 2, 6 Wednesday at 9:30.

PUBLIC HOUSING 'DELIBERATELY HELD UP'

Premier 'Slum Landlord of B.C.'

Premier Bennett and two of his cabinet ministers were called "the three blind mice . . . the slum landlords of B.C." in the legislature Friday.

Their accuser was Dr. Pat McGeer (L—Vancouver-Point Grey) who angrily charged the Social Credit government with deliberately holding up needed public housing projects because it felt poor people "aren't good enough for you."

Dr. McGeer said the Vancouver Housing Authority has revealed there are more than 1,000 families seeking public accommodation in that city alone because the B.C. government won't implement programs largely financed by federal funds.

He said families with six or seven children and incomes of only $3,000 a year can't afford to buy homes or pay normal rents.

"What are they supposed to do — sleep under the Georgia Street Viaduct?"

He said Mr. Bennett, Attorney-General Robert Bonner and Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell insist there is no problem and refuse to accept federal funds for low-rent projects because the province would have to provide 25 per cent.

'OPEN EYES'

"There are none so blind as those who will not see and I ask the three blind mice to open their eyes to this problem.

"By holding up these projects you, in effect, are the slum landlords of B.C.," he said.

"The premier often complains of tight money in Canada but the tighest money is held in the premier's fist."

McGEER
. . . levels charge

He said Dr. John Macdonald's impending departure from the University of B.C. is "a tragedy for B.C." and his recommendation of an independent university grants board "to prevent" university canabalism" in allocating funds should be created with him as chairman.

SETS PROGRAM

Dr. McGeer also proposed a three-stage program for fostering the arts in B.C.

He said a B.C. Council of Arts, independent of government, should be established and it should be given an annual budget of $200,000 — "that's only half of 1 per cent of the liquor profits we had last year" — to assist cultural groups.

In addition, the government should establish a "pay off at the box office" inducement to expose youth to culture instead of LSD by subsidies of 75 per cent for under-12-year-olds, 50 per cent for those under 21 and 25 per cent for adults on tickets purchased to designated cultural events.

APPLAUDS ACTION

Dr. McGeer said he applauded the cabinet's continental shelf interest.

"You've taken a great deal of initiative in this, perhaps a little too much, but it's in the right direction," he said.

He added that the government should purchase an undersea vehicle, launch an oceanographic research program and give $100,000 to the Vancouver Aquaruim Society to undertake a study of marine life.

'Free Trade Brings Big Dividends'

The B.C. government was urged Friday to launch a drive aimed at convincing protection-minded easterners that free trade is needed to increase Canadian ownership of industry.

Dr. Pat McGeer (L.—Vancouver-Point Grey) told the legislature that it is up to export-conscious B.C. to convince the rest of the country that free trade will bring great dividends.

He said this has been the recent aim of the B.C. Liberals and "although we haven't been successful in changing the minds of our more protectionist eastern citizens, we have made them think more deeply about this."

EXHAUSTIVE STUDY

Dr. McGeer said it was time the provincial government lent a hand by establishing a committee of professors, leading businessmen and other citizens to "make the most exhaustive study ever of the impact free trade would have on the B.C. economy."

This, he said, should be followed by government urging that the other provinces follow suit and the results to be considered by a federal-provincial conference to plot a new course in trade and tariff policies.

"What this would do is satisfy the timid in Canada that free trade would not only increase our standard of living but enhance Canadian ownership of industry in Canada and strengthen our political institutions.'

Dr. McGeer said Trade and Industry Minister Ralph Loffmark continually shifted his position of free trade so frequently that "he has become a one-man disaster area."

'Slice of U.S. Land Should Be Our Price'

B.C. should demand a slice of American territory as part of the compensation in any future hydro project benefiting them at the expense of flooding land in the province, the legislature was told Friday.

"We've been skinned in more ways than one on the Columbia," said Pat McGreer, Liberal, Vancouver — Point Grey.

"One of the things we never consider is that our land is disappearing under water and theirs is being protected from flooding."

"We should consider demanding a corridor through the Alaska Panhandle. Or we should consider taking over Point Roberts, maybe some of the San Juan Islands.

"Perhaps even one of the Hawaiian Islands."

Mandatory Public Hearings By Pollution Board Urged

In his maiden speech newly-elected MLA Tom Berger (NDP — Vancouver Burarrd) called for provisions to make government agencies such as the Pollution Control Board responsible to the legislature.

Any agency disposing of human rights and provincial resources should be compelled to give notice and hold a public hearing before reaching any decision.

The reasons for the decision should also be given, Mr. Berger said.

Mr. Berger acted as legal counsel for the Greater Campbell River Water District in its victorious court battle with the Pollution Control Board over mine tailings in Buttle Lake.

The board refused to give the water district a hearing.

Pointing out that the board is composed entirely of provincial civil servants he argued they were obliged to follow government policy which he said involved the misuse of resources.

BERGER
. . . follow policy

"They believe you can, if it is necessary to exploit one resource, destroy another," Mr. Berger said.

"They (the board) should never have been placed in charge of decisions that determine the future of the resources of this province," he said.

PLOEN DISCHARGED

WINNIPEG (CP) — Kenny Ploen, veteran quarterback of the Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the Western Football League, was discharged from hospital Friday, four days after he underwent an emergency appendectomy.

Uncertainty Plaguing Loggers

Cyril Shelford (SC — Omineca) Friday told the legislature he supported the provincial government's decision to defy a federal order and allow a log drive down the Stellako River last fall.

He said the federal authorities would have wiped out about 40 small contract loggers who needed to send the logs down the river to the Fraser Lake Sawmill in order to earn enough to meet new equipment costs.

The federal prohibition was made to protect the spawning grounds of salmon in the river but past log drives have not injured them and the fish have thrived over the years, said Mr. Shelford.

He blamed the sawmill's current refusal to buy logs from up-river on uncertainty as to the federal government's future intentions and said it should give at least two years firm notice if it intends to enforce the ban.

CITY POLICE HAVE THEM

Carpenter Missing Tools?

By DON VIPOND

Each week items are found by citizens and turned over to area police.

As a public service, the Times each Saturday lists goods located in the previous week and being held until claimed.

Sooke RCMP have a pair of woman's black-rimmed bifocals, left at a cleaning store on Sooke Road.

Saanich police are holding a woman's watch, a sum of money and two boys' bicycles.

A box of carpenter's tools which fell off a truck on Douglas Street is being held by city police as well as a boy's red and white National bicycle, and a girl's blue and white bicycle.

And Peter Davis told the Times that he had found a set of keys among bottles collected by Cubs and Scouts in the vicinity of the Pat Bay Highway and McKenzie Avenue.

There are five keys on a ring with a well-worn bottle opener. They were found in a case of out-dated long-necked beer bottles.

Mr. Davis can be reached at 479-6668.

HOSPITAL WALKOUT

Strike Finished —Or Union Is

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Hospital strikes were outlawed Friday by the Newfoundland legislature and an already-illegal work stoppage at Grand Falls was ordered ended within 72 hours.

The tough legislation, drawn up and put through the house in four days, threatens Local 990 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees with fines up to $5,000 daily and mandatory decertification for failure to comply with the back-to-work order.

The unofficial time at which royal assent was given to the bills was 5:07 p.m. NST Friday, meaning 135 striking non-professional workers at the Central Newfoundland Hospital have until that time Monday to get back on the job.

The new act stipulates the hospital must rehire any worker reporting under the deadline, but it is not bound to do after that time. The strikers, many of them teen-aged girls, perform domestic, maintenance and other non-medical duties.

It is the first time Premier Joseph Smallwood's administration has threatened to decertify a union since it outlawed the International Woodworkers of America in 1959 as the result of a bitter loggers strike in central Newfoundland.

ISN'T AS SERIOUS

Interviewed Friday night, the premier said the hospital strike was "nowhere near as serious as the IWA strike." However, in both cases, union leaders outside the province had "shown a contempt for Newfoundland law."

He said a deep rift that developed between government and the labor movement in Newfoundland after the loggers strike was well on the way toward healing and he doubted the hospital strike would stop this process.

Just before final approval of the legislation Friday, the opposition joined the government in demanding respect for the new law "once it is passed and enacted by this house," even though the three opposition members voted against it.

National Organizer John F. MacMillan of the CUPE said in Grand Falls Friday night a local membership meeting probably would be held Sunday to acquaint the workers "with all the ramifications of this legislation."

He said "Newfoundland now has taken her place among the Iron Curtain countries" and reiterated the national union's promise to stand by whatever decision the local takes. He also said the CUPE would find new jobs for any dismissed members.

Labor Minister Clyde Wells said Friday the act's penalties could be levied against anyone aiding or abetting a hospital strike, including anyone supplying money to maintain such a strike.

Unification Too Much For Britain

LONDON (CP)—Unification of army, navy and air force into a single defence system in Britain would have formidable drawbacks, says a former Labor government minister who has studied Canadian defence reorganization.

Christopher Mayhew, who resigned 11 months ago as navy minister and returned to the Labor back benches in protest against government policy, says talks with Canadian Defence Minister Paul Hellyer and his subordinates early in 1965 left him unconvinced about armed services unification for Britain.

His comments come in a 190-page study called Britain's Role Tomorrow (Hutchinson) to be released simultaneously next week in Britain, Canada and elsewhere.

"It seemed clear to me, and Mr. Hellyer readily agreed, that the degree of dislocation which he had cheerfully and deliberately created in Canada would be too much for a country like Britain, with a larger and more complex defence organization, and with immediate, widespread operational responsibilities, Mayhew writes.

Not Enough To Pay Bill

Graham Butler, 23, of Halifax, ate two bowls of soup and a steak in a restaurant early Friday, then told the waitress to phone police because he had no money.

The cafe bill came to $2.40 while the accused had only a single penny in his pockets, court was told.

Butler will be sentenced Feb. 2 after Magistrate Ostler has studied a pre-sentence report. He pleaded guilty to fraudulently obtaining food.

MASS RALLY of students is shown here as it started to assemble Friday afternoon outside the legislature. By time the protest meeting began about 1,500 students were on the scene. Students sang parodies of popular folk songs to pass the time in the rain while they waited for politicians to come out of the House and face them. (Irving Strickland photo).

...MINISTER FACES ANGRY STUDENTS

exercising that right now. Please hear me out.

"This sort of demonstration may be necessary in other countries but not here." Again he was stopped by shouting, booing and jeers.

He told the students, "You have a tendency to consider what you want in isolated fashion without considering the needs of the country as a whole.

"It is easy for persons with no responsibility . . ."

Here he was drowned again by the shouting of the students protesting what they took to be his description of themselves.

'WILL BE JOBS'

He continued ". . .whether they be students or members of the Opposition to come here and promise you the world. But when you have the responsibility to maintain the economy so there will be jobs for you people when you graduate . . ."

Again he was stopped by the shouting. One heckler yelled, "I don't want to work on a dam." Mr. Peterson turned and shouted back, "That dam will provide jobs for you."

He had kept smiling and composed up to this point but suddenly he jabbed his finger at the audience. "All I have to do to send you back happy to your lectures is to find taxpayers who are happy to put up millions of dollars for the things you want."

He told the students that the budget to be brought down soon in the legislature will show them what the government intends to do for education.

LARGER BUDGET

Then he added, "The budget for higher education as a whole this year will be more than the entire budget in the year before this government came to power."

Boos, groans and shouts greeted this. Mr. Peterson shouted through the microphone, "I hope you study with the same vigor you are showing here today."

Then he asked the students, "Do you want me to appease you or state my opinion? I am going to be honest which is more than some of the Opposition have been doing."

He said the most important demand of the students, as far as he is concerned, is to make higher education accessible to all who can use it.

"Well then, do something about it," someone in the crowd roared.

Mr. Peterson said the student demand for equalization grants carried "more weight" with him than their request for abolition of tuition fees. But he said the mere fact that a student is from out-of-town should not be the only factor considered in giving equalization grants.

DRIVE CADILLAC

He cracked, "If parents give some of you a Cadillac to drive to school . . ." and then the students drowned his remarks out with a loud roar. One yelled "Garbage."

He continued that parental income is a factor to be considered in making grants.

"Education is the best investment. You as individuals should not be afraid to put something in the pot . . ."

The students broke out in an uproar at this. The minister tried to quiet them by shouting, "I went to university, too, you know," but this only made them shout louder and one demonstrator, in a sentorian voice, yelled "You're kidding."

The minister said "I am always glad to receive your representations" and then waited again for the interruptions to stop.

GROANS, BOOS

"I will give them consideration." Laughter, groans and boos.

"I am always glad to have constructive criticism and suggestions." He said he hoped that in future students would make their representations "in responsible fashion" and then left the steps to go back inside the legislature.

His departure touched off a long noisy tumult and then a UBC graduate student, Randy Enomoto, stepped up to the microphone.

Mr. Enomoto, who caused something of a sensation when he ran for chancellor of UBC last year against the businessman supported by the Alumni Association, spoke briefly.

He said that Mr. Peterson "didn't say anything" in his speech. He said the minister had merely stated that other things had to be considered as well as education when it came to making up the budget.

"What," asked Mr. Enomoto, "is more important to this government than education?"

'WANT BENNETT'

The crowd then started chanting, "We want Bennett. We want Bennett."

Then Peter Braund, president of the UBC student council, took the mike and said the rally was over.

Stephen Bigsby, student council president at the University of Victoria, also advised the students to leave. Said he: "We've made our point."

Earlier in the rally, Paul Williamson, last year's student council president at Uvic, said Mr. Peterson had told a student delegation that he was opposed to free tuition but was willing to consider the student demand for changes in the system of university grants.

Mr. Williamson said Mr. Peterson also told the student representatives that the government has no objection to students being represented on university senates. He said it is within the power of senates to give students representation.

SIGNIFICANT STATEMENT

Mr. Williamson said this is a significant statement because now "the senate can no longer say the government is stopping this move."

Opposition Leader Strachan said, in his speech, that universities cannot be free unless they are financed through an independent grants commission.

Liberal Leader Perrault said his party favors publication of the annual financial requests of universities. At present these are kept secret.

The students had marched through the city carrying ahead of them the banner reading, "B.C. Assembly of Students." A drummer beat out the time of the march.

ONE MILE LINE

They took up one half of the road and the line stretched out for about one mile. Many carried umbrellas but almost everyone ended up soaked by the downpour of rain.

They were good-humored marching along, cheering policemen on motorcycles who rode up and down the line. About 400 of the demonstrators came in special buses from UBC and Simon Fraser University. By 4 p.m. at the Legislature the rally was joined by hordes of high school students coming straight from school to the demonstration.

Rally Break-Up Halts His Speech

Most students who took part in Friday's march on the legislature thought they were being fairly radical in both their approach and their demands.

But they were not radical enough for a minority.

A spokesman for this group, John Kelsey, editor of the Ubyssey, the UBC student magazine, managed to say a few words to the rally just before it broke up.

But he had to argue first to get the microphone from Steve Bigsby, president of the University of Victoria, who was afraid of what Mr. Kelsey might say.

Mr. Kelsey told the students, "It's not the money . . . that's really not the point . . . we missed the issue entirely here today . . . it is the kind of education we are getting that is the big issue."

Mr. Kelsey continued, "Suppose we win. Suppose we get that 66 million dollars we talked about. We will still get professors like we got now . . . people like the one who tells students, 'Don't read that book. It's not on the course.'"

The rally was drifting away as he spoke and he stopped.

But later, he explained what he and some of the group who help publish the Ubyssey were trying to say.

"The universities are really anti-intellectual. They are technical schools training technologists: professional schools training professional people.

"They are training people to manage a society that is bad. They are fitting students for their niches in society."

Mr. Kelsey, a third-year arts student, said that, "time and again a student will get interested in something but he will be told not to bother studying it because it won't help him on his course."

He said the money issue, although important in itself, is trivial compared with the basic question of "just what sort of education the universities should provide."

It was good for students to get out and protest lack of financing for higher education, he said. But the march will be used as a rationalization by many of the students, he said.

"Now they can go home and feel they did their bit. But nothing happened. Nothing was changed. Even if we get the money we asked for we will still have the same rotten system of education.

"That is what we should have been protesting."

O'Neal Resigns Federation Post

VANCOUVER (CP)—International Woodworkers of America officials said Friday they aren't satisfied that Pat O'Neal has resigned from the B.C. Federation of Labor.

Syd Thompson, president of the IWA's Vancouver local, said the federation must also condemn Mr. O'Neal, who resigned earlier Friday, for his part in the bugging of a union convention.

Mr. O'Neal, organizer for the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers, has admitted to hiring a private detective to bug convention rooms in a downtown hotel occupied by members of the rival Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada.

Federation officers accepted Mr. O'Neal's resignation following mounting pressure within federation affiliates for his dismissal.

The IWA's Vancouver local threatened to withhold per capita payments to the federation if Mr. O'Neal, a former federation secretary, remained or was not publicly condemned.

In November, two electronic bugs were found at a PPWC convention. The incident prompted the provincial government to set up a royal commission, being conducted by former county court judge R. A. Sargent.

* * *

'WHAT IS A FINK?' 'LOWER FORM OF RAT!'

VANCOUVER (CP) — A history of inter-union harrassment continued to unwind at Friday's session of the royal commission on bugging, with testimony relating to blackmailing, cat-calling and anonymous phone calls.

Finally, Commissioner R. A. Sargent appealed to council: "Will someone please tell me—for my education—what is a fink?"

Commissioned counsel George Murray: "My understanding is that it is an abbreviation for the term rat fink."

Commissioner: "What is a rat fink?"

Lawyer M. Edward Mortimer: "A lower form of rat."

Commissioner. "Ah well, carry on."

Father Mistook Sheep for Deer

GANGES — Two deer hunters, who shot a sheep by mistake and took the carcass, were given a year's suspended sentence Friday in magistrate's court here.

George Plumb of Cowichan Station and his son Ronald, of Duncan, were also ordered to pay restitution for the animal, shot Nov. 6 near Maxwell Point on Saltspring Island.

"This was apparently not a deliberate act of theft and not sheep rustling or stealing on a big scale," Magistrate M. F. Peiler told the pair.

"I am not too happy about the details of the shooting, however.

"You went out to shoot a deer without wearing your glasses," he told the senior Plumb. "You couldn't distinguish the sheep's head from a deer in spite of having a four-power scope on your rifle.

"We are coming to the point where it takes only one child killed in this manner, and hunting will be closed for all time in the Gulf Islands."

The magistrate was told the two men spotted a deer while out collecting driftwood.

The father went ashore, shot a sheep by mistake with a 30.06 rifle, cut it open, buried the entrails and took the carcass back to Cowichan wharf.

They later filled the carcass with rocks and dumped it at sea, when they noticed the wharf was under surveillance by an RCMP launch.

Magistrate Peiler advised the men "if you shoot a sheep report it immediately."

No Date Set For Opening Of New Hospital

DUNCAN — Ken Noton, King's Daughters' Hospital administrator, said Friday no date has been set for the opening of the new Cowichan District Hospital.

Claude Green, hospital board chairman, has expressed the hope it could be in July.

Mr. Norton confined himself Friday to "sometime in the fall."

He said if the Cowichan Hospital does meet the completion deadline it will be the first new hospital in the province to open on time.

Mr. Norton said he is in the process of ordering $500,000 worth of equipment for the hospital, which is a cost over and above the $4,000,000 estimate for the building.

He said the projected 40-bed chronic care unit would require to be approved by bylaw to the three local hospital improvement districts.

The board does not have it in mind at the present time to submit such bylaws.

When the new hospital opens it will have 125 beds and room for expansion to 188 beds.

APPOINTMENT of William D. Mitchell of Vancouver, 45, as manager of B.C. Hydro's legal division, has been announced by Hydro chairman Dr. H. L. Keenleyside. Mr. Mitchell succeeds W. H. Q. Cameron, who has resigned for health reasons.

C.R. Students To Tour House

CAMPBELL RIVER—Tours of the legislature, University of Victoria campus and the federal forest department laboratory are included in a busy schedule for 20 Campbell River High School students who will visit Victoria Sunday to Tuesday.

The students—10 boys and 10 girls — leave Campbell River Sunday afternoon and return Tuesday evening. They will be accompanied by teachers D. Knowles and Mrs. P. Andrews.

The tour is sponsored by the Campbell River school board and Crown Zelelrbach Canada Limited's Elk Falls division.

This year marks the 10th anniversary of the Victoria visits, aimed at enlarging the students' understanding of the legislative processes.

They Mixed People and Money And Came Up With a 'Showboat'

DUNCAN — Take a doctor, an Anglican minister, teachers, loggers and $5,000 and what do you have?

You have the Duncan Musical Club's production of Showboat — to be staged in Duncan and Victoria's McPherson Playhouse in April.

The most ambitious production of the club to date, it will involve about 50 members, both actors and those off-set.

Musical director of Jerome Kern's classic musical is Peter Yelland who was director also for previous club productions, The Mikado, Yeoman of the Guard, and the Gondoliers.

The orchestra will be drawn from members of Victoria Symphony Orchestra.

The play covers a period of 40 years. Sixteen different sets will be required.

Principal roles in the show to be performed April 7, 8, 14 and 15 at Cowichan High School and April 22 at Victoria are played by Grace Lux of Ladysmith, Peter Josselyn of Shawnigan, Pat Fifield of Duncan, Joe Ball of Duncan, Shirley Harvey of Duncan and Osric Murrell of Chemainus.

'Don't Lose Soul Building a City'

COURTENAY — A city is not just land, but people, a University of British Columbia planning professor told Courtenay businessmen Friday.

"Courtenay must be a city which is the sum of the people that live in it," Dr. Robert Collier told city Rotarians.

He said the community must be for "those on relief, those in apartments, those who create, those who destroy, those who buy and those who sell, those who are for better, for worse, for richer for poorer, wedded to the idea that this is where they want to live."

Dr. Collier said this was a community's "soul."

Discussing the more tangible elements of a city and Courtenay in particular, Dr. Collier said: "A well-planned community should be a profitable place.

"Great care must be taken to make sure that major sources of tax revenue do not locate just outside the community so that they are served by the community but do not pay their full share of the tax burden."

Dr. Collier said another way a community could increase revenue and decrease expenditures, that it become a "profitable" enterprise, was ensure that a sewer and water system not be extended "too far."

He said too many communities discover they cannot maintain over-extensive sewer and water systems.

He also recommended foresight in studies of traffic needs, remembering the pedestrian as an integral part of traffic.

"Don't wait until a shopping centre on the edge of town forces you into it," he said.

Westholme Wants Own Firefighters

WESTHOLME — Members of Westholme Ratepayers' Association will investigate formation of a fire protection district.

Tom Groves, secretary, said Friday: "We don't like to be freeloaders on other taxpayers who already have a fire department."

Mr. Groves expressed Wesstholme residents' thanks to Crofton and Chemainus fire departments for having come out of their areas in the past to fight fires.

Saanich Council To Reconsider Sewer Proposal

Saanich council will spend Monday evening discussing sewers.

One of the main items to be considered is a sewerage enterprise or an alternative to it, said Reeve Hugh Curtis.

The enterprise proposal was to have gone to ratepayers last month, but the majority of council switched signals on final reading of the necessary bylaw.

It was proposed to wrap-up six individual sewerage systems into a common utility, with costs averaged out. Aim of the proposal was to facilitate implementation of last summer's metropolitan sewerage report.

Hydro Contract

A Japanese firm, Mitsui and Co. Ltd., has been awarded a $1.5 million contract to provide two synchronous condensers for B.C. Hydro's high voltage, direct current, underwater powerline connecting Vancouver Island and the mainland.

The large condensers will be installed at the Vancouver Island terminal station, near Duncan, western terminus of the interconnection now under construction.

Greater Victoria Support Assured Train Success

Co-operation at all levels of government has given Confederation's Centenary an exciting start, Jack Golding, representative of the federal Centennial Commission, told the Saanich Lions Club Thursday.

He said the support Victoria gave to Confederation Train, the starting point on its tour across Canada, assured its success from coast to coast.

The speaker noted that thousands of volunteer workers from Newfoundland to British Columbia have co-operated in establishing about 3,000 projects to mark centennial year.

In this work, he said, federal and provincial government authorities have been heavily supported by municipal committees, such as the Victoria Centennial Society.

Cap'n Vancouver atop his dome might have considered the scene one of rank mutiny.

But "The Times, They Are A-Changing," as a scad of young British Columbians thundered, squeaked and carolled to their provincial government on Friday afternoon; and what took place between Queen Victoria's unamused bronze back and the Legislative Buildings was a mere orderly though hellish loud student protest.

The scad is an elastic measurement which in this instance amounted to possibly 2,200 demonstrators. These, marching under their banners and placards, formed a crocodile equal to the distance between The Bay and Eaton's.

I watched them swinging along Douglas Street, and an impressive spectacle they offered, even though a policeman in one of those ridiculous ice cream-cart ticketing vehicles led their van.

Arrived, crowded into an inverted "T" formation before the main steps, they represented such a sending of youth as those grey buildings have rarely seen.

★

There were freedom - songs both straight and in parody: "The answer is blowing in the wind" became "The answer is in Bennet's hands"—a claim which I would advise the singers not to take at face value.

The times, they are indeed a-changing, and it could be that the long honeymoon—Social Credit wedded to prosperity—may have cooled a trifle.

Anyway, it was all very loud and exciting, and will one day make a tale to bore children who have their own demands and protests to occupy them.

I watched and listened to all this from mid-crowd, behind a mufflered private-school girl who screamed like a witch from under her companion's black umbrella. We were joined by a pair of teenyboppers, alike in brass-buttoned pea jackets except for their basic angles and curves.

Company of Young Canadians volunteer Lynn Curtis, bearded and gentle, paused to look up at the protestants from the group he works to help. These carried a two-stick banner with the legend, "Why Dropouts?" lettered in black; and for reasons beyond my understanding, later pelted Education Minister Peterson with artificial flowers.

★

Since neither of their respective parties controls the government purse-strings, we can pass over Opposition Leader Strachan's and Liberal head Perrault's hay-making speeches.

The confrontation was between students and education minister; and I feel that both he and our University of Victoria contingent handled themselves well. The Uvic people were not a mob, nor would they be turned into one. They gave an indifferent hearing to firebrand Randy Enomoto, the same mainland student who rocked tradition by running for UBC chancellor last year, and departed as they came, in good order.

Although I'm not sure what they got except some assurances yet to be implemented—those, and a sour unintended joke about Cadillac-driving undergrads—they made a staunch case for arguments worth hearing and heeding.

As the crowd began to scatter, a gaggle of UBC coeds flew helter-skelter from the buildings with the claim that they had come upon the premier in a corridor and made their pitch direct. According to their leader, a drenched girl with elf-locks straggling every-which way, Mr. Bennett spoke to them briefly, then strode off along a corridor.

"What did he tell you?" I asked.

"Oh," said their leader, "the same old B.S."

Behind me at the time was an aged lady, bright as a squirrel, who had been patiently tagging after in hopes of winning through to the public galleries.

"My, my," she said, "they take me right back to the suffragettes!"

WEEKEND HIGHLIGHTS ON CAMPUS

Highlights of Uvic Open House tonight include a new play The Potter's Field and an address by U.S. geneticist Dr. Garrett Hardin.

The theatre is near the gym in the old army buildings section of the campus. Curtain time is 8:30. Phone 477-4821 for reservations.

Dr. Hardin, from University of California, will speak on Ethical Challenges of Biology to Education in the Education and Arts Building at 8:15.

Sunday there will be film showings in the Elliott lecture wing and a concert by the University Choir at 2:30 p.m. in the Education and Arts Building.

. . . Before They Cross Over to Join US

By PETE LOUDON

"It's open house at Uvic today and Sunday," we explained over the phone, "and we'd like to do a piece for Saturday telling readers what to expect."

"Okay. Meet me at the SUB at nine," said the brisk young man at the university." So we went there and this is what life at university is like.

SUB, we found is short for Student Union Building, very modernistic stone and brick and shrubbery and skylights and glass walls and five tents pitched on the lawn.

And under the covered entrance are a dozen boys and girls in shorts and parkas, checked logging shirts and high-laced hiking boots, stretchie pants and tight blue jeans and turtle necks. They are cooking breakfast on camp stoves.

Signs in the area indicate they speak initialese. UVODC said their sign. (Much of campus communication is by sign.)

●

A large sign beside them reads "HAQQ TODAY SUB-12:30" and through the glass door you see two more signs "HAQQ IS HERE" and "HAQQ IS GONE." There were no interpreters.

Another sign about a lecture topic asks "CHRIST — WHY BOTHER?" Another advertises "SOC-HOP SATURDAY" (with the fabulous Corduroys, 50 cents stag and 75 cents drag).

There were 63 signs and bulletins in the lobby, some of them dated, like "FRIDAY WE MARCH — HELP STAMP OUT WAFFLE WORDS" and "BLUES BY FIVE" and "REFORM OR BERKLEY."

There's a pretty receptionist in a red dress who can communicate with old people in their 40s. She said she isn't a student. She just works there. She brought us a coffee while starting a search for the serious young man of the telephone.

While we rested our old bones we realized that our young man was craftily sending the university to us. Two young men started piling boxes of a student publication "Tower" in the lobby, pausing to scratch a beard or ogle a passing parade of net stockings.

●

A window-walled, skylighted auditorium off the lobby hung with art by Shadbolt and other impressionists contained rows of empty seats and a player piano where a youth with heavily-framed glasses and with a serious mein heavily framed with hair, made jazz. It was a hand-clapper piece he played. Two boys and a girl listened and watched with glazed eyes.

The boxes of Towers mounted, towered. Girls of UVODC passed back and forth bearing soiled dishes. A portly townswoman discussed student billeting with the pretty receptionist.

Doors opened and closed and the parade of sweaters and beards and team jackets and hair and stretch pants and net stockings and tight jeans and parkas went on and on.

Somewhere in the university there are art exhibitions, displays of visual aids to teaching, displays of publications, demonstrations of a talking machine, a centennial showing of history, students in national costumes preparing to do folk songs of Russia, Germany, France and Spain, charts on economics, laboratory experiments. A brochure urges visitors to attend noon to 6 p.m. today and Sunday.

We'll leave that to the realists.

For us, the university is the SUB where time is forever and only youth exists and old people in their 40s find memory stirred by a world they'll never join again and envy permeates them, but it's a nice, bittersweet feeling.

That's what university is like. If you're lucky and your guide forgets to appear, you might see it this way too. And you'll be grateful that for the kids who like to sleep on the lawn it can be this way for just a few years, before they cross over to join us.

NEW MEMBER of Victoria Polar Bear Club is adventurous pooch called Buff, who this morning took a dip in Inner Harbor. Probably on a seagull chase. Buff met trouble when he tried to return to dry land, was stopped by slippery harbor walls. SPCA official Wes Des Jardins (left), K. C. Freeman and pilot Bill Adamus fished Buff out by lassooeing him near aircraft wharf. A 10-month-old Golden Labrador, often taken duck-hunting by his master, Buff was returned wetter but wiser, to the McGregor family at 849 Hampshire Road.—(Bill Halkett Photo.)

CLAIM MAJORITY

All-Canadian Union Seeks Support for Gold R. Bid

By ROGER STONEBANKS

The Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada today called for public support in its bid to gain certification at the Gold River pulp mill.

"At present there is an application for certification before the Labour Relations Board, which seems very reluctant to come to a final decision," said Alan Hickman, president of Gold River Local 11.

His statement, addressed as "an open letter to the people of B.C.," was issued as the national executive of the Canadian union began a three-day meeting in Victoria.

"Our last application dated Dec. 14, 1966, was rejected due to the lack of a clear majority. At that time there were approximately 20 employees in the mill.'

An amendment based on this application and submitted Jan. 5 was also rejected "although no specific reason was given.

60 AT MILL

"However, as there are now approximately 60 men in the mill, we feel our majority of 70 per cent is sufficient to warrant a final decision.

"We feel a group of men this size has the right to a union agreement and the protection it will offer. Without this protection we are completely at the company's disposal and have no right whatsoever to voice opinions or ask for any obviously necessary changes.

"It is our opinion that further delays will increase the chances of dissatisfaction which will jeopardize further relations between a union and the Tahsis Company. Once again we ask for your support in our efforts to attain the rights we feel are legally ours."

Applications by both the Canadian union and the rival International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers were rejected by the board.

UNIQUE BID

But a unique bid by the International Woodworkers of America for the west coast Vancouver Island mill under construction is still being investigated by the Labour Relations Board.

In an interview, national union president Orville Braaten of Vancouver said "We'll certainly apply again" for bargaining rights at the Harmac mill near Nanaimo.

The Canadian union applied for bargaining rights at Harmac, Prince George and Elk Falls last summer. All three bids were turned down by the Labour Relations Board and no vote was held among the employees.

RECOGNIZE FEELINGS

"The MLAs must look at this situation," he said. "The legislature must certainly recognize the feeling that exists towards Canadian unions and must get some fairness introduced into the Labour Relations Board — that is where the problem is.

"Why shouldn't the men have the right to a free vote for the union of their choice — that is all we are asking."

Mr. Braaten said it is not for union leaders to decide, "but the men — let's have a free vote."

He also said there are "tremendous sections" of the IWA membership which don't agree with the certification bid at Gold River.

He "couldn't indicate" what mills the Canadian union may seek this summer at the next legal open period for certification applications.

ACROSS CANADA

Asked if the union plans to organize outside B.C., he replied:

"Our structure is to organize across Canada. This is our whole aim. Of course, we're going to do the work here first."

He also said the Canadian union is part of "this whole struggle" for Canadian independence "like Walter Gordon."

Canadians should be "masters in their own house." This was "not anti-American, but pro-Canadian."

The Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada was formed four years ago this month and currently represents about 2,000 workers in B.C. The international pulp-sulphite union has about 6,000 members in the province.

The current executive meeting is the first to be held in Victoria and is designed to give leaders a chance to talk to MLAs.

Curtis View 'Incredibly Shallow'

The president of the students council at the University of Victoria reacted angrily today to reported comments by Saanich Reeve Hugh Curtis.

Stephen Bigsby described the comments, which appeared in another newspaper, as "incredibly shallow" for a person in such a position.

The reeve was quoted as saying Friday's demonstration was a "movie tactic . . . something not worthy of them."

The reeve was also quoted as being disappointed "at the sight of hundreds of casually-dressed young men and women" and expressed the belief they "would be farther ahead if they presented their case in the more usual and formal way."

Mr. Bigsby said the reeve's comments put him in the same category as those who ask what is the academic average of the demonstrating students.

ROOT OF PROBLEM

"Anyone who thinks students want to march as an exercise is refusing to look at the root of the problem.

"He's refusing to recognize the reason for the march — the government's lack of response in the past to formal representations made in the approved manner.

"We've made formal representations regularly for the last four years and each time we've warned responsible officials the problems are more urgent and that the attitude of the students is becoming more hostile because of the government's apparent disinterest.

"The tragedy is not that 2,000 students hit the streets but that the government in the past has failed to respond to our representations."

Ask The Times

Q.—What is the name of the special rose developed for Canada's Centenery?—E.F.E.

A.—There are three: "Canada Centennial," an orange floribunda developed in the United States; "Miss Canada," a bi-colored hybrid tea rose, the candidate of Canadian nurserymen, and "Confederation," a pink hybrid tea developed at Milliken, Ont.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

Victorian Killed In Ontario Crash

Mother Of Four Victim

A Victoria mother of four was killed in a two-car crash on an icy Ontario road Friday while en-route to her husband's Halifax service posting.

Mrs. Marietta Helen Johnson (nee Logan) left Victoria Jan. 17 with her family, husband Petty Officer William Robert Johnson, daughters Wendy, 5, and Joanne, 7, and sons Danny, 8, and Wayne, 9.

A graduate of Esquimalt High School, Mrs. Johnson was a former employee of Hudson's Bay Co. and Woolco stores here. She was 27.

The accident happened during a storm on Highway 69, 12 miles south of Sudbury.

HIT BROADSIDE

The Johnson station wagon, travelling south, was hit broadside by the second car coming the other way.

Wendy Johnson is in critical condition at Sudbury General Hospital.

Petty Officer Johnson, who had sold his home at 997 Londonderry in Saanich, before leaving for his Maritime Command posting, suffered arm and head cuts.

The three other children were treated at the hospital.

SECOND VICTIM

A second woman, a passenger in the other car, was also killed.

Mrs. Johnson had lived here all her life. Her husband, 29, had come to Victoria from Calgary to join the navy.

A family friend said the Johnsons were to return here after two years in Halifax. They recently bought a lot near Metchosin.

Mrs. Johnson is survived by her parents and a sister in Victoria.

One-Man Show Set Wednesday

Pierre Viala, an internationally known French comedian, will give a one-man show Wednesday in the new education-arts lecture theatre at the University of Victoria.

The show starts at 12:30.

The artist is on a tour of Canada and the United States.

FRANK CALDER
. . . urges new effort

30 Seconds Was It!

You looked out your window about 9:30 this morning and there it was — full, golden, resplendent sunshine.

And it lasted about 30 seconds.

"That's what we meant when we told you to look out for 'slight clearing'," weatherman Allan McQuarrie said today.

"That was it."

Mr. McQuarrie said there might be one or two more breaks in the cloud today and Sunday but the total picture didn't offer "much hope."

Rain will be almost steady through Sunday night. It rained all Friday night.

'CYC Has Failed' Job on Reserves

The B.C. legislature's only Indian MLA Friday called for a new effort to combat poverty on the reservations because the Company of Young Canadians has failed.

All levels of government should become involved in the problems "because this is not only an Indian problem, it is a Canadian society problem," said Frank Calder (NDP—Atlin).

He said "the Company of Young Canadians has failed thus far to cope with the situation so I suggest (a study of) the advisability of a joint federal-provincial action in solving poverty on Indian reserves."

Mr. Calder said Indians should not be blamed because they didn't set up the reserves "which are nothing but slum acres."

He said federal Indian policy originally was "subjection first and planning second.

"Poverty and apartheid in relation to the reserve system in this country are black eyes in the Canadian centennial year."

★

Other MLAs applauded as he added:

"If the federal government had provided proper rehabilitative planning on reserves, the Indians today may have had reason to celebrate their achievements in self-government, self-determination, equality of opportunity in education and employment, self-support, equal rights, justice and freedom."

Tom Berger (NDP—Vancouver Burrard) also espoused the Indian cause during the throne speech debate.

He said other provinces are beginning to accept responsibility for the social and economic welfare of their Indians but not B.C.

"I don't blame this government in particular for that because all its predecessors have refused that responsibility," he said.

But he criticized Attorney-General Robert Bonner for deciding to fight in court when a group of Nanaimo Indians two years ago decided to "assert their rights" to go hunting and fishing as solemnly guaranteed in an 1854 treaty with Governor James Douglas which has been officially ignored since 1867.

Songhees Pupil Gets $300 Award

A member of the Songhees band is among seven B.C. Indian students who received Indian Affairs branch scholarships on Friday.

Clarence Dick, an art student, was awarded $300 for studies at the Vancouver School of Art.

Others were, Jean Galligos of Powell River, Mary Rose Harry of Pavilion, Naydeen Janet Kelly of Chilliwack, Richard Band of Squamish, Saul Terry of Bridge River and Vernon Brown of Kitkatla, near Prince Rupert.

GUIDING SKILL of John Todd, 23, of 451 Newport is shown by the trophies he displays. These giant Tyee were boated by sports fishermen he guided last August at Painter's Lodge near Campbell River. The 77-pounder, centre, is the largest ever taken in local Island waters with sports tackle, he claims. John, a biology and zoology student at university, does the taxidermy for his clients.

Since the school opened less than two years ago, well over 100 young people have graduated as superbly trained hairdressers and beauticians . . . in such demand that they go right from school to jobs in this interesting and well-paid career . . . If you've any thought of taking up hairdressing, we suggest you contact Glamour School right away, since enrolments are now being taken for a new course to start on February 13th . . . As of now there are just a few vacancies . . . classes being deliberately kept small . . . Under the direction of Mrs. Flo Hajnal and her capable staff . . . Misses Mame and Mary Anne . . . students are trained in hairstyling and all phases of beauty culture . . . using the latest European methods . . . in a school whose standards of teaching are among the highest in North America . . . And for licensed hairdressers who are already practising their trade . . . Master Stylist Danny Hajnal personally conducts an advance hairstyling class every Monday from 9 to 5 . . . Glamour School of Hairdressing, 1106 Broad St., 386-3621.

Wear silver stockings with your silver shell and short white skirt . . . scintillating.

We'd rather walk than switch! . . .

Next week Sandra, our Volkswagen, is celebrating her first birthday . . . and we honestly think we ought to present her with a gift . . . in appreciation for all the miles and miles of pleasurable, trouble-free driving she's given us . . . Of course a year is a mere nothing in the life of a Volkswagen . . . While owners of other makes turn their cars in from time to time for a great variety of reasons . . . we VW owners keep driving merrily on . . . perhaps because nothing much ever seems to go wrong with a Volks . . . it never looks out of date . . . and you can depend on it to get you where you want to go come hell or high water! . . . Take us, for instance . . . we're never fazed by what the weatherman calls "bad driving conditions" . . . just a little extra care in driving, and our trusty VW will do the rest . . . We honestly think every woman who drives a car should switch to a Volks . . . So easy to drive . . . a cinch to park . . . lots of room to accommodate parcels and children and golf clubs . . . not to mention your husband if he's one of the many men who enjoys being chauffeured . . . So . . . why not talk him into dropping in to Speedway with you for a look-see? . . . Speedway Motors Ltd., Yates at Vancouver St., 385-2415

Three splashes for these young girls who will be competing in the Vancouver Island Synchronized Swimming Championships team swimming next week! Performing one of the difficult routines in the aquatic art, they display the muscle discipline and control necessary for synchronized swimming. They are, beginning at front left and moving clockwise, Sherrilyn Blight, Monica McAleese, Dora Fenswick, Ila Smith, Jacqui Norbury and Megan Hearn.

But Young Aquatic Artists Reach for Top

AMATEUR'S ANTICS ARE 'ALL WET'

By DINA SUDLOW

"How would you like to do some synchronized swimming?" my editor asked.

"I can't swim," I answered.

"Good."

So it was with sinking heart and paid-up life insurance that I arrived at the YM-YWCA swimming pool to take my first — and last — lesson in the art of synchronized swimming. It isn't that I can't swim, for I do pound a mean dog-paddle and I can float slightly, but with these experts in aquatic artistry, such prowess as mine just doesn't hold water.

When I arrived, the pool was filled with a group of girls, chattering and fooling as do all girls ages 10 to 15. But as soon as the music started, they were all business — each performing like graceful young seals to the rhythm of "Buttons and Bows."

With fascination, I watched the teams in action, performing routines which had 'em under the water as much as on. While one team took to the wet stuff, another was standing along the sides of the pool, doing what one of the coaches, Mrs. D. Hawkes, described as "land drills."

The other, Mrs. R. Norbury was putting the teams through their paces in preparation for the Vancouver Island Swimming Championship which takes place at the "Y" next Saturday.

I blurted out, "you're not expecting me to do that, are you?" as I watched the girls roll in dolphin turns and submerge in submarine dives.

Mrs. Hawkes assured me that she would start her reluctant student off with a few simple figures and suggested we watch some of the girls practising these for the first section of the meet, which begins at 2 p.m. The figures displayed the perfect discipline and muscular control needed for this specialized brand of water fun as swimmers went under for the porpoise, a slow circle backward; or the submarine, lying flat out with one leg raised, then submerging to the bottom and back up, without ever changing position.

"Now it's your turn," said the coach.

My pool entry wasn't too successful as I tripped and splashed everyone within 10 feet. The coach had asked one of the young competitors to illustrate the simple routines I was to do.

The first was a lay-out, lying flat back at attention. Sound easy? Not if you're out of condition, thought I as my lower extremities dipped lower and lower until they touched bottom. No matter what I did, something always sagged.

"Try the first part of a ballet step," suggested Mrs. Hawkes, and my young helper held my shoulders as I attempted the lay-out position while slowly sliding one foot up the other leg until the knee was at right angles to the body.

Everyone had a good laugh as I watched leg, knee, and pesky posterior slowly sink out of sight.

The lobster, pushing yourself backwards, looked fairly easy. However, the combination of pushing myself backwards and desperately kicking to keep afloat left me right where I started, spraying everyone as I churned.

The water-wheel was even more of a disaster as I kicked and paddled my way slowly to the bottom.

After that, I left the pool, a gallon of water heavier. Mrs. Norbury and Mrs. Hawkes were very sympathetic, telling me that in order to qualify for synchronized swimming, all the girls have to be certified senior swimmers.

Meanwhile, I continued to watch the routines, marvelling at the perfect control and rhythm of the youngsters.

They will be competing with teams from all over the lower mainland when the team swimming begins at 7 p.m. next Saturday, said the two coaches. I noticed that they never asked me to join one of the teams though.

However, even if my try at synchronized swimming turned out to be a rather damp disaster, I certainly take my bathing cap off to the youngsters who practise the difficult manoeuvres twice weekly, not only for their skill but for their perfect physical condition.

Anyone know a few emergency tuning-up exercises that, preferably, can be done in an armchair?

Impress Neighbors At Your Tea Party

By Penny Saver

At one time, I remember thinking that I was the epitome of stupidity because I wasn't quite sure how to make a "good" cup of tea. To my way of thinking, the art of brewing good tea was something that most people were born with and, somehow, I was left out. The other day, I discovered that I wasn't the only one after all. Two young neighbors confessed that they couldn't make a good cup no matter how hard they tried.

I showed them what I had learned about the art of blending teas, steaming the pot and so on. The one thing that impressed them both was my tea cozy. This wonder of crocheted wool has a huge pompon perched on top. It's the perfect thing to hug your teapot for $3.50. These are hand-made.

Another tea cozy in this shop, also hand-crafted, comes in a variety of colors. Priced at $2.98, this is ribbed and just the ideal cozy for your kitchen.

Thinking of woolen and knitted items, one shop has a supply of high quality mittens of bulk orlon that will keep textbook-clutching hands warm and toasty during that long walk to school. Made for the young lady in your household, these sell for $1.65 the pair. They come in a number of colors from which she can choose her favorite. The many designs have been added by hand. Protect your youngster's hands from winter's chilly blows with these.

One thing about youngsters, it seems that if you would like them to run an errand, whether it takes them just to the corner store or three blocks away, they insist on taking their bikes. (It's like the mania that a teen-ager has the moment he earns his driver's licence.) Caddies that attach to the back wheel of the bike and rest on the rear fender are ideal for packages and books. A plain metal carrier sells for $2. Parcels are secure under a spring device that fits snugly over the bundle. The same carriers painted in a number of colors are priced at $2.75.

Don't forget my number — 382-3131. Give me a call if you want to know where to shop.

Busy Weekend Ahead

A busy two days has been planned for members of the Victoria Chapter Comitas Club when they hold their annual meeting this weekend. Presiding at the activities will be retiring president Mrs. Leo Bawlf.

Members of the Vancouver Chapter will cross to the Island for the events which begin this afternoon in the Ashdowne Road home of Miss Ella Creighton, when Mrs. O. Webber, Vancouver, conducts a presidents' council meeting.

This evening will be the annual meeting and installation of officers in the Century Inn's private dining room. Mrs. Walter Hughes will be installed president of the group. Other new officers include: Mrs. Kenneth Wiper, vice-president; Miss Creighton, recording secretary; Mrs. Ivan Flett, corresponding; Mrs. E. Norman Hartley, treasurer; Mrs. H. G. Robinson, literary secretary; Mrs. R. L. Buller, social; Mrs. R. H. Gale, sunshine; Mrs. D. Taylor, charity; Mrs. D. G. Ferguson; Miss Peggy Bell, entertainment; Mrs. M. Mair, recipes and Mrs. T. G. Dalzell, raffles.

Conducting the installation will be Mrs. Webber. Mrs. Hartley is arranging a program of entertainment. Handling other arrangements are Mrs. K. Murphy, social; and Mrs. Flett, flowers.

Among highlights of the year's activities to be reported at the meeting are the donation of $200 to Arbutus Crafts Association, and the awarding of a $50 scholarship to Miss Lynne Johnston, a second-year education student at the University of Victoria.

Special guests attending the meet will be honorary life members Mrs. D. G. Ferguson, Victoria, and Mrs. K. F. Upsdell, Vancouver.

On Sunday, the Vancouver members will be entertained at a buffet luncheon in the Vista Bay Road home of Mrs. Hartley. Attending from the mainland will be Mrs. R. H. Heywood, Mrs. P. L. Dill, Mrs. Upsdell, Mrs. B. Burton, Mrs. R. Dewar, Mrs. D. H. Flowers, Mrs. Webber, Mrs. W. Butler, Mrs. E. MacKay, Mrs. E. Fuller, Mrs. Joan Rees, Mrs. E. Spray, Mrs. K. Bennett, and Mrs. W. R. Dallamore.

BUSY CALENDAR

His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. George R. Pearkes both were faced with busy social calendars today. This morning, His Honor and Mrs. Pearkes attended the official opening of the Education and Arts Building and the Social Sciences Building at the University of Victoria. On completion of opening ceremonies, His Honor and Mrs. Pearkes attended a luncheon in the residence dining room of the student cafeteria. Their host was Uvic president, Dr. Malcolm G. Taylor.

This afternoon, Mrs. Pearkes attended the Cosmopolitan Tea Hour of the Canadian Girls in Training, held in St. Andrew's Kirk Hall.

This evening, His Honor and Mrs. Pearkes will be at the Memorial Arena for official ceremonies of the Victoria Minor Hockey League.

On Monday, Cmdr. R. Ratcliffe will make an official call on His Honor. Cmdr. Ratcliffe is the new commanding officer of HMCS Qu'Appelle.

Feted Before Wedding

A trio of surprise showers has heralded the wedding of Miss Sharyn Hinton, whose marriage to Michael Romaine takes place this evening.

Pink carnations en corsage were presented to Miss Hinton when Mrs. Robert Iverson held a shower in her Arnett Avenue home. A gaily decorated clothes basket contained the gifts presented by the 14 guests. Buffet refreshments were served.

Her co-workers at City Hall surprised the bride-elect with a shower, held in the Shelbourne Street home of Mrs. L. Merrifield. Carnations en corsage were presented to the honor guest and gifts were contained in a decorated laundry basket. There were 26 guests attending.

Gifts were concealed beneath a brightly decorated umbrella when co-hostesses Mrs. R. Copley and Miss Maureen Foster held a shower in Mrs. Copley's Ridgebank Crescent home.

Miss Hinton and her mother, Mrs. Hap Hinton, received corsages of pink carnations. Buffet refreshments were served to the 12 guests.

Sherry Party

Members of the Ladies' Association of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club will meet in the clubhouse next Wednesday evening for a sherry party. The affair begins at 8 o'clock.

Toronto Visitor

Mrs. R. J. McKenzie left Victoria by plane, Tuesday, for her home in Toronto. While visiting here, Mrs. McKenzie stayed with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Grimshaw, 2181 Mount Newton Cross Road.

Hawaiian Holiday

Spending a month's holiday in Hawaii recently were Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Gladwell and their five children, Kirsty, Tibby, Mary, Allison and Billy. While there, they stayed in the Royal Hawaiian Hotel, Honolulu. They returned last week to their home on Murray Drive.

Honor Leaders

Members of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce and their wives will gather in the ballroom of the Empress Hotel on Tuesday, Feb. 14, for the chamber's Past Presidents' Night. Formal dress will be worn at the affair which begins with cocktails at 6 p.m., followed by dinner at 7 p.m. During the dinner, His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor will award merit plaques to past presidents of the organization. Chairman for the dinner will be Mr. J. Courtney Haddock, the present president. Mr. Stuart Keate will come from Vancouver to be guest speaker. On completion of dinner Fred Usher's orchestra will play for dancing from 9 p.m. to midnight.

Honeymoon in California Follows Marriage Today

Following their wedding this afternoon in St. Christopher's Church, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas James Turner left for a honeymoon trip south to San Francisco.

The bride, the former Yvonne Mary Baldock, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. J. Baldock, 586 Baxter Avenue, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Turner, 2212 Harbor Road, Sidney.

Daffodils, tulips, iris and narcissi formed the attractive spring floral arrangements which decorated the church for the service at which Canon Robert Willis officiated. Organist was Mrs. H. Bulinckx.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a simply-styled gown of white peau de soie, fashioned with a belled skirt. The fitted bodice was sleeveless and featured a round neckline and self-fabric bows at the waistline. Topping the gown was a bolero jacket of re-embroidered lace, styled with short sleeves. Her veil of silk illusion net misted softly from a wedding ring headpiece of peau de soie, accented with lace, and she carried gardenias and freesia in her crescent bouquet. The bride's jewelry accent was a double strand of pearls, "something borrowed" from her mother.

Her only attendant was the groom's sister, Miss Evelyn Turner, who wore an empire-line gown of green peau de soie, fashioned with belled sleeves to the elbow. Her headpiece was similar to the bride's and was edged with net. She carried yellow marguerites and white Johanna Hill roses in her bouquet.

Robert Aaronsen was best man and ushering the guests were the brothers of the principals, Ronald Turner and John Baldock.

Pink and white roses decorated the three-tier wedding cake which centred the head table at the reception following in the home of the bride's parents. Her mother made and decorated the centrepiece. H. W. Carey proposed the toast to his granddaughter's happiness.

The new Mrs. Turner chose a houndstooth check coat in grey, black and rust tones to top the two-piece dress which she wore for travelling.

Her accessories were brown and completing the outfit was a gardenia corsage.

The newlyweds will make their home at 1648 Daisy Street.

Y's Menettes Club Birthday Celebrated With Supper Party

The Y's Menettes Club of Victoria celebrated its 19th birthday this week by holding a pot-luck supper in the Grange Road home of the president, Mrs. J. Duncan.

Among those present were the club's first president, Mrs. R. Girard; another charter member, Mrs. C. Joyce; Mrs. D. Hawthorne, Mrs. A. Prill, Mrs. C. Cornwell, Mrs. M. Pace, Mrs. J. Fawcett, Mrs. J. Bailey, Mrs. W. Fletcher, Mrs. R. Futcher, Mrs. B. Hawker, Mrs. K. Arnott and Mrs. L. Newell.

Members unable to be present included Mrs. L. Cannon, Mrs. S. Hayward, Mrs. W. Arlidge and Mrs. R. Gilchrist.

Surprise gifts from ~~the Y~~'s Men's Club, carnation corsages for each of the guests, added to the enjoyment of the evening. All of the members are wives of men who are active or have served with the Y's Men's Club, the senior service club of the Young Men's Christian Association. Games, balloons and a birthday cake, illuminated with 19 candles, helped set the atmosphere of a birthday party.

During the evening, time was taken to formulate initial plans for the group's seventh annual Festival of Fashion, to be held May 31, which will again see senior secondary school students competing with clothes that they have made during home economic classes.

It was decided to hold the next meeting on Feb. 7 at 8 p.m. in the group's room at the "Y" building. Members were reminded that their catering day at the luncheon of the Silver Threads Service has been set for Feb. 2.

IN STEP WITH STYLE

By NONA DAMASKE

Election Day Livens Nassau's Quiet Season

Following a hectic week of fashion showings in New York, a few quiet days in the sunshine of Nassau seemed like a good idea.

Nona

I imagined the warm arrival at the sprawly airport around 8:30 p.m., the drive through the narrow but quiet streets of Nassau . . . they bustle during the day but are relatively free of traffic during the evening hours. There is a peaceful tourist lull of about three weeks after the festive season . . . no crowding of hotels and restaurants, just a lethargic pause before the winter "season."

First we sat out a two-hour delay at Kennedy International Airport while some motor trouble was attended to . . . a performance not particularly conducive to complete relaxation . . but the pleasant flight more than made up for the delay.

What a shock . . . the streets of Nassau were riotous . . . noisy and crowded with jostling natives. I had arrived at the end of an upset election day . . . the results were final . . . the people of the sunny Bahama Islands had elected their first Negro government. Lynden Pindling, 36-year-old London-trained barrister had led his Progressive Liberal party to a resounding victory over the white-dominated United Bahamian party. There are 115,000 Negroes and 30,000 whites in this British colony and needless to say the excitement of victory for the natives was tremendous.

However, the next day all was fairly calm as most people adopted a wait-and-see attitude.

My hostess, Dorothy Warsdell, has been public relations officer with the Bahamas ministry of tourism for the four years she has lived in Nassau. Formerly with the Canadian Cotton Council, Dorothy made many trips to Victoria and is well aware of the interest our people have in the warm Bahamas.

We toured the famous straw market, the smart dress, perfume and jewelry shops of Bay Street.

Nassau heard of the color explosion long before it became big news in New York. The natives love color and the straw market rivals any Broadway musical for color and gaiety. A straw hat and bag are a "must" purchase . . . the problem is to choose from the hundreds displayed.

Ambrosine is the most charming women's shop you can imagine . . . it drives me crazy . . . I adore everything. Little slithery silk jersey dresses by Emilio Pucci of Italy . . . silk shoes and bags by Taj of India and crisp white eyelet beach attire by Bob Cunningham of California. A few hours spent in this three-level boutique is like a round-the-world shopping tour.

Another favorite is The Scottish Shop, where everything comes from the land of the heather. Their "piece de resistance" is the mohair coat, the floor-length, sleeveless evening style and the classically simple day-time design. They carry about 35 colors and have not changed the style since I was there two years ago.

Gene Barratt, the genial director of hotels and restaurants for Paradise Island invited us to the Ocean Club for a poolside lunch. The first bridge from Nassau to Paradise Island will be ready for traffic by late February and the Ocean Club is building a new 250-room addition to take care of the tourist increase which is bound to come.

Cafe Martinique, a fabulous and authentic Gay Nineties Parisian restaurant faces on a beautiful lagoon known as Paradise Lake and is also in the capable hands of Gene Barratt, who, before coming to the Bahamas, was well known as the genial host of the Pump Room in Chicago.

Nassau is literally bursting its buttons and everyone is keeping their fingers crossed that the new government will keep the doors open for English and American industry.

IODE TO AID HANDICAPPED

The Canadian Centenary Fund established by the Imperial Order, Daughters of the Empire, has passed its goal of $50,000, national president Mrs. J. Neil Gordon announced recently. All provinces across Canada, plus the Yukon Territory, will participate in the fund, by undertaking special projects to be administered by the provincial chapters concerned.

It has been announced that the British Columbia project would be the providing of bursaries or scholarships or both for physically handicapped students, preferably wheelchair cases, but also paraplegics, arthritics, blind persons and amputees, with "preference to those for whom elevators and ramps are essential, so that they may attend universities where such facilities are available."

CLUBWOMEN'S NEWS

Luncheon Meeting — Members of the Vancouver Island Branch of the Canadian Women's Press Club met Sunday for their quarterly meeting in the Oak Bay Beach Hotel. Following a luncheon, Mrs. H. J. Damaske, Times fashion editor, gave a talk on her recent visit to Russia. She was introduced by Mrs. E. Jim Wilson. Miss Dorothy Tupper welcomed new members, Mrs. G. Baldwin, Mrs. E. J. Mitchell, Mrs. J. W. Gibbs and Mrs. Mary Backlund, and presented them with gold feather pins. Miss Tupper discussed plans to arrange tours for foreign press people who may visit here while in Canada for Expo 67. The meeting was attended by 20 members and their friends.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Love and Kindness Can Go a Long Way

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I have never had to worry about my children's playmates, but something has come up that I don't know how to handle. My 12-year-old daughter has a best friend who, herself, is a very nice little girl. But Abby, her mother!

She ran her husband off when he objected to the way she carried on with other men, and they are now being divorced. In the meantime this mother entertains men friends night and day. Apparently she has no shame before her children from the things her daughter tells my daughter. Abby, some of the goings-on in that house are just terrible!

I have told my daughter the facts of life, but it's nothing compared to what her girl friend tells her. What can I do? Should I forbid my daughter to have anything more to do with her friend? It hardly seems fair, but Abby, I am stumped.

STUMPED.

DEAR STUMPED: It is extremely unlikely that your daughter will be corrupted by anything she hears from her girl friend. It would be unfair to punish the child for her mother's behavior.

You could do the girl a tremendous favor by making her especially welcome in your home, where wholesome attitudes and decency prevail. She needs understanding and kindness — not punishment and penalties for a situation over which she has no control.

DEAR ABBY: My boy friend and I have been going together for eight years — since second grade — and now we aren't getting along so good.

He told me to shut up and then I called him a name. Now he won't even say hi to me.

I love him so much I cry at night. How can I let him know I love him and want him back? I don't think he has anybody else yet. If I don't get him back I will just die, Abby.

Please don't think that just because we are only 15 this is puppy love. It is the real thing.

SICK WITH LOVE.

DEAR SICK: "Sick with love" at 15? Hurt, and sorry and a little blue, perhaps, but surely not "sick with love" at such a tender age. You'll survive, honey. Pretend you don't care, and pretty soon you'll discover you really don't.

DEAR ABBY: Cyril and I have been married for nearly four years. We were only 18 and 19 when we married. We went together all through school. We separated three months ago, at his request, but we are still good friends and see each other often. My problem is how to get him to come home and stay home.

I love Cyril and I know he loves me, but here's the situation. When we got married, Cyril had about a year left in the Marine Corps, and he never actually had a life as a so-called civilian all by himself, so he felt he should have his fling now before we had any children, instead of waiting until he was 30 or maybe 35. I know it sounds strange, but in a way it makes a lot of sense to me. How long should his fling take?

CYRIL'S WIFE.

DEAR WIFE: If a man is going to have his "fling," it should be flung before he takes a wife. Tell Cyril to come home where he belongs if he wants to stay married. A husband with "flinging" privileges could fling indefinitely.

How has the world been treating you? Unload your problems on Dear Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069.

For a personal, unpublished reply, enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069.

Plan Trip East

Plans for the forthcoming silver anniversary of the Canadian Ex-Wrens Association will be discussed when the Victoria branch of the association meets on Wednesday in the home of Mrs. Norman Powell, 1680 Kenmore Road. Several members will be attending the anniversary, which will be held from Aug. 25 to 27 in McMaster University, Hamilton, Ont.

Members will also arrange details for a spring tea to be held at 2 p.m. on March 11 in The Bay Douglas Room. The meeting begins at 8 p.m.

Society Neglecting Broken Minds

An internationally-renowned social scientist launched University of Victoria's open house ceremonies Friday night with the claim that society was neglecting the social sciences to its grave peril.

"A future visitor from outer space would wonder why even the richest nations spent such a microscopic fraction of their enormous wealth on the study of the problems that eventually killed them," Dr. Robert McKenzie told an assembly in the university gymnasium.

Dr. McKenzie is professor of sociology at the London School of Economics and widely known as an author and commentator on social issues.

'BROKEN MIND'

"It is easier to repair a badly broken body than a badly broken mind," the dynamic 49-year-old sociologist explained to the large audience which included the University Senate in full academic regalia.

"It is easier to repair a house that has been demolished than to repair the broken marriage in that home."

So society's efforts have been concentrated on the natural sciences instead of the less easily soluble problems of the social sciences, he charged.

And in turn the social sciences had failed society, he added.

The most crucial and compelling problems had been neglected.

The fundamental problem of the causes of conflict had not even been touched upon, said this native British Columbian whose last visit to Gordon Head was for his military training during the Second World War.

Here in Canada he cited the almost complete unwillingness of Canadian social scientists to tackle the problems of biculturalism and bilingualism before French Canadians forced it upon their attention.

"Yet biculturalism and bilingualism is the most interesting and vital problem in the social sciences today," Dr. McKenzie said.

"It was not until recently that the American Negro was able to force his problem on the agenda of the social scientists," he added.

AFRICAN NATIONS

And the significance of this neglect is illustrated in its effect on the political systems of the newly-emerging African nations.

"The political elite from the developing countries who came to great western universities to learn were taught to pattern their thinking after the Westminster model," he said.

The result? "Typical democracies set up on Monday collapsed on Tuesday," he said.

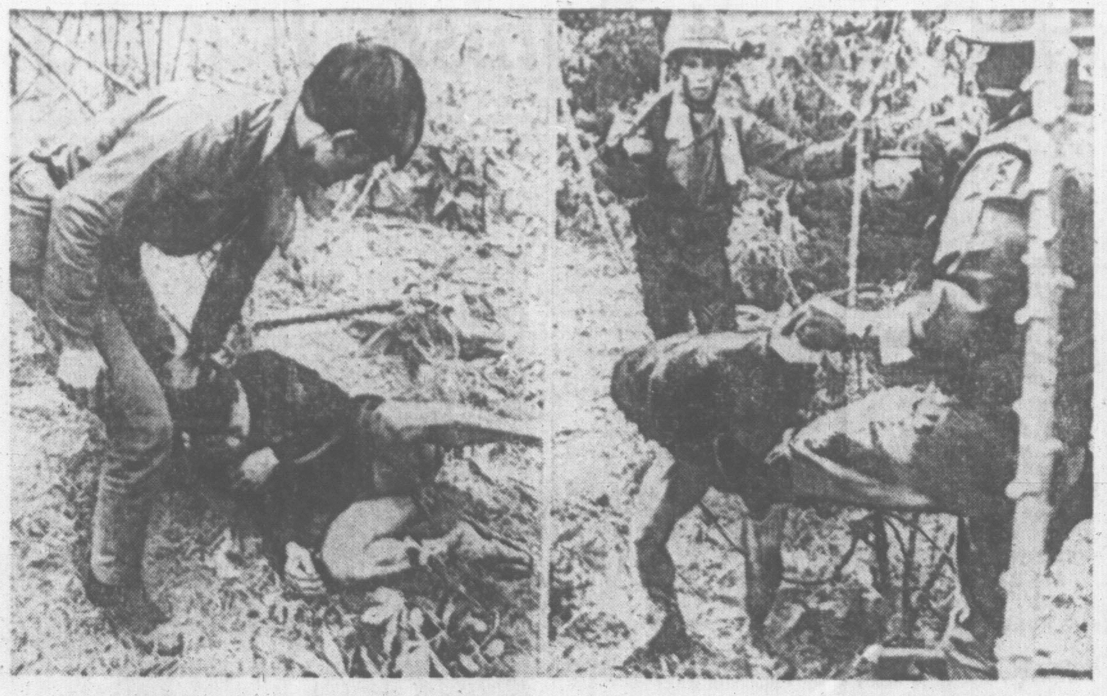
He estimated that fewer than 20 of the world's more than 100 nations possessed a reasonably stable democratic system, because most lacked the "degree of consensus you have to have in a society before you can operate our sort of system," Dr. McKenzie said.

The failure of the social scientists to recognize this fact and impress it upon their eager African embryo leaders led to the chaos that now reigns in Africa, he charged.

Tonight at 8:15 in the Education and Arts Building dedicated this afternoon, biologist Dr. Garrett Harding of the University of California will speak on the "ethical challenges of biology to education."

Forty Bishops Out

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—Forty Roman Catholic bishops have been retired for reasons of age since last August when Pope Paul recommended voluntary retirement at age 75. Vatican press spokesman Msgr. Fausto Vallainc said today that in almost every case the bishop requested retirement. Of the 40, he said 17 were Italians and "about 10" were American.



INTERROGATION of Viet Cong suspect involves roughing up and kicks by South Vietnamese soldier as search goes on for French writer Michele Ray who was captured as she drove through countryside. (AP Wirephoto).

OMINOUS SILENCE SINCE HER CAPTURE

'I'll Be All Right' Said Michele

By PETER KAYSER

PARIS (Reuters)— Beautiful Michele Ray, Paris model-turned-war correspondent now held captive by Viet Cong forces in Vietnam, lives for excitement. The tall, 28-year-old blonde has searched many parts of the world for adventure.

She was reported missing last week after driving alone in her white car 300 miles northeast of Saigon.

Military reports reaching Saigon said her car was mined and booby-trapped, but she was reported alive and well in a Viet Cog-ruled jungle area.

MICHELE RAY . . .
. . . adventurer

Michele, who has an 11-year-old son Patrick, tired of the high-fashion life in Paris in 1965 after working for four years as a model for Chanel.

With two friends, she drove from the tip of South America to Alaska—a trip packed with adventure.

It was a far cry from her upbringing in Nice, her native town on the French Riviera, where she first learned to model.

After spending much of last year lecturing on her marathon trip, Michele decided to head for Vietnam.

Her aim was a filming and reporting trip from Camau, southernmost tip of Vietnam, to the 17th parallel, dividing line between North and South Vietnam.

After four months preparation, she set out last December in her car which was fortified with armored doors and sandbags on the floor as protection against mines.

Michele left an American field headquarters in the morning of Jan. 17 for an airfield where the Americans had promised to airlift her small car over flooded roads to dry land farther north. She never made the rendezvous.

CAPTURED BY REDS

But a few days later reporters learned from local inhabitants that Viet Cong guerrillas had kidnapped Michele. They said she took with her cameras and other equipment.

Before leaving the American headquarters, Michele waved goodbye with her favorite expression: "I'll be all right. Look at the long life line on my hand."

U.S. officers had advised her against making the part of her journey which took her along Route 1 through Bong Son.

One officer said the countryside was deceptively quiet and beautiful here but it was "tomorrow you die" terrain, where some of the bloodiest fighting of the war has taken place.

A spokesman for the U.S. First Air Cavalry Division which is battling for control of the region, said during the weekend helicopters had broadcast messages in Vietnamese about the missing girl.

FRENCH CITIZEN

The message stressed that Michele is a French citizen and held American documents only because she was an accredited correspondent covering the war.

The broadcasts followed the capture of a Viet Cong document saying guerrillas had captured a French correspondent who was "obviously working for the Americans," because she was carrying American papers.

Trailers to Be Held For Act Violation

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — Gov. Walter J. Hickel Firday ordered that two house trailers be shipped from Prince Rupert to Sitka on the state ferry Matanuska in violation of the federal Jones Act.

The trailers, owned by Sal Cucchiari of Sitka, have been stranded in Prince Rupert after being transported there from Caldwell, Idaho, via Vancouver Island and the British Columbia ferry system.

The Jones Act forbids the transportation of goods from one U.S. port to another in a foreign flag vessel, regardless of whether the trip is made in whole or in part on a foreign bottom.

The trailers are to be placed aboard the Matanuska today.

Joseph Bailey, assistant collector of customs at Juneau, said the federal agency advised Mr. Cucchiari that if the trailers were shipped to Sitka from Prince Rupert they would be subject to constructive seizure on arriving at their destination.

OTTAWA (CP) —Department store sales during December were 7.4 per cent higher than December, 1965, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today. Increases by region: Atlantic provinces 6.5 per cent; Quebec 11 per cent; Ontario five per cent; Manitoba 3.9 per cent; Saskatchewan 5.8 per cent; Alberta 9.2 per cent; British Columbia 9.7 per cent.

Students Hate the Javas And Parents Up in Arms

By VINCENT MATTHEWS

MELBOURNE (CP) — Australian parents have been alarmed by disclosures that children in schools in Melbourne have been used in "brainwashing" tests.

Three hundred 13-year-old children from five schools were indoctrinated with suspicion of a fictitious race of people called the "Javas" from a fictitious island called "Queen Island," to the northwest of Australia.

The man who carried out the tests, Dr. Maurice Balson, senior lecturer in education at Monash University in Melbourne, said the tests were a warning of what could be done to children's minds if they were fed false and misleading information.

As part of the indoctrination program, the children were told the "Javas" were different from Australians; had large and strong hands; wore veils to hide their faces; slept during the day and moved about stealthily at night; ate the flesh of young calves after cutting their throats and allowing the blood to drain out.

The false information about the "Javas" was fed to the children under a system called programmed instruction, which encourages children to learn without depending on the teacher by tackling finely graded problems, each one slightly more difficult than the preceding one.

LEARNED TO HATE

Dr. Balson said the system could be used by advertising and mass media and could lead to dangerous manipulation. Governments by similar methods "could swing whole populations into line on such issues as Vietnam and conscription," he said.

When the children were questioned about the "Javas" after the indoctrination, they hated and feared them.

Dr. Balson said it would probably take a year for the children to forget the experiments and it would do them no harm.

Some parents and psychiatrists thought differently. One father of an indoctrinated boy said: "I think it's a rotten thing to try out such tests on young boys. I try to teach my son to treat everyone the same, regardless of race or color."

A Sydney psychiatrist, Dr. John McGeorge, said the test could cause the children to hate all foreigners.

Prof. Stephen Dunn, of the Monash University education faculty, said Dr. Balson's purpose was to draw attention to the dangers of programmed learning if it were mishandled.

Victoria's education minister, John Bloomfield, said it was unfortunate the name "Javas" was used as it was so close to the real people who live on the Indonesian island of Java, which also is to the northwest of Australia.

'God Doesn't Punish, But Saves'

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

NEW YORK (AP)—Biblical language sometimes pictures God as an angry judge who punishes the wicked. But many theologians today maintain that this misrepresents God.

"God doesn't punish, but saves," says Rev. Gregory Baum, a Roman Catholic scholar at St. Michael's College, Toronto.

Although the biblical imagery conveys a basic truth about the inevitable consequences of evil, "God does not impose punishment. It is man himself who is the author of his punishment."

Many Scriptural portrayals of God—as angry, jealous, or even as repenting and changing his mind—are used to simplify a "divine message" which we miss altogether if we interpret the terms literally," Father Baum says.

Some conservative churchmen, however, hold to literal interpretations.

Father Baum, a theological adviser at the second Vatican council, writes in the current The Ecumenist that many Christians "regard God as a judge who punishes."

●

They often look on Him not as "the author of salvation and the source of life," but rather as "a distant onlooker, a scrupulous judge, approaching them as an accuser."

However, he adds, the "central bibilical theme of divine justice brings out that God is one who intervens as Saviour in the lives of men," not as a punisher.

This over-all emphasis, Father Baum says, is pointed up not only in the New Testament but also by the later prophets of the Old Testament.

They were "quite conscious that they spoke of God in poetic way," he says. "They realized that their words would be minsunderstood if taken literally. For this reason they emphasized how different God is from man . . ."

However, to say that God "always acts as Saviour" does not run counter to the church teaching "about the judgment men must face after they die."

●

"The disorder generated by sin deforms the personality of the sinner; hence, when after death he is made to face what he really is, the punishment comes upon him as the ultimate consequence of his own sinful ways."

As for the "fear of God," described in the Bible as the beginning of wisdom, Father Baum says this means the reverence and awe that is due an all-holy God, but it also can mean a less lofty but God-inspired fear of punishment.

"This fear of the punishment for sin is not a fear of God—for God is always Saviour—but fear of the ineluctable consequences of sin which will eventually catch up with us and be our punishment."

When the Bible speaks of God as judge, it is His Word "which like a double-edged sword penetrates deeply into the conscience of man. God's word . . . reveals to man his faults and failings . . .

●

"This judgment is the reverse side of grace . . . through His merciful intervention in the lives of men He makes them face their illness and enables them to receive His remedy. The message of salvation judges and forgives . . ."

But what causes the punishment? "Sin initiates chaos," says Father Baum. "Between sin and punishment there is an automatic connection, a necessary chain, which no man is able to interrupt. Man, the winner, is caught . . .

"When God intervenes in the life of the sinner, He always acts as Saviour. He breaks the automatic connection between man's sin and his punishment."

Actually, Father Baum says, when the Bible depicts God as punishing the wicked, "what is announced is the inevitable chain between man's sin and his punishment," and his own incapacity to free himself from its destructive web.

But in Jesus Christ, God acted "to make salvation available to the whole human race," giving mankind a way to "share in the self-surrender or sacrifice of His Son and thus be united to Him in doing His, the Father's, will."

EVANGELIST meetings will be conducted by Evangelist H. J. Green of Hamilton, Indiana, at the Free Methodist Church, 1610 Cook Street, starting Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. through to Sunday, Feb. 12. He has had 25 years' experience as pastor of a church and 10 years as evangelist.

They'll Go-Go Again

VANCOUVER (CP) — An Anglican minister reprimanded by his bishop for organizing an experimental church last November said this week there should be more such services.

The service featured a go-go dancer, modern music and readings of T. S. Eliot poetry.

Rev. James McKibbon said there will be another psychedelic service in the city sometime.

"But," he commented, "I don't know whether I'll be doing it or not."

Mr. McKibbon told a service club his comments didn't necessarily represent the official view of the church.

UPDATE CHURCH

Rev. McKibbon said the church needed new modes of expression.

"We have to get to all the people," he said. "This reform means updating the church so that we can speak about religion and Christianity in a way which contemporary man can understand.

"Reform also means that we might have to change the church's structure. With the growth of the city, churches rushed headlong into suburbia because suburbia is an attempt to recreate a small town where the church's methods and structure could still work.

"In the church we tend to sanctify actions just because they are ancient," said Mr. McKibbon. "This is irrational."

PASTOR DID WHAT CAME NATURALLY

UPPER MUSQUODOBOIT, N.S. (CP)—Combining the role of credit union pioneer with that of United Church pastor has always seemed quite natural to Dr. John Donald Nelson MacDonald.

After 40 years in the forefront of organizing co-operatives and credit unions, he says:

"I listened to the problems of the people, and organizing them to help themselves came naturally, all as part of the day's task."

CITY CHURCH NEWS

Teaching Mission At First United All Next Week

The 105th anniversary of the First United Church will be marked by a teaching mission conducted by Prof. Lindsay Vogan, professor of Old Testament Language and litearture, St. Stephen's College, Edmonton.

Each evening at 8, Monday through to Friday, Prof. Vogan will speak on the themes "God's Way With Man . . . the Christian in the World," in Metropolitan United Church.

There will be time for questions and discussions at a coffee hour following the presentation.

On Saturday, starting at 4 p.m., in First United Church Fellowship Hall, Prof. Vogan will address young people. Theme of his address is "The Master Wants You."

First United Church will hold its congregational Pot-Luck Fellowship dinner and annual meeting, Monday, Feb. 6.

* * *

On Sunday at 11 a.m. at James Bay United Church Rev. Harold T. Allen will speak on "God's Gift of Moral Capacity."

Said Mr. Allen: "Use of this capacity develops man's true nature as a person. On the other hand, man's misuse of this gift can brutalize man, create disorder and suspicion, and ultimately bring man to oblivion. We cannot live by suppression of truth or by credibility gaps."

At 7:30 p.m., Rev. N. K. Archer continues his prophecy series, "Missions Yesterday and Today".

There will be a joint young people's meeting for all BMF and BYF members following the evening service.

* * *

Rev. A. G. MacLeod will continue his series of sermons on the Ten Commandments at St. Aidan's United Church morning service.

At the evening service a film entitled "David and Hazel" will be shown.

* * *

"How hard do we work at building the home?" is the subject chosen by Rev. H. R. Whitmore for both Garden City and Wilkinson Road United churches.

At the 10 a.m. service at Garden City, Hazel Nunn of Sidney will sing "I Shall Not Pass This Way Again".

At Wilkinson Road at 11:15 a.m. the anthem will be Lord's Prayer.

* * *

Newly elected officers of the British Israel World Federation, Victoria branch, are: Ivor Worrall, president; Will Taylor, vice-president; E. W. Abraham, secretary; W. W. Cook, treasurer; committee, R. Doty, Nigel Young, Mrs. Abraham, Mrs. Grover, Mrs. Worrall, Mrs. Botham.

Prayer Anthology Across the Nation

TORONTO (CP)—A 134-page anthology of prayer will be distributed next week to every religious congregation in Canada, says Mrs. Eve Gilstorf, executive director of the Canadian Inter-Faith Conference.

"There has been nothing like this ever done before. All denominations have contributed to the anthology which is completely bilingual," she said in an interview.

A 1,000-year-old English tradition, "The Annual Spring Flower Festival," will be held at the Church of Our Lord Sunday.

The tradition dates back to early Saxon times. An example were the churches at Denton and Tarring Neville, Sussex. They were decorated with the first new flowers and blossoms of spring, as symbols of God's perpetual providence, and the new life and birth which springtime unfailingly brings.

The church will be decorated with many varieties of fresh tulips, daffodils, narcissi, iris and chrysanthemums. The blooms will be distributed among the hospitals and rest homes after the services.

Bishop Denys Rankilor speaks on "Spiritual Springtime" in the morning. The evening subject will be "God's Handiwork."

Roger Beavan, boy soprano, is the evening soloist.

* * *

Liturgical music of the 20th century will be sung at the service of Holy Communion at All Saints' Church, Pallisier Avenue, View Royal, Sunday at 7:30 p.m.

The music will be sung by a young people's choir from Christ Church Cathedral under the leadership of Richard H. Proudman.

The choir includes Madeleine Groos (guitar), Hillary and Brian Groos, Bill, Peter and Michael Dyson, Stephen and John Horning, Kim Mills, Judy and Ian Poole, Glen Macdonald and Ron Webb.

The music called "Rejoice" was written in 1964 for use at a liturgical conference sponsored by the Missionary Society of the General Theological Seminary of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States.

* * *

At the morning service of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Rev. J. Lewis W. McLean will speak on "Paul and Our Faith." Evening service will be conducted by Rev. Bruce J. Molloy. His sermon: "Reverently Preserved."

* * *

Mrs. Otto Niedermann will direct the choir in "At Even, Ere the Sun is Set," at the Emmanuel Baptist Church 11 a.m. service.

Computer-Oriented Society His Topic

"Evolution of a Computer-Oriented Society" will be the subject of Peter A. Darling's lecture to the University Extension Association of Victoria Monday evening at 8:15 in Room 144 of the Education Arts Building, Gordon Head Campus. Mr. Darling is director of the computer centre and a lecturer in mathematics at the University of Victoria.

'His Love Perfected'

"Love" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon to be read in all Christian Science churches this Sunday. The Golden Text is from John: "No man hath seen God at any time. If we love one another, God dwelleth in us, and his love is perfected in us."

BUT SELDOM ARE THEY PASTORS

Women Are Pillars of Church

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

In Canada, women are the pillars of the churches. They raise money, attend services, teach Sunday school, fill many paid positions.

But the clergy remains overwhelmingly male and so does membership on boards that run churches locally and nationally.

Change is currently in the air. There are new laws, new looks at old laws, quite a lot of talk. But if it is a revolution, it must rank as the quietest ever.

In June, 1966, the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada voted to allow women to be ordained and to become elders taking part in administration of a church. The margin was narrow and a number of delegates remained unswayed. Results have been slight.

The United Church has ordained about 60 women since 1936 but few have had full charge of a church. Women are also eligible for United Church administrative boards.

Ordination of women is a thorny issue in discussion of union between the United Church and the Anglican Church of Canada. It is not at all certain Anglicans are ready to accept the idea.

In the last 20 years eight of the 28 Anglican dioceses in Canada have voted to allow women members in the synod, the administrative unit.

●

Baptists have ordained women for about 20 years, but not many.

There are occasional unofficial suggestions from Roman Catholics that no real barrier exists to the ordination of women except tradition, but the subject is not officially open. Administration is handled by the clergy.

Among Jews the idea of women becoming rabbis doesn't seem to be the subject of even idle speculation. One synagogue director burst out laughing at the suggestion. Women are represented on administrative boards only as officers of women's auxiliaries.

When church people are asked why the role of women remains restricted, they mention tradition, psychology, public opinion or prejudice, the fact that Jesus chose no women as disciples, and St. Paul's writings.

Psychologically, it is seen as difficult for Canadians to accept the idea of a woman filling the father image of the clergyman and also difficult for women to see themselves in this role.

The reference to St. Paul is based largely on three verses.

In the First Epistle to Corinthians, chapter 11, verses 7 to 9, St. Paul wrote:

"For a man indeed ought not to cover his head, forasmuch as he is the image and glory of God: but the woman is the glory of man."

In chapter 14, Verses 34 and 35, he wrote:

"Let your women keep silence in the churches: for it is not permitted unto them to speak; but they are commanded to be under obedience, as also saith the law.

"And if they will learn anything, let them ask their husbands at home: for it is a shame for women to speak in the church."

Some church people take these words literally. Others now argue that St. Paul's objections were not theological but social and based on behavior patterns that don't exist today.

●

Discussing the modern focus on the question, Rev. Eoin S. Mackay of Toronto says: "At this point we are concerned about principle. We say it (refusal to ordain women) is a denial of the grace of God. There are not first- and second-class people—man means generic man."

Mr. Mackay was convener of the Presbyterian General Assembly committee on the place of women in the church. He says his church's concern with the question is less a reflection of the current social climate than it is a part of the revival of theological concern reflected in ecumenism.

Whatever the reason for change, Mr. Mackay doesn't expect much immediate action.

"There won't be a great flood of women ministers. There is a problem getting men."

Seven months after the General Assembly decision, Dr. E. A. Thomson says there are only three women elders in the church. No Presbyterian woman has applied for ordination though several have the academic requirements. Dr. Thomson is secretary of the Presbyterian Church in Canada.

●

In the longer experience of the United and Baptist churches, there have been few women ministers and acceptance of them still seems far from complete. Some congregations are still reluctant to "call" a woman.

Rev. Harriet Christie of the United Church Training School for girls in Toronto says:

"At the initial calling of a woman there is the extra factor for a congregation of whether they want a woman. For the most part the only places where women are stationed are those too difficult for men to take—where they couldn't find a man to take it.

"Once they are in a situation, however, they are accepted by fellow ministers and by the congregation."

Dr. Leland Gregory, general secretary of the Baptist convention of Ontario and Quebec, agrees.

"The likelihood of a church inviting a woman is slight, I'm sorry to say. We have a handful of ordained women in this country. I'm not certain any of them is in full-time pastoral charge.

"Though there is a tendency to put men in charge, there is no barrier to a woman beyond the more or less normal—and it is normal, whether we like it or not. There is a failure on the part of society to acknowledge the rightful place of leadership women should have."

THE CARIBOO KID stalked into the House, pushed back his stetson and drew . . . on his vast store of parlimentary knowledge to defend his headgear. A history of the British Commons said hatless members were demonstrating the emptiness of their position. He referred to "this age of toplessness" while his Socred colleagues thumped their desks. The Cariboo Kid, alias Attorney-General Bonner, went unchallenged and many MLAs left town by sundown.

Feds to Dump Plan on B.C.?

Attorney-General Robert Bonner Friday predicted the federal government will withdraw from medicare as soon as it is established.

Speaking in the debate on the speech from the throne the attorney-general said:

"The federal government is simply backing out of every shared-cost program it had previously proclaimed was beneficial to the country as a whole."

He added, "We have had a clear warning of the federal government's intention in that all the shared-cost programs introduced with such a flourish have been described as inadequate or inappropriate or not to be continued in the future.

"This will be applicable to medicare as soon as it has been established."

The attorney-general provoked a storm of protest from the Liberal benches when he placed the blame for housing shortages in the province on the federal Liberal government.

"Tight money has forced interest rates so high that conventional lenders to all intents and purposes are forced out of business," the attorney-general charged.

"It's because you haven't acted for 10 years," angrily shouted Liberal Leader Ray Perrault.

The attorney-general repeated his earlier criticism that proposed federal deposit insurance legislation would be ineffective on a provincial scale and "fall short of what is required for provincial protection."

The attorney-general also stated as government policy a willingness to negotiate with any important group willing to establish a copper smelter in B.C., a reply to criticism from Opposition Leader Robert Strachan concerning subsidization of industry.

He also warned the Opposition leader that the alternative to ex parte civil injunctions was criminal intimidation proceed-

THE WEEK'S WORK

By JACK BEASTALL

Gardeners with conservatories or other glassed living rooms may have showy early spring shrubs for decoration indoors if they purchase lilac, forsythia and magnolia with buds formed. Keep at temperature around 45 to 55 degrees F. for two weeks, then higher. Syringe branches frequently with water.

Freesias, hyacinths and tulips should be coming along well in pots for indoor bloom. Give weak feedings.

If seed and plant lists are not completed, see to this now. Keep seed packets in cool dry place until used.

Look for slugs around 10 p.m. in greenhouse and frames. They seem to keep under cover until this time. Benches and floor in greenhouse should be watched for signs of their shiny trails. Metaldehyde slug bait, well moistened, will attract them and soon clear the area. Put a few slug bait pellets on the inside of a small can laid on its side to prevent pets from sniffing at them.

If greenhouse or sunporch is kept free of frost by use of a little heat, old fuchsias and geraniums can be started into growth to furnish cuttings and to produce large bushy plants.

Set a dozen early potatoes to sprout and root into compost and peat moss; for planting later into a protected coldframe.

QUIZZING THE GARDENER

Q. Is it any use to leave snapdragon plants from last year growing in the garden? Some of them look very poor but others still have a few green leaves. Will they flower again this year? L.M., Oak Bay.

A. Snapdragons are best grown as annuals, sown in January indoors.

However, if some good plants survive winter, in March cut back damaged portions and see if you get a few strong early spikes of bloom by late May. Discard the plants in October.

Q. Can I grow good polyanthuses from seed, or should I buy plants? T.D., Victoria.

A. A fine range of colors can be grown from fresh seed of Primula polyanthus if bought from a specialist grower of these plants. You could then select those you like best for propagation by division. On the other hand, you will be ahead if you buy as plants only those colors you enjoy, and propagate those by division.

Tower of Babel Story Wrong Says Scientist

CAIRO (AP) — A French scientist contends the Tower of Babel was not "an act of arrogance on man's part to defy God, but rather a means to get close to him."

Prof. Bernard Groslier, writing in the Cairo magazine L'Image, said:

"No doubt, the first civilizations which arose somewhere between the Nile and the Euphrates operated under the concept of 'towers' rising toward the sky, like the pyramids and obelisks. This was for the purpose of aspiring to reach the skies, get close to the gods in order to make prosperity descend through the steps from heavens on mankind.

"Egypt's step pyramid of Saqqara is but a kind of ladder to reach the sky."

Groslier, who is director of the French school of archeology in Cambodia, explained that in Egypt's fifth pharaonic dynasty "a text says that the obelisk touches the sun and thus streams down along the pyramid its rays to the earth."

He added that Cambodia's ancient mountain-like monuments known as "angkor," which are the Asian version of Egypt's pyramids, and the towering monuments of India have the concept of "towers" reaching to the sky.

CROSSED THE INDUS

This religious concept moulded in the architecture itself, crossed through the Indus and spread out in Asia. The mountain like monuments in Cambodia prove it, said Prof. Groslier.

Groslier said he found a papyrus scroll of one of the Khmer (Cambodian) kings which cites: "I have built this temple with its towers to burst through the sky and stream down along the pyramids on my people the benefactions of the gods."

According to the Bible, Jacob's ladder is used by angels to climb up to the sky and to come back, the professor notes.

This religious concept is evidently related with nature and the cosmos. In Egypt, the heliacal star has been focused for the orientation and emplacement of ancient monuments. In India, the polar star — which is known as the only fixed star —impressed the Indians on the Himalaya summit who considered it as the axle of the world.

HOME GARDEN

Names Differ, Same Old Meal

By JACK BEASTALL

When buying fertilizer you receive one or more of three basic materials, regardless of the price you pay or the brand name on the package. These three materials, or elements, are nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potassium; the meat, potatoes and dessert of a balanced meal for garden plants. We can mix these three elements in different proportions and have a meal suited to the needs of different plants and the requirements of different soils.

Jack

This accounts for the number of fertilizers to be found on the market, to the utter confusion of the home gardener who is neither a scientist nor a chemist.

CONTENT COUNTS

We can clear the picture a little when we understand the effect each of these elements has on our plants and realize that the food content within the container is the important thing, not the brand name on the outside.

Nitrogen promotes rich green growth. It is essential to a good-looking lawn, a nutritious lettuce leaf and the appearance of the foliage on all plants.

While nitrogen increases the green in plants it also promotes rapid growth which is soft or succulent, often lacking the stiffness to stand upright and easily damaged by adverse weather. It is essential to young plants and it tends to prolong the juvenile state.

Phosphoric acid promotes seed production, which means good flowers on our flowering plants and good seeds in our peas and beans. It stiffens the rapid growth induced by nitrogen and turns the juvenile into an adult. It also promotes healthy roots.

STIFFENER

Potash is essential to all plants, and the home gardener can consider it a general stiffener which balances the effects of the other two elements, adding vigor, disease resistance and overall well being.

Lack of potash can result in die-back, winter-kill and a general condition of weakness that is unable to resist attacks of various diseases.

From this we see that each element, to do its job effectively, depends on the assistance or control exercised by the other two. When these three elements are mixed we have what is called a balanced fertilizer.

LEGAL MINIMUM

Canadian law requires that each one hundred pounds of fertilizer shall contain a minimum of 20 lbs. of available plant food, and the percentage of each element must be stated on the outside of the container.

The other 80 lbs. is filler which makes it possible for the home gardener to use safe amounts without having to measure quantities in drams as a druggist would when compounding a prescription.

The percentage of food elements in a fertilizer mix is shown in three figures, for example, 5-10-5. This means that in each 100-lb. bag there will be 5 lbs. nitrogen (N), 10 lbs. phosphoric acid (P), and 5 lbs. potash (K), always in that order.

These figures are called the analysis, and we find such combinations as 4-12-4, 5-10-4, 6-8-6, 4-10-10, and many others.

We can purchase these three food elements separately, or in combinations of two elements with the third missing. Any element that is not included in the mix is shown as zero in the analysis. For instance, nitrogen only could be 21-0-0, while an ammonia-phosphate mix could be 16-20-0. Straight potash would list as 0-0-45.

In these figures we have the answers to the questions most frequently asked by home gardeners. The first is: what make of fertilizer do you recommend?

ALL SAME

Since all fertilizer manufacturers market the same formulations, the gardener may purchase any brand he prefers. All 6-8-6 mixes will be identical as far as food value is concerned regardless of the brand name on the bag.

The second question is: what fertilizer should I use? The answer is always to use the fertilizer suited to produce the results you are seeking.

For example, if you want to green up the lawn you need nitrogen and will look for an analysis such as 16-0-0, all nitrogen. To green the lawn and improve the turf you need nitrogen and phosphoric acid, so you look for two figures such as 16-20-0.

For succulent lettuce, cabbage and other leaf vegetables, nitrogen is again needed but for solid heads of lettuce and cabbage a three-figured balanced analysis is best, such as 6-8-6 or 5-10-5.

For roses, and flowering shrubs and perennials, also edible seeds (peas, beans), we should use a mix in which the first and last figures are about the same and the middle figure much higher, for instance 4-12-4.

Potatoes, bulbs and most root crops need a mix containing low nitrogen and high phosphoric acid and potash and we find these figures in the potato and bulb mixes which read 4-10-10.

HIGHER PRICE

Taking any set of figures, such as 5-10-5, we shall find concentrated formulations of the same mix reading 15-30-15. These are three times as strong, or contain three times as much plant food, and the price is higher in proportion.

These concentrated mixtures are not for the home gardener, they are for the farmer, but before he uses them he will add sand or gypsum to reduce the strength. In this way the farmer saves freight on the inert spreader.

The reason I advise against their use in the home garden is that one teaspoonful of 5-10-5 is enough for a large plant but when 15-30-15 is used only one-third teaspoonful is needed. Unless this is accurately measured and spread over the entire root area the plant may be harmed rather than helped.

Minor Admitted Rum Was His

Arthur Jones, 18, of Canadian Forces Base, Esquimalt, was fined $35 in central court Friday when he pleaded guilty to being a minor in possession of liquor.

The accused admitted owning a bottle of rum found by police when they checked a car on Burnside Jan. 20, court was told.

Sign of Ram To Dominate 'Frisco Fun

SAN FRANCISCO — San Francisco's Chinese community — the biggest in the western world — has grown by more than eight per cent in the past year.

According to immigration officials here, about 8,000 China-born immigrants from all over the world have entered the U.S. since December, 1965, when the new law increasing the Chinese quota went into effect. Of these, some 4,500 have settled in San Francisco, swelling the city's Chinese population to approximately 65,000.

MUST FOR BUFFS

The repute of the city's Chinese New Year extravaganza has been growing, too. In recent years the annual Golden Dragon parade has come to be regarded as a not-to-be-missed classic by hundreds of thousands of parade buffs throughout the West.

San Francisco's Chinese citizenry will join hands with the Caucasian community next February 18-26 to ring in the Year of the Ram — Chinese lunar calendar year 4665 — with a round of exotic festivities the like of which is seen nowhere else in the Occident.

In keeping with local custom, the big public celebration will follow the traditional, family-style observance of the New Year which falls on February 9, 1967.

MISS CHINATOWN

San Francisco's Chinese festival gets under way the ensuing week with "Miss Chinatown U.S.A." pageantry, street fairs and outdoor programs, Chinese cultural events, lion dancing and firecracker barrages. It will reach an ear-splitting crescendo on Saturday, Feb. 25, the night of the city's spectacular Chinese New Year parade, according to the San Francisco Convention and Visitors Bureau.

The fact that the forthcoming lunar year will be dominated by the sign of the ram is of special significance to Chinese San Franciscans whose ancestors began arriving in the "Great City of the Golden Hill," as they called it, over a century ago.

FROM CANTON

They, and most of their countrymen who came later, were southern Chinese from the region around Canton. Cantonese dialect and Cantonese cooking prevail today in this quarter of San Francisco.

Since Canton is the City of the Rams, the new year seems to bode well for San Francisco's Chinese residents.

Canton's association with rams is based on an ancient Taoist belief. According to legend, the Five Rulers, who are identified with the five sacred mountains of Taoism, long ago descended from the heavens and entered Canton mounted on rams.

FULL LARDER

The Five Rulers were clad in different colored garments and rode different colored rams. Each divinity carried a stalk of corn having five ears which were presented to the people as a promise that famine would never visit the district. At the market place, the gods alighted and vanished. The rams turned to stone and have remained there ever since as evidence of this divine visitation. One of Canton's latgest temples is dedicated to the Five Rulers. The stone rams enshrined there are one of the city's main attractions.

Judging from this, the Bay Area's Cantonese can count on a full larder during the year 4665.

There's no doubt that New Year and year-round visitors to Chinatown's renowned restaurants can count on some of the world's finest cuisine.

Golfing Tour Flights Set

With typical Gallic flair, Air France is offering Canadian golfers next spring a golf tour that even their wives will enjoy. Flight 031 leaves Montreal at 8:45 p.m. direct to Paris and by noon, next day, golfers and their wives are in Malaga, Spain, and headed for the Hotel Sotogrande and the famous Club de Golf Sotogrande. The following morning, while the men start out early to play their first 18 holes, their wives are off on a shopping tour to nearby Gibraltar.

PLASTIC SNOW covering the side of a mountain has turned Scotland's new Aviemore Holiday Centre into an all-year-round ski slope. The Place Is Jumping At Frog Championships

April in Southern California is going to be a month of flowers and unusual contests. There will be a jumping frog derby, a kayak race on a mountain stream, and a competition to pick the world's most beautiful girl.

The International Beauty Congress will reach its climax at Long Beach on April 29 when the finals are held among 40 foreign and 50 U.S. beauties to pick Miss International Beauty.

Frogs, some 500 of them, will compete in the hilarious Southern California Jumping Championships at Del Mar near San Diego on April 22 and 23 to pick the jumpingest candidate for the Jumping Frog Jubilee later at Angels Camp. There will also be a prize, according to the area's All-Year Club, for the "best dressed frog."

Daring canoe and kayak enthusiasts will race in the turbulent rapids of the Kern River high in the Sierra Nevada Mountains above Bakersfield, where the big Isabella Dam has backed up a year-around fishing lake.

Some 300 residents of the towns of Hemet and San Jacinto are rehearsing for their roles in the Ramona Outdoor Play, to be given three weekends in a natural amphitheatre on the slope of Mt. San Jacinto. The play is based upon Helen Hunt Jackson's novel of the Indian girl Ramona. It is given weekends — April 22-23 and 29-30 and May 6-7 — because the cast is busy at other duties weekdays.

The famous Pageant of Roses Garden in Rose Hills Park in the Los Angeles suburb of Whittier is in riotous bloom most of the year, because of special conditions, but one peak period is in April. More than 4,000 plants are arranged in tiers. There are rare blooms, some in tints of green and lavender.

There will be two orchid festivals. The big Stewart Orchid Nursery in San Gabriel opens its greenhouses of tens of thousands of Cymbidiums in a rainbow of colors, to public visits April 13 to 16. The International Cymbidium orchid show will be held at Santa Barbara, another orchid culture centre, April 21 to 24.

2 P&O SAILINGS SET FOR SPRING

P & O has scheduled two sailings across the warm Pacific and through the Suez to Europe this spring.

The big, modern liner Oriana sails from Vancouver March 20. Fifteen ports of call from Canada to Colombo to Cannes are featured on this leisurely 48-day voyage. En route to Europe, Oriana will make her regular spring visit to Japan, arriving there at the height of the cherry blossom season.

After sailing to Hong Kong, Singapore and Colombo, the superliner crosses the Red Sea, transits the Suez Canal and calls at Naples, a starting point for the European tour. Cannes, Gibraltar and Southampton are other possible departure points.

ALTERNATE VOYAGE

In early May, the Arcadia offers an alternate Pacific voyage to Europe, sailing through the sunny South Seas en route to Singapore, Colombo and the Suez. The 30,000-ton liner calls at Port Everglades April 21, then travels the Panama Canal and arrives in Vancouver May 6.

Pacific landfalls after Honolulu include Suva, Auckland and ports in Australia. Once in Mediterranean waters, the Arcadia calls at Naples, Lisbon, Rotterdam and London, arriving at her home port June 30.

Reservations may be made through P & O lines offices in Vancouver and Toronto or local travel agents.

HAWAII ISLAND HAS IT ALL

. . . And a Drive-In Volcano

HAWAII ISLAND — From the shores of Hilo Bay to the historic Kona Coast, Hawaii's Big Island offers the vacationer a big bundle of vacation attractions.

Southernmost of the Hawaiian chain and only 40 minutes by jet from Honolulu, Hawaii island is aptly nicknamed. It is, the biggest of the Hawaiian islands, has the biggest cattle ranch under single ownership in the world and has one of the world's biggest, and probably only, drive-in volcanos.

Hilo, capital of Hawaii island county, is situated on Hilo Bay at the foot of the cane covered lower slopes of Mauna Loa and orchid nurseries, anthurium farms and lovely waterfalls are among the attractions in the area.

The gala Merry Monarch Festival takes place in Hilo every spring in memory of King Kalakaua.

Mauna Loa, which has erupted on an average of every three and a half years since 1832, affords one of the Aloha State's most exciting sightseeing attractions and is easily accessible from Hilo and other areas of the island.

FERN FOREST

The Hawaii Volcanoes National Park, locale of past and present landmarks attesting to Mauna Loa's volcanic activities, is endowed with giant fern forest, eery lava tubes and steaming sulphur banks. The Park also has a volcanological museum which is open to the public and a new attraction is a helicopter flight over recent eruptions and the Halemaumau fire pit.

On the west coast of the Big Island, and a two and a half hour drive from the Park is Kailua-Kona, one of Hawaii's most popular and picturesque resort areas.

Once the playground of Hawaiian royalty, this tiny village is now the playground of thousands of visitors each year.

PLEASING BLEND

As the hub of activity of the Kona area, Kailua proper is a pleasing blend of the old and new. Centuries-old churches, ancient heiaus and modern hotels offer the visitor a wide variety of activities. The nearby City of Refuge at Honaunau and Captain Cook monument at Kealakekua Bay afford two of the State's most interesting sightseeing tours.

One of the area's liveliest festivals is that paying tribute each spring to Captain Cook, discoverer of the Hawaiian Chain.

Kailua-Kona is also the centre of the Kona coast's marlin fishing activities and is the headquarters for the annual Hawaiian International Billfish tournament which draws teams from around the world.

To the north of Kona, across the rugged lava flows at the foot of Hualalai and Mauna Kea is the Kawaihae-Waimea area where a deep water harbor, resort hotel and rolling cactus and pasture lands show again another face of the island of Hawaii.

There are three airports on the island of Hawaii. The largest, Lyman Field, in Hilo, has the first Neighbor Island jet air strip. The two auxiliary fields are in the Kamuela-Waimea district and at Kailua-Kona. Hawaii's two scheduled airlines have frequent flights daily between all the islands. Several air taxi services also operate inter-island flights and aerial sightseeing tours.

King Whisker Entries Start From Scratch

HILO — It's whisker-growing time for the brawny men of the "Big Island" of Hawaii, with the annual Merry Monarch Festival less than three months away.

The man with the most impressive beard in the tradition of King David Kalakaua will retain the honor through the year. This will be one of the events in Hilo April 15 when the Matson liner Lurline arrives with a capacity list of passengers from the mainland.

Residents of the islands of Oahu, Kauai, Hawaii and Maui already are planning their programs to celebrate the happy memory of Hawaii's fun-loving king who ruled from 1874 to 1891, a period of unprecedented peace and prosperity. Kalakaua was Hawaii's last monarch.

The Lurline, which will sail from San Francisco April 6 on the 15-day Merry Monarch festival cruise will arrive in time for the peak of the pageantry and festivities in each port—Honolulu, Nawiliwili, Hilo and Lahaina.

Colorful harbor welcomes will greet Lurline passengers and they will be special guests at the celebration on each of the islands.

COSTUME CONTEST

In Hilo, besides the King Kalakaua whisker derby, there will be a Merry Monarch era costume contest, ukelele competition, hula dancing and singing. The whole town turns out for the various events, including the Lurline's morning arrival and departure at the end of the day.

The Lurline will spend two days in Honolulu and a full day in each of the other ports. Rates for the cruise start at $590 per person.

Doomed Bull Dedicated to Mannings

By JOHN MANNING

Former Victoria Times reporter John Manning and his wife Pat are currently on a 12,000 - mile "Centennial Cruise" aboard their tiny sailing ship Powindah. The pair started in England and hope to end their cruise in the Inner Harbor. This is the eleventh in a series on their adventures.

Angel Bonillo was a matador. He was tall and powerfully muscled. The horn scar on his left cheek made him look older than his 24 years and robbed his smile of any frivolity. He had received the wound early in the season, when a bone in the wrist of his killing arm had been snapped going over the horns of a bull in Northern Spain.

We had met him the year before, while working in Spain, and looked forward to renewing acquaintanceship when we sailed into Alicante Harbor, a large port on the eastern seaboard of that country.

"I am having my last fight of the season next week," he said, his voice, serious, quiet, as always when he spoke of bulls. "Can you come as my guests. I would like to dedicate a bull to you."

●

It was to take place at the Plaza de Toros in Munera. We found the bullring on the edge of the town, a square odd-shaped plaza that looked like an armory. At the entrance we were met by the owner of the ring, who was also the mayor of Munera, a small dark haired man wearing two wrist watches. We shook hands with him.

"I will show you around," he said.

In back of the stands was a cell-like chapel, without windows and simply decorated. In front of the altar lay a leather kneeling pad.

We next saw the infirmary. It was composed of two rooms, both of them clean, white-walled and also windowless. In the first a thin, slab-like operating table immediately caught one's attention. A silver tray of instruments lay near at hand. In the other room, an extension of the first, were two beds, neatly made up with white sheets. The top sheet of each was deawn back as though a maid had prepared them for the imminent arrival of guests.

The mayor showed us to our seats, all the while glancing at his two wrist watches. Ten feet away Angel would have his showdown with death.

●

People were passing wine skins around. The arena was a chalice of sunlight. Every seat in the place was taken, and a restless, audible excitement possessed it like a fever.

Exactly on schedule, the entrance parade began. As senior matador, Angel walked proudly and with weapon-like dignity across the sand of the arena. He saluted the president of the arena, flashed a smile in Patricia's direction and began testing the effect of the wind on his cape.

One of his cuadrilla, or team, spread Angel's cape in front of Patrica. His manager bustled about below us, smoking endless cigarettes, holding sporadic conversations with his matador. When the first bull came in Angel's face was void of emotion.

"It is the most dangerous one he will have this afternoon," commented the manager.

It broke into the arena like a derailed locomotive. The utter venom of the charge drew a shout from the audience. One of the cuadrilla executed two, low-handed passes, the cape whispering over the sand like a giant bat's wing.

●

Angel stepped into the ring and cited the animal. He did not flinch as the horns brushed his stomach during a series of passes known as Veronicas. His feet were as tightly placed as tent pegs.

Following the planting of the picks, or banderillas, Angel exchanged the cape for the red cloth muleta and killing sword. He then walked over to Patricia and removed his montera, the black hat worn by all matadors. The crowd fell silent.

"I have the honor," he said, in his quiet voice, "To dedicate this brave bull to you, my friends from Canada . . . Va port ti . . . it goes for you."

He handed Patricia the montera. She held it tightly in her lap.

●

The bull was out to get the tall, stiff-backed man who now called to him: "Ahhhhh toro, mira toro! (Look bull).

The bull came at him. Angel was snapped free of the sand. The horns cradled his body and he came off them like a child coming down a play slide. The nerve that carried him into the ring still was with him so that after the next pass he was able to take three quick steps, like a ballet dancer, keeping in mind the strength of the wind, the aim of the sword and when to spin his right leg past the bull's horn. The hilt of the weapon stamped black fur. The bull took three drunken steps and fell as though it had stepped into a pit.

The crowd went wild. The president of the ring awarded Angel two ears and the tail of his vanquished foe. The matador threw the tail to Patricia, an honor few Winnipeg girls receive.

Two days later Angel came down to us at the boat. "You see," he said. "Bullfighting is like many things in life. One simply learns to control fear, as you must when you meet a storm at sea. There is no difference."

17 good reasons for taking a summer vacation with P&O.

Just read the highlights below of these 17 exciting summer vacations from Vancouver with P&O. Your floating resort—one of the "biggest bloomin' ships sailing the seven seas." Time: from 3 weeks to 3 months. Price: from $17 a day. Then mail coupon for details—and run away to sea.

YOU CAN travel over 53 thousand miles on P&O's world routes to escape the crowds. To the Caribbean, the Pacific and even to Europe at the height of its season. And to uncommon, unspoiled places around the world like Cartagena, Fiji and Penang.

Live the "posh" life

P&O invented the word "posh." Wealthy travelers to India used to be given what P&O called "P.O.S.H." cabins (*P*ort *O*ut, *S*tarboard *H*ome) so that they got the shady side of the ship both ways. Today, any way is posh. All P&O liners are fully air-conditioned. But "posh" remains a synonym for the best—aboard P&O.

A crewman for every 2 passengers

There is a crewman for every two passengers on P&O's great white liners. The service is British. And faultless. With all your creature comforts catered to, you can swim, dance, play deck tennis, tavern hop, or just plain loll in the sun.

You can dine on such delectable fare as Scotch salmon, Nile quail or one of 52 varieties of curry. Enjoy a choice vintage wine with your dinner. (The wine cellar on a P&O liner stocks nearly 10,000 bottles.) And meet fascinating shipmates from the four corners of the world.

Send the coupon today for details on the voyages that interest you. (Suggestion: act now, while there is still a wide selection of cabins and fares available.) Then see your travel agent and run away to sea this summer with P&O.

THE ORIENT

P&O's exclusive "Pearl of the Orient" Holiday gives you 17 glorious days at sea plus 21 days ashore exploring the Orient. You'll see California, Honolulu, Yokohama, Tokyo, Kobe, Nagasaki, Hong Kong, Macao, Taipei, Kyoto, Toba, Hakone, Kamakura, Nikko. All 38 days from just $1275, escorted. Leaving Vancouver June 23 aboard P&O's 28,000-ton Oronsay.

Select cabins are also available to Japan (from $394 first, $323 tourist) and Hong Kong (from $464 first, $380 tourist) on the same sailing.

EUROPE VIA THE CARIBBEAN

P&O offers you a choice of five summer sailings to and from Europe by way of California, Panama, the Caribbean and Atlantic.

Oriana sails from Vancouver June 24 for California, Acapulco, Panama, Curaçao, Trinidad, Lisbon, Le Havre and Southampton.

Canberra sails July 13 for California, Acapulco, Panama, Nassau, Florida, Lisbon, Le Havre and Southampton.

Return sailings from England: Orsova June 8, Oriana Aug. 15, Canberra Sept. 8. Round-trips from $1050 first, $776 tourist.

EUROPE VIA THE PACIFIC

You can take two exciting P&O vacations to Europe across the Pacific this summer. And see two-thirds of the world on your way for less by the day than you'd spend at a resort hotel.

Arcadia sails from Vancouver May 6 for Hawaii, Fiji, New Zealand, Australia, Singapore, Ceylon, Egypt, the Mediterranean and Europe. 54 days from $1098 first, $813 tourist class.

Oronsay sails June 23 for California, Hawaii, Japan, Hong Kong, Singapore, India, Egypt, Italy, Spain and England. 51 days from $1116 first, $811 tourist class.

AROUND THE PACIFIC

You've a choice of two escorted P&O holidays around the whole bloomin' Pacific this summer. Both include all sightseeing and an overland tour of Japan.

May 6. Arcadia leaves for Hawaii, Fiji, New Zealand and Australia where you join Oronsay for the voyage home by way of Hong Kong, Japan and Hawaii. 49 days from $1436.

July 4. Orsova sails for Hawaii, Fiji, New Zealand, Australia, the Philippines, Hong Kong, Japan, Hawaii, and home. 50 days from $1164.

CARIBBEAN TOURS

P&O offers you a choice of three, inclusive air-sea tours to the Caribbean. Plus a choice of itineraries and time. Ranging from a 3-week trip where you fly to Nassau for a week before sailing back by way of the Caribbean, Panama, Acapulco and California from $652—to a full month with a flight to Bermuda for 10 days and a holiday voyage home by way of Florida, Nassau, Panama, Mexico and California for as little as $964.

Departures: April 14, June 2, August 11.

AROUND THE WORLD

You have a choice of four vacations, three of them escorted tours!

May 6. Arcadia leaves Vancouver on the "Voyage Extraordinaire" tour to Hawaii, Fiji, New Zealand, Australia, Singapore, Bangkok, India, Ceylon, the Mediterranean and Europe with air return from England included. 59 days from just $2158.

June 23. You can sail on Oronsay to Hawaii, the Orient, India, Egypt, Italy, Spain and England. After a month in Europe on your own, sail on Canberra for Florida, the Caribbean, West Coast and home. 100 days, from $1181.

July 13. Take the "Happy Wanderer" world tour aboard Canberra to England by way of Mexico, Panama, the Caribbean and Florida. Return on Oronsay via the Mediterranean and South Pacific after 25 days in Europe. 101 days, fully escorted, from $1994.

August 23. Orsova sails on her "Magellan" round-world adventure. You'll explore California, Hawaii, Fiji, New Zealand, Australia, Hong Kong, Singapore, Egypt, Europe (2-week tour), Trinidad, Cartagena, the Caribbean, Mexico. 102 days, from $2029.

All fares in U.S. currency.

STAMP CORNER

By REG. NAIRNE

When a non-collector reads of a philatelist paying out a sum of money which would buy a new Rolls-Royce for a small bit of paper which is of no intrinsic value whatever, simply because it fills a blank space in his collection, he no doubt finds the idea of such an addiction incomprehensible.

But even the seasoned philatelist will raise his eyebrows when he reads, in H. R. Harmer's resume of auction prices for last season, that a collector pair $7,500 for a forgery which was not even in first-class condition, for it was thinned in one corner.

The forgery was of the 45c of Lombardy-Venetia, issued in 1850; and the joke of it is that a perfectly genuine specimen of this stamp, in fine condition, can be bought for $3 any time!

It is perhaps necessary to explain that philatelists divide forgeries into two classes — those that are made to deceive collectors and those that are intended to cheat the P.O.

The former are of course generally avoided, unless they are included in a collection as "bad examples."

But a forgery that has gone through the mails without detection, bearing a genuine postmark, is looked on as an interesting item of postal history; and it was for a forgery in the latter category that the $7,500 was paid.

Even so, I imagine that this price for a fake will stand as a record for many years, if not for all time.

* * *

There is much more of interest in Harmer's summary of their 1965-6 season. For instance the total transactions, including auctions and private treaty sales conducted in their three branches (London, New York and Sydney) amounted to nearly $4¾ million.

When it is realized that there are more than half a dozen other firms in the world that can be classed in the "major league," not to mention scores of smaller fry, some idea of the annual turnover in stamps may be imagined.

DOUBLE CRYPTARITHM

Divide 50XX by 3, multiply quotient by 7, and get for the answer, XX7X2.

Hint: To be divisible by 3, the sum of the digits is 50XX must be divisible by 3, therefore X plus X must equal 1, 4, 7, 10, 13, etc.

Solution: Knowing that 7 times 6 only will give a product that ends in 2, and that 3 goes into 18 only 6 times, then X plus X must equal 2 plus 8, and dividend is 5028.

SAFE BET TO MAKE

Wanna make a bet you can't lose? Try this: Bet you can put your finger in a cup of tea without getting it wet. How's it done? Simply fill the cup with dry tea leaves.

MINI-TEST

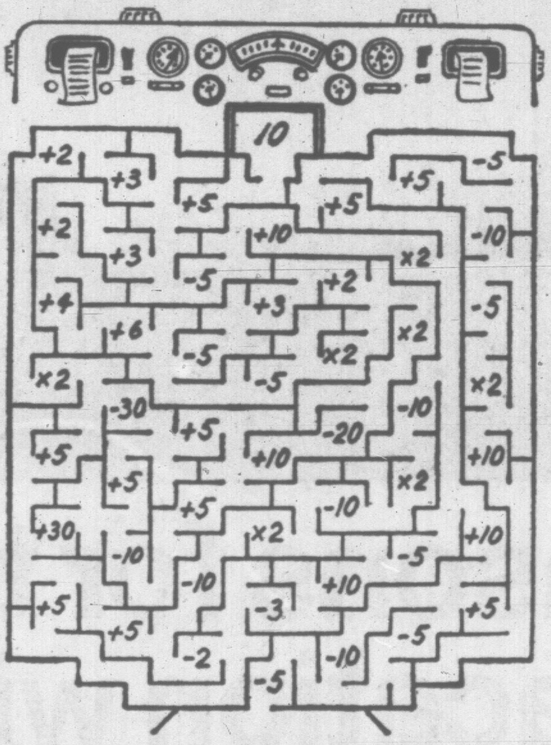
Outermost planet visible to the naked eye is: Mercury, Venus, Mars, Saturn.

Answer: Saturn.

SPLIT FORTY TWO WAYS?

How is it possible to split 40 into two parts so that the smaller part plus half the larger part will equal 1-6 the larger part plus twice the smaller part? Give this some thought.

SMART GALLERY



Starting at number 10 at top centre of this mathematical maze, try to reach the exit at the bottom with a minimum total. Each number passed must be added, subtracted or multiplied as indicated. After you have finished, let someone else try and see whose score is lowest — or try to beat your own score on consecutive attempts. Once a channel has been used, it should not be traversed again.

ANSWER IN ONE MINUTE, IF YOU CAN

A father is five times as old as his son. In fifteen years, he will be twice as old. How old is the father now? Answer in one minute or less — if you can. No fair peeking.

Answer: The father is twenty-five years old.

CAN YOU COUNT THE SHAKES?

Ten fraternity brothers met at lunch and each shook hands with every other (Mr. A. shook hands with 9 others, etc.). How many handshakes were there in all?

Answer: A. shakes with 9, B. with 8, and so on — the answer, therefore, is forty-five.

FLYING SAUCER

Hardly a month goes by in which the sighting of some strange flying object isn't reported. Sometimes the same phenomenon is described by several persons and, of course, each sees it in a slightly different way.

There is a puzzle based hypothetically on such an occurrence. It is stated as follows:

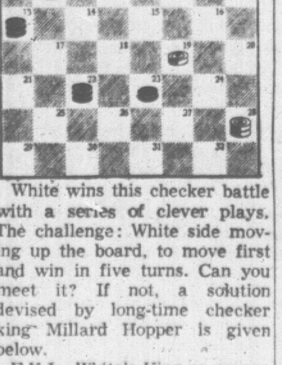
Four motorists, who reported that they had seen a strange device descend on the waters of a local reservoir, estimated its length at 39 ft., 40 ft., 43 ft., and 44 ft., respectively.

A newspaper reporter, who was dispatched to investigate, found that two of these estimates each showed an error of the same number of feet, while the other two each showed an error of 1 2-3 that number of feet.

What was the mysterious object's length?

Answer: The object was forty-one and one-half feet long.

CHIP-DOWN



White wins this checker battle with a series of clever plays. The challenge: White side moving up the board, to move first and win in five turns. Can you meet it? If not, a solution devised by long-time checker king Millard Hopper is given below.

F.Y.I.: White's King on square 28 is his big gun. Remember, it's all over in five moves.

Solution: White 28-24, Black 5-14, White 6-9, Black 13-6-15, White 24-28, Black 15-24, White 28-19-26-17-10, etc.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Association

One difference between a great player and a good player is that the really great player gives himself every little extra chance.

After this peroration, take a look at the North-South hands and plan your play in four spades against a king of hearts lead.

You might as well start by ducking a heart. Sometimes your opponents will shift suits, but this West did not.

Now you are in your own hand and if you are only a good player you will lead a club to dummy's ace and return the nine spot. West will win with the king and eventually the combination of four clubs and four spades in the East hand will put you one down.

When Sidney Lazard of New Orleans held the South hand he gave himself that one little extra chance. He played the nine of clubs from dummy instead of the ace. From then on everything was duck soup. When he played dummy's ace of clubs later on he picked up West's king. Then all he had to do was draw as many trumps as he could and tell East that he could have his high trump anytime he wanted it.

At this point we plan to forestall a lot of correspondence by pointing out that Lazard could win the first heart, take a diamond finesse and lead out dummy's ace of diamonds for a heart discard whether or not East ruffed in.

That play would have been a winner but it was an extra losing chance. It would cost the contract if East held the king of diamonds and would gain only one extra trick if it worked.

On the other hand the nine of clubs play stood to gain against lots of card combinations and could only lose in the event of a 5-1 club break.

Australian Execution Protested

MELBOURNE, Australia (UPI)—A mob of demonstrators protesting the first scheduled execution in Australia in 16 years Friday tried to smash their way into Victoria state's parliament house.

They were protesting the hanging set for Tuesday of a condemned murderer to whom reprieve has been refused. Some in the crowd estimated at about 100 battled police with fists.

The demonstrators tried to force their way into parliament house using a large tubular steel banner as a battering ram.

Police, trapped in the doorway between huge pillars, wrested the banner from demonstrators and used it as a barricade as shouting men tried to storm the door, punching and kicking at the police.

The attack erupted from a march by 3,000 trade unionists through the city in protest of the scheduled hanging of Ronald Joseph Ryan, who is sentenced to die Tuesday for the murder of a prison officer during an escape from Melbourne Pentridge jail in 1965.

B.C. Man Sentenced To Hang

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—Walter Henry Fyfe, 48, of Harrison Hot Springs, Friday was sentenced to hang for the Oct. 10 murder of Joseph Dufresne, 86.

The sentencing ended a five-day trial. Mr. Justice Victor Dryer set the execution for May 9.

Joseph Dufresne was killed by a rifle bullet while he sat in the living room of his home at Harrison Hot Springs.

Fyfe's wife was found shot to death on the porch of the house.

In defence, Fyfe claimed he had no recollection of the shooting. He said he had a complete loss of memory after he drank beer with his wife in a beer parlor earlier on the day of the murder. He said one glass of beer had been spiked with a drug.

John Albany Wins 10th Term

John Albany has been re-elected for the 10th consecutive term as chief of the Songhees Indian band.

His brother, Richard, was re-elected councillor, along with Harry Kamai.

Canada Draws English First

TORONTO (CP) — W. H. (Pete) Reid, president of the Canadian Lawn Tennis Association, announced this week that Canada has drawn against England in the first round of the European zone of the Davis Cup.

Matches will be played in England, May 4-6. The four-man Canadian team will be drawn from the top players of 1966.

SURTEES ENTERS

TORONTO (CP) — John Surtees, 1964 world Grand Prix champion, will compete in Canada's first Formula One race scheduled for Aug. 27 at Mosport, Ont.

Suzanne's Suspension Protested

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Figure Skating Association has protested a one-year suspension to Suzanne Morrow Francis of Toronto for showing "national bias" as a judge of the 1966 world championships at Davos, Switzerland.

The suspension, imposed last year by the International Skating Union, world governing body for the sport, expires June 10.

No details were available and Dr. Francis, a judge of the Canadian figure skating championships here, declined comment. The suspension doesn't affect her status as a judge in Canada.

Hugh Glynn of Ottawa, association executive manager, announced at the Canadian championships Friday night that a strong protest has been sent to the international body.

STILL NO REPLY

"We've had no reply from them," Glynn said. "So we are going to follow it up by sending our president, Bert Penfold, and referee Don Gilchrist to the next ISU meeting to voice our displeasure."

Dr. Francis, a blue-eyed honey-blonde veterinarian, was the centre of a controversy over her judging at the 1964 Olympics in Innsbruck when she voted for a Russian pair over a West German couple favored by the fans.

German newspapers carried headlines reading "Throw the Canadian Out" and "The Red Devil of Innsbruck," a reference to the bright red coat Suzanne wears while she's judging.

Dr. Francis held five Canadian figure skating titles when she retired to become a judge.

Reps to Face Aussie Side At Vancouver

Australia's Wallabies, one of the world's most famous rugby teams, will be shooting for revenge when they return to Vancouver in February.

Team officials are certain to remind the Aussies that the B.C. representative side defeated the Wallabies 11-8 in Vancouver in 1958.

Returning home after a four-month tour of the British Isles, the Wallabies will face the B.C. Reps Feb. 18 at Empire Stadium. On Feb. 16, the tourists will tackle UBC Thunderbirds at the university stadium.

On their British tour, the Wallabies defeated Wales and England, but lost to Ireland and Scotland.

Tickets for the Wallabies-B.C. match are available from Hicks Ticket Bureau, 610 Dunsmuir, Vancouver.

Ladd Returns For Mat Bout

Giant professional football star Ernie Ladd will return to the Memorial Arena wrestling ring next Tuesday.

The 350-pound Ladd will face Don Jardine in the feature bout of a professional mat card.

In other bouts, the Tolos brothers, John and Chris, are scheduled to tackle Don Leo Jonathan and Rene Goulet in a tag-team tussle, Tony Orford will meet Jack Bence and John Tolos will go against Goulet when action starts at 8:15.

DOMED STADIUM PLANS

TACOMA (AP) — A 75,000-seat domed stadium for sports and conventions may be built in the Tacoma area, county commissioner Patrick Gallagher has announced.

INSIDE CITY HALL

Planners Are Aware It's a Touchy Plan

By JIM HUME

Though the Rose-Blanshard urban renewal scheme is pretty well salted away signature-wise, the project is not yet out of the woods.

Hume

City planners, contrary to belief in some quarters, are not two-headed monsters. Not in Victoria, anyway. They are a group of men sincerely dedicated to their work and keenly interested in helping provide the best possible environment for residents of the city.

By and large they are a sensitive group.

Not "touchy" sensitive, but rather alert and keenly aware that in their involvement in a scheme like the Rose-Blanshard they could lose a little perspective and possibly overlook some of the human elements in the mass of paperwork and working drawings.

Too Quickly

That's why, earlier this week, they reacted quickly, possibly a little too quickly, to public criticism of the scheme.

Since then, and because they are sincere men, they have wondered if their quick defence of the scheme carried with it overtones of "this is our scheme and you're getting it whether you like it or not."

If that impression was created it is most unfortunate.

The planners are anxious for criticism of the scheme. They'd like to hear more criticism — always providing it's the constructive type and not the "let's knock bureaucracy" kind.

If there is anyone either in the Rose-Blanshard area or outside the boundaries of the scheme with sound ideas, the planning department will welcome them. If there's anyone with fears, unfounded or not, a sympathetic ear will be found among those men who are sometimes unjustly called impractical dreamers.

Planners are worriers. They have to be.

Worry About People

They worry about people just as much as they worry about their plans. And they stress, over and over again, that they do not just bulldoze into an area with grandiose schemes to be imposed on the people and devil take the hindmost.

What they do is take the wishes of the people and translate them into practical plans developed along the best possible lines and within the income of the community.

Although the paperwork on the Rose-Blanshard was completed months ago, they still have to live with the daily fret "how will it turn out."

And they are the first to admit that unless every step of the project is carefully advanced it could turn out badly.

There are quite a few imponderables left over which the city crew has little or no control.

If, for example, the provincial government exercises its legal right and insists that physical plans for the model housing development be left to an architect of its choice, it could be the first step towards the very thing the planners wish to avoid.

The Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation has its own architects, experts in the type of development planners hope Rose-Blanshard will be.

If the provincial government desires it can call on those architects — and should call on them for, skilled though the private firm may be, it cannot be as deeply involved as the CMHC men.

There's another little shadow which flits from time to time across the lives of city planners.

Ticking noises from the legislative halls would indicate that the provincial government is considering calling bids from private contractors for the actual construction of the houses to be built in the area.

While on the surface such a suggestion might appear to a be a practical money-saving method of getting the houses built, it must be realized that it could also result in those houses being built to minimum standards.

Model

And if that happened the modern slum some people are afraid is being created could well rise in place of the jaded area now existing.

The planners fear the latter as much or more than any other citizen.

If the provincial government leaves matters to CMHC and the planners the Rose-Blanshard area will become a model of its kind.

It may still become that even if the province insists on asserting its rights as the government responsible for housing.

But by penny-pinching more than it need it could also create just the opposite.

Doctor Backs Child Care In Monastery

STE. JEROME, Que. (CP)—Defence witnesses for a breakaway Roman Catholic religious sect Friday testified in a welfare court test case that children being cared for at the sect's Laurentian monastery were clean, well looked after and healthy.

Dr. Marc Ouimet, who practises in Ste. Jovite, Que., 70 miles northwest of Montreal and near the site of the monastery, said the living conditions were adequate.

He said he had visited the monastery since it opened in 1962 and found the children there had the same types of illnesses as other people in his practice.

Friday was the second and final day of the test cases. It resulted from allegations made in court that diet, health and educational conditions at the monastery were unsuitable for children.

The sect, the Apostles of Infinite Love, hid 72 children in private homes after the welfare court issued warrants ordering the children into court custody. So far, 27 of the youngsters have been found.

SETS DATE

Judge Leandre Prevost set Feb. 2 as the tentative date on which he will render judgment in the case, which involves a still-hidden four-year-old girl who lived at the monastery.

Several sect members are to appear Feb. 28 on charges that they obstructed provincial police and welfare officers during a Dec. 28 raid on the monastery. The sect leaders have refused to reveal the whreabouts of the still-missing children.

Madeleine Bolduc, a qualified nurse who has lived at the monastery since Setember, 1966, testified Friday that the monastery children are kept scrupulously clean. Medical facilities were also readily available to them.

Gerard Piche, the electrical contractor who prepared a plan for the basic electrical layout of the monastery, said the plan was approved by government inspectors.

A province-wide dragnet is still out for Father Jean de la Trinite, Quebec leader of the sect, who vanished from the monastery Sunday. A warrant for his arrest was issued Tuesday.

Thursday, he forfeited $500 cash bail, posted at an earlier hearing, when he did not appear to face charges of permitting the children in his care to exist in "moral and physical danger."

Truscott 'Alibi' Attacked

By STUART LAKE

OTTAWA (CP)—Steven Truscott's account of the events surrounding the 1959 murder of Lynne Harper was described in the Supreme Court of Canada Friday as a package of lies, falsehoods and complete fabrications.

William Bowman, chief of prosecutions for the Ontario attorney-general's office, also pictured Truscott, then 14, as a cunning slayer who told police a false story to send them off on a wild goose chase and divert them from the spot where he raped and strangled the 12-year-old girl.

A different version of the girl's death in a wooded area of Clinton, Ont., was supplied by G. Arthur Martin, Truscott's lawyer in the government-ordered review of his conviction.

Mr. Martin said evidence at the high court hearings bear out the defence theory that the girl was murdered after Truscott saw her get into a grey Chevrolet car about 7:30 p.m. on the night of June 9, 1959.

Mr. Martin concluded his final argument before the nine Supreme Court justices Friday and Mr. Bowman had just launched into his when the court adjourned until Monday.

HAVE THREE COURSES

Three alternatives are open to the court: They can uphold or wipe out the verdict, or order a new trial.

Mr. Bowman said a basic contention of the Crown is that Truscott left a Clinton schoolyard with Lynne Harper and drove her on the handlebars of his racer bike along a county road leading to a highway. Before they got to the highway, said Mr. Bowman, they turned into a lane leading to the wooded spot where Truscott killed her.

"His story of taking her to the highway was a complete fabrication," said Mr. Bowman.

Mr. Bowman cited footprints found near the girl's body as evidence Truscott was there. He said the prints were from a shoe similiar to the one worn that night by Truscott.

He also said Truscott's story about not telling anyone about the sores on his penis until 1966 was "completely unbelievable."

CROWN VIEW GIVEN

The Crown at trial claimed the sores were caused by intercourse with a young girl. At the reference, Truscott said he was too embarrassed to tell anyone about them until he spoke to Mr. Martin last year.

Mr. Bowman said the sores assumed such importance that it wasn't believable Truscott wouldn't present some reasonable explanation about them sooner.

"A fair inference is he knew they were related to the offence," declared Mr. Bowman.

Mr. Martin, who spoke for more than 11 hours after the final phase of the reference resumed Wednesday, said Truscott's story of taking the girl to the highway "was never shaken."

Mr. Bowman said Truscott made up the story about taking Lynne to the highway and watching her get into car for two reasons. He wanted to spark a police hunt for a car and keep any search away from the woods.

"A pretty clever fellow for a 14-year-old," commented Mr. Justice Wishart Spence.

"Truscott well knew what could be found in the woods," said Mr. Bowman.

Vagrant Jailed For 30 Days

John Taggart, no fixed address, was jailed for 30 days Friday when convicted in central court of vagrancy.

Police arrested Taggart when they found him wandering near the Johnson Street Bridge at 5:30 a.m. The accused had a history of vagrancy convictions, court was told.

NDP DELAY BID FAILS

Transport Bill Passes, Sent Along to Senate

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons, after 16 days of debate, gave third reading Friday to the government's bill to establish a national transportation policy.

Passage came after the government, supported by two Social Credit members and an independent, defeated 70 to 53 an NDP motion that would have returned the bill to committee for further study. Four Creditistes and 36 Conservatives voted with the NDP.

The bill now goes to the Senate.

The NDP call for a recorded vote followed failure earlier Friday of an amendment by Norman Fawcett (NDP—Nickel Belt) that would have provided compensation for railway imployees suffering hardship because of abandonment or rationalization of rail lines.

COMPENSATION

Transport Minister Pickersgill argued that a similar amendment already had been considered in committee and that such compensation was beyond the scope of the bill. Speaker Lucien Lamoureux agreed and ruled the amendments out of order.

Members on both sides of the House pounded their desks as the bill gained passage.

The transport minister has been praised by all parties for the even manner in which he piloted it through the House.

But even after the bill had reached third reading stage — usually a formality —members were critical of what it will mean to transport in Canada.

Mr. Bell described the legislation as an open invitation for freight rates to go up in Eastern Canada and the West.

"As sure as I am standing here, perhaps in a few months, freight rates are going up," the New Brunswick member said.

"I'm going to be able to say I told you so."

Casuality List From Traffic Grows Longer

Four people, including two children, were treated at hospital Friday for injuries in a two-car crash at Yates and Vancouver Streets.

Mrs. Yvonne Scott, 944 Cloverdale, suffered head and chest injuries and her children, Shelley, 6, and Randy, 5, cuts and bruises. They were released after treatment.

The three were passengers in a car driven by Wilfred Scott which was southbound on Vancouver when it was in collision with a car driven east on Yates by David Neufield, 2841 Richmond.

Michael Gent, 18, of 2819 Richmond, a passenger in the Neufield auto, was also treated at hospital for a cut on his arm.

HEAD CURTS

Kenneth Mattson, 567 Winthrop, was taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital with head cuts just after midnight when his car went into the ditch in the 3200 block Admirals Road. Officers estimated damage to the car at $1,500.

Wendell Ashton, 230 Gorge, suffered face cuts early today when his car went out of control on Burnside at Francis and hit a hydro pole. He was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital and later transferred to Canadian Forces Base Hopsital, Esquimalt.

Janice Todd, 23, of 2861 Craigowan was released after treatment for minor injuries received in a two-car crash at Superior and Oswego Friday afternoon.

Police said her car was in collision with an auto driven by Norman Wilcox, 3163 Carrol Street.

Erwin Wiedemayer of 686 Strandlund Avenue, is in satisfactory condition at St. Joseph's Hospital after suffering a broken leg when his car hit a truck on Metchosin Road Friday afternoon.

Also in satisfactory condition at the same hospital is Peter Kurran of 472 Head Street. His car rolled into a ditch on the Trans-Canada Highway at Chandler about 4 a.m. today. Colwood RCMP officers said the five-year-old car was wrecked.

Early Day Athlete Dies in City at 71

Former star amateur ball player and bowler and operator of the first privately-owned library in the city, T. R. (Tommy) Bowden, 71, died in the Veterans Hospital Friday night.

Coming out of retirement after his arrival in the city from the U.S., he handled the catching chores for a number of amateur ball clubs and wound up his career for the second as a member of the Capitals, champions of the old Island League.

He was a top-notch tenpin bowler of the days of the Arcade Lanes, located in the basement of the former Pemberton Building.

He was the owner and operator of the Marionette circulating library when it first opened on Government Street.

At one time he was an active member of the Gyro Club and belonged to the Elks Club.

Mr. Bowden served with the U.S. Army in the First World War. He is survived by his wife Katherine at the family residence, 1216 Oxford St.; one son Robert and brother Jerry all of this city and relatives in Westfield, N.J.

DIFFERENT MAN ON 'BOOZE, PILLS'

A man whose criminal record was termed "incredible" pleaded guilty today to forging and cashing a $37 cheque Friday at a grocery store.

Christopher Kiteley's police history lists about 30 convictions dating back to 1929 and "for everything', prosecutor Cory Stolte said in central court.

The 48-year-old man, who lives at 1414 Gladstone, had his case remanded to Monday for sentence after admitting to charges of forgery and uttering.

Detective Angus Stewart said Kiteley was arrested in a beer parlor after taking a cheque form from a bank, signing it with the name of a man currently serving a jail term and cashing it at a Gladstone Avenue food market.

The accused had been drinking heavily, said the detective.

"When I'm on the booze and pills I'm a different man," Kiteley told Magistrate Ostler.

Man Acquitted Of Murder

VANCOUVER (CP) — Arlie Durling was acquitted Friday of non-capital murder of William Bohart, whose beaten body was found in bushes in Stanley Park last March 19.

Durling had been charged with non-capital murder along with Edward Dowe. Dowe was freed Thursday after the B.C. Supreme Court jury was instructed to acquit him for lack of evidence.

During the trial, Mrs. Muriel Kennedy told the court she had seen Lee Hartford, her estranged husband, strangle Bohart.

Former Manager Of Local Bank Dies at 85

Raymond McDonald, 916 Cook Street, a former manager of the Royal Bank of Canada, Fort Street branch, died today in Royal Jubilee Hospital. He was 85.

Born in Myrtle, Manitoba, he came to Victoria in 1909. He was a long-time member of Victoria Gospel Hall.

He is survived by his widow, Gertrude; one daughter, Mrs. J. C. Russell; a sister, Mrs. Bertha Harrison, both of Victoria.

Funeral services will be held in McCall's main chapel at 1:15 p.m. Wednesday.

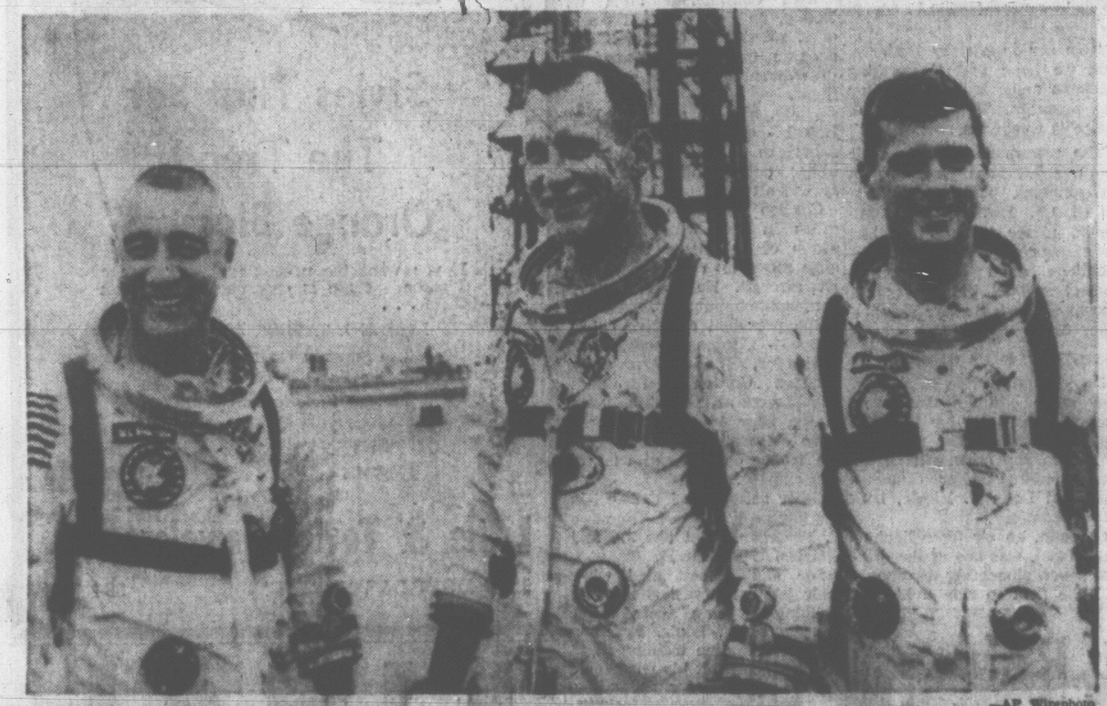
DEATH OF THE ASTRONAUTS

'Fire in the Spacecraft' Desperate Cry, Then Silence



—AP Wirephoto

Top Trio Lost By U.S.

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — One of the three Apollo astronauts cried, "fire in the spacecraft," a split second before all three were to die in their spaceship, the head of an investigating team said today.

The victims were Virgil I. (Gus) Grissom, 40, Edward H. White, 36, and Roger B. Chaffee, 31.

Maj.-Gen. Samuel Phillips, Apollo program director, said it was not known whose voice crackled over the radio-monitoring system as a searing flash fire snuffed out the three lives.

It was the first time in the U.S. space program that the chilling cry had been heard, for it was the first blaze ever to erupt inside a capsule.

Earlier, it had been reported that no word came from the spacecraft and the astronauts apparently died in the first quick flash of the fire.

COUNTDOWN ON HOLD

The tragedy struck as the countdown on a simulated flight was being held at T-minus 10 minutes because of difficulty in the quality of communications between the spacecraft and the checkout building, Phillips said.

Phillips, head of a preliminary investigating team which began seeking the cause of the blaze that turned the space ship into a death trap, that until a board has made its findings, he could not speculate on plans for future Apollo flights.

One and one-half miles from Pad 34, site of the tragedy, the bodies of the astronauts lay in an infirmary.

They were practising for a two-week space mission, the first of the Apollo flights which will culminate in the lunar landing, when the hot blaze snuffed out their lives in an instant.

CALLS FOR HARD LOOK

Space officials said they would push on with the program, but the tragedy which capped a long series of troubles with the Apollo spacecraft will call for a soul-searching look before other lives are risked.

Apollo, first scheduled to blast off before the end of last year, has been plagued by malfunctions.

During the final checkout and testing of Apollo I, many changes and modifications were made.

Two of the victims were space veterans, the other a rookie.

Grissom flew in Mercury and Gemini programs, helping blaze the first American trails in space. White was the first U.S. astronaut to leave his ship and become a human satellite. Chaffee was training for his first lanch.

All three were married and each has two children.

Twenty-seven launch pad crew members were overcome by smoke in brave but futile efforts to get through to the astronauts. Two were taken to hospital.

Not until 1:55 a.m., more

Moon Further Away As Apollo Reviewed

HOUSTON (AP) — The U.S. moon program has suffered heavily, not only by the personal tragedy of losing three astronauts, but also by stalling perhaps for months the effort to land men on the moon by 1970.

However, officials say it is too early to tell whether the U.S. goal of trying a moon trip by the end of the decade is in jeopardy after Friday's disaster.

Several major factors are involved in determining how long the National Aeronautics and Space Administration now must wait before launching its first manned Apollo flight, a mission of up to two weeks.

First, an investigating board must determine exactly what caused the fire, whether it was something only peculiar to this one spaceship, or whether it was a problem that might force a re-designing of the Apollo vehicle's systems.

Then, there is the matter of equipment — whether the spaceship involved in the fire must be completely discarded and a new one used in its place.

NASA has other spaceships. The delays would result, though, from weeks of testing required before a vehicle is taken to a launch pad—tests the final ship already had completed.

'TRAGEDY' SAY RUSS WORKERS

Times News Services

Europe and Asia joined the United States today in mourning the loss of America's three Apollo astronauts.

In Moscow, the only official reaction was a terse, four-line dispatch about the tragedy by the Tass news agency.

Russian office workers, hurrying to their jobs, however, were shocked and dismayed upon hearing the news.

"It is a tragedy," said one. Let's hope it's the last tragedy in space exploration."

Despite unconfirmed reports in the West, the Russians have always denied any fatal space accidents of their own.

Here is what prominent leaders said:

President Johnson: "Three valiant young men have given their lives in the nation's service. We mourn this great loss and our hearts go out to their families."

Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey, chairman of the national aeronautics and space council: "The United States will push ever forward in space and the memory of these men will be an inspiration to all future spacefarers. . . ."

Paul T. Hellyer, Canadian defence minister: "We are shocked and saddened by this tragic loss of the young men who have contributed so much to space exploration and the advancement of man's knowledge of his universe. The sympathy of the Canadian people goes to the families, friends and colleagues of these fine astronauts."

China-Soviet Tiff Fanned in Moscow

MOSCOW (AP)—The Chinese embassy called an unprecedented press conference today and released a message from Premier Chou En-lai and Foreign Minister Chen Yi accusing Soviet police of "bloody repression" against Chinese students in a Red Square scuffle Wednesday.

Later, the Soviet foreign ministry called a rival press conference and charged the Red Square incident was a planned provocation "unprecedented in Soviet-Chinese relations."

A Chinese spokesman said the skirmish, in which the Chinese claim 30 students were injured —10 of them with bloody faces —was "one more example of the criminal collusion between the Soviet revisionist ruling clique and the U.S. leaders.

The Chinese claimed 69 students on their way home from studies in Western Europe were attacked by police when they placed a wreath at the Lenin Mausoleum in Red Square.

The Soviet Union claims the Chinese students molested Russians in Red Square, disrupted procedures for visiting the mausoleum, and that enraged Russians pushed them away.

Sixty of the students, many of them with faces smeared with iodine and bearing plaster patches, left by train for Peking Thursday. Several others were said to have been too badly injured to travel.

In their press conference, the Soviet said Mao Tsyun, a first secretary of the Chinese embassy, directed the incident in Red Square.

Tass reported Boris Pyadyshev, deputy head of the press department of the foreign ministry, told correspondents the incident was "nothing but an undisguised prococation, planned in advance."

The aim, he said, was to damage Soviet-Chinese relations and the friendship between the two peoples. Another aim was to make the Chinese students returning home from Western countries join in the current internal struggle in China on the side of Mao Tse-tung, Chinese Communist party chairman.

Troops Blast Soviet

PEKING (Reuters) — Armed Chinese troops took part in a demonstration against the Soviet embassy for the first time ever today.

Soldiers and airmen in uniform with rifles and fixed bayonets drove to the area of the embassy on the third day of a massive demonstration against alleged Soviet atrocities on Chinese students in Moscow.

The troops shouted slogans attacking Soviet leaders and waved their weapons in the air.

Eastern European sources said that Friday night demonstrators stopped the car of Hungarian Ambassador Jozef Halasz as he drove to the Soviet Embassy.

The sources said the demonstrators tore the Hungarian flag from his car and broke a window.

BOOS, CATCALLS DROWN WORDS

Minister Faces Angry Students

By DESMOND BILL

An angry but orderly rally of about 1,500 students hooted, booed, hissed and catcalled Education Minister Leslie Peterson outside the legislature Friday.

They had marched in the heavy rain through downtown Victoria to protest the refusal of the government to spend more money on higher education.

The students roared applause for Opposition Leader Robert Strachan when he said he supported equalization grants for out-of-town students and the setting up of an independent grants commission to finance universities.

They threw flowers at Mrs. E. E. Dailly (Burnaby North), the New Democratic spokeswoman on educational affairs, when she promised them her support.

And they long and loudly cheered Liberal Leader Ray Perrault when he blasted the government for ducking responsibility for education and promised to carry the students' demands into the House.

But the mood changed completely when Education Minister Peterson appeared on the steps. He had kept the students waiting 10 minutes in the rain before he came out.

They whiled away the time singing a satirical song. "In Bennett's Hands" to the tune of "Blowin' in the Wind". Each verse outlined their complaints and ended with the chorus:

"The answer, my friends, is in Bennett's hands,
"The answer is in Bennett's hands."

Mr. Peterson started by saying to the massed students, who filled all the steps in front of the legislature and spilled over on the lawns:

"It is not often I have the chance to deal with such a large group of political scientists."

His sarcastic opening made the students groan.

Then he continued:

"I do not support this type of demonstration." There were loud boos and he waited for them to stop before continuing.

"We have the right of free speech in this country. I am

AFTERMATH OF SNOWSTORM

Looting in Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — Looters roamed Chicago's streets today and all police leaves were cancelled as Illinois, Indiana and Michigan struggled free of snow.

The storm left at least 37 dead in Illinois—28 in Chicago —as well as 10 in Michigan, five in Wisconsin and three in Indiana.

The weather bureau said the storm —"one of the biggest snowstorms of the century" dumped 23 inches on Chicago in 29 hours and surpassed the 19.2-inch record for a single storm set March 25-26, 1930.

Civic leaders estimated the storm would cost the city $35,000,000 in lost business.

Temperatures tumbled toward zero in Chicago as police chased looters from the streets.

A 10-year-old girl was shot to death during an exchange of gunfire between police and about 50 looters.

Virtually every city and suburban school closed, as did courts, financial exchanges and most businesses. Officials said O'Hare International Airport, closed for an unprecedented 36 hours, probably wouldn't reopen until 5 p.m. today.

Trains ran as much as 16 hours behind schedule.

MARITIMES AWAITS LASH FROM WINTER

TORONTO (CP) — Quebec and the Maritimes braced today for a vicious winter storm which dumped 11 inches of snow, rain, sleet and hail on dozens of southern Ontario communities Friday.

Many Toronto motorists abandoned their cars as they stalled after slashing through the huge puddles which covered the streets.

In other areas, drifting snow was a bigger problem.

THEY LOVED SPACE JOB

HOUSTON (AP) — They knew each other as Gus, Ed and Roger. And they shared one real love that bound them together as a team — they lived to fly.

For Lt.-Col. Virgil I. (Gus) Grissom, the first Apollo mission would have been his third trip into space, a distinction no man today can claim.

For Lt.-Col. Edward H. White II, it was a flight that commanded his eagerness as much as his first when he slipped outside Gemini 4 for a breathtaking 21-minute walk in space, America's first.

And for Lt.-Cmdr. Roger B. Chaffee, it was his first opportinity to travel in space.

Grissom and White were air force officers, Chaffee a navy man.

The three died together when fire erupted inside the Apollo spaceship they were to take up on a voyage of up to 14 days in orbit around earth, beginning Feb. 21.

Some called Grissom a hard-luck astronaut. As one of the famed original seven Mercury spacemen, he had to swim for his life after taking a 15-minute suborbital flight July 21, 1961, when his tiny spaceship, Liberty Bell 7, blew its hatch and sank.

Then, March 23, 1965, he and Cmdr. John W. Young had the honor of launching the United States into its highly successful Gemini program with a three-orbit flight in Gemini 3.

Grissom, 40, was a short man with a deep, business-like voice who wore his hair in a crewcut.

During the Korean War Grissom, too young for Second World War flying, finally won his wings, going on to fly 100 missions and win the Distinguished Flying Cross.

The son of an air force general, White, 36, was born in San Antonio, Tex., but lived there only a short time.

DEEPLY RELIGIOUS

A deeply religious man, White, a Methodist, attended church regularly. He kept his six-foot frame in top physical condition. In fact, he ranked No. 1 in physical aptitude in his class of 1952 at West Point, and set a 440-yard hurdle record.

Chaffee inherited his love for the air. His father, Donald Chaffee of Grand Rapids, Mich., is a former barnstormer who flew at county fairs in an open cockpit plane.

THEY TALKED OF RISKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Only last month the first U.S. Apollo astronauts were asked to comment in a television interview on the possibility they might be killed.

"No, you sort have to put that out of your mind," answered Virgil Grissom. "There's always a possibility that you can have a catastrophic failure, of course, this can happen on any flight.

"It can happen on the last one as well as the first one. So, you just plan as best you can to take care of all these eventualities, and you go fly."

ASTRONAUT WARNED AMERICANS:

Death Part of Space Risk

SPACE CENTRE, Houston (UPI) — "I hope that the people in the United States are mature enough that when we do lose our first crews they accept this as part of the business."

U.S. astronaut Frank Borman spoke those faintly chilling words in 1965.

Friday, the inevitable caught up with the American space program — but it came in a way no one expected.

Although the general public had come to regard spaceflight as fairly safe and almost routine, the people most closely associated with it — space agency officials and the men who built the rockets — knew sooner or later disaster would strike.

ON THE GROUND

Launching and re-entry, probes into deep space, space walks — these were the parts of a manned space flight considered critical. What no one expected was that disaster would strike on the ground.

Disaster has always lurked just at the heels of the space program, but until Friday it had never quite caught up with it. As far as space officials could determine, the crew of Apollo 1 were the first spacemen to die in an accident involving a space ship.

Grissom faced a near disaster once before, at the end of his Mercury flight. He had to scramble from his spacecraft minutes after he splashed into the Atlantic Ocean because the space vehicle was sinking.

The nearest disaster has come to striking in space was during Gemini 8. Astronauts Neil Armstrong and David Scott had completed five orbits and performed history's first docking with another vehicle in space when their spacecraft began spinning dangerously.

BACKED AWAY

Hurriedly they backed away from the Agena target rocket and headed for an emergency splashdown in the Pacific Ocean, far short of the three days they planned in space.

The splashdown, however, was nearly perfect.

The other time tragedy knocked at the space door it failed to gain admittance. That time it was on the launch pad, the same place disaster struck Apollo 1.

Gemini 6 astronauts Wally Schirra and Tom Stafford had sat in their spacecraft through a perfect countdown. Then, when the engines ignited, a plug fell out prematurely, and the rocket gave a mighty puff but did not leave the pad. Its engines shut off automatically.

LAUNCH PAD

Schirra and Stafford sat in their Gemini until the launch pad was finally declared safe. Later, the rocket was launched on a successful mission.

There has been speculation some Russian cosmonauts have died in the Soviet space effort, including one report that the dying beats of a heart were heard over a radio from a Russian spacecraft. These reports, however, remain unconfirmed as does most information about Russia's manned flights.

(Times News Service)

Nancy Greene says it bothers her to be singled out from the rest of the members on Canada's national ski team.

"We have some great kids on both our men's and ladies' team. It bothers me a little to be singled out like this."

Miss Greene, who has taken the European ski slopes by storm this year, added:

"There are so many others on the team who deserve the same treatment . . . The others work every bit as hard and put in as much time."

The 23-year-old Rossland girl was the central figure when the team arrived in Vancouver this week and has been in the spotlight at various functions preceding this weekend's international ski meet at Whistler Mountain, about 70 miles north of Vancouver.

Miss Greene won four of seven races on the European circuit this year and is leading in the World Cup competition for individual performance by a female skier.

She has a comfortable lead over Annie Famose, 23, and Marielle Goitschel, both of the French national team, but these girls have remained in Europe to compete in events counting for World Cup points. The International this weekend, the first phase of an event that ends at Mont Orford, Que., next weekend, does not count toward the cup.

Elsewhere and otherwise in the world of sport on this last Saturday in January . . .

IN MONTREAL — Air Canada has decided it would be nice to honor executives who toil on behalf of amateurs. Consequently, the airlines company has created an award that will be presented annually to some deserving executive.

The award, first to be presented in March, will go to the man or woman adjudged by a body of Canadian sports authorities to have contributed the most to the development of his or her sport at the executive level without remuneration.

Presumably, all "deserving executives" are located in eastern Canada. Or will be. Only one westerner — Richard Jack of Vancouver — has been named to the seven-man selection committee.

The others are Frank Shaughnessy, Marcel Desjardins and Andy O'Brien of Montreal, Roger Dion of Ottawa, Roy Duchemin of Sydney, N.S., and Allan Gilroy of Toronto.

IN BASEBALL — Veteran shortstop Roy McMillan, refusing to believe he's through with baseball after suffering a shoulder separation last September, has asked New York Mets for a chance to show his stuff . . . The National League team gave him his unconditional release last fall but relented this week . . . He'll be one of 12 players, not on the regular roster, who will be invited to spring training camp . . . Manny Mota, who hit .332 for Pittsburgh while sharing outfield duties with batting champ Matty Alou, has signed his 1967 contract with the Pirates . . . So has first baseman Norm Cash of Detroit Tigers, for a reported $43,000 . . . Jim (Catfish) Hunter, a rookie who compiled a 9-11 record for Kansas City last season, earned a "good raise" for turning in his signed contract to the Athletics.

IN GENERAL — World heavyweight boxing champion Cassius Clay says he would like to fight Zora Folley if he gets by Ernie Terrell next month . . . TUDORS TRIUMPH

Nick's Trio Not Enough

Tudor Monarchs had built up a 5-0 lead by the time Nick went to work in the second period, and the early margin enabled Tudors to hold on for a 9-5 Esquimalt Hockey League decision.

Victory kept Tudors within six points of the front-running University of Victoria Vikings, who collected their ninth win in 10 league starts by thumping Stockers North Americans, 7-3.

Bill Rudyk was the only Viking to score more than once, and his two tallies left him tied with club-mate Ted Sarkissian for second place in the league goal-scoring race, two goals behind Nicoletti, who now has 14.

Defenceman Steve Merriman was the Monarch leader with two goals and an assist. Dave Griff earned a goal and five assists with Tudors to take over fourth place in the scoring chase.

BOWLER OF WEEK

Commuter from Duncan, Ernie Moon, had hot touch in Mixed Classic League at Gibson's Recreations. Moon rapped pins for blistering 352-275-315—942 series to win men's fivepin award in 14th week of annual Bowler-of-the-Week contest. Weekly winners in 27-week Times contest will compete in Bowler-of-Year roll-offs in May.

Wildlife Picture Has Animals, Birds as Actors

Another of the Gordon Eastman wildlife films wil be presented in Victoria Feb. 14 and 15.

Scheduled for showing at Victoria High School, starting at 8 p.m., is the two-hour color film, "Adventures of the Great Outdoors." It will be the fifth successive year Eastman has presented a film in the city.

He has again combined hunting, fishing and wildlife in his latest film, which is made up of three stories—trophy mule deer hunting, Great Bear Lake fishing and "Innocent Adventure," a wildlife drama that has 20 animals and birds as its actors.

BIRDS WHIP HUSKIES

VANCOUVER (CP) — The University of British Columbia Thunderbirds defeated University of Saskatchewan Huskies 92-63 in an inter-collegiate basketball game Friday night.

Fraser Valley Squads Take Hoop Decisions

Visiting teams from the Fraser Valley flashed power in the home stretch Friday night and captured both decisions in high school boys' exhibition basketball games at Oak Bay Senior High School.

Despite a 26-point effort by Vancouver Island all-star Bill Robinson, Chemainus went down to a 66-61 defeat before Abbotsford Panthers.

In the second game, Oak Bay was clipped 44-39 by a hard-running North Surrey club.

Both Island teams reached the halftime intermission with a lead but couldn't contain their mainland rivals in the closing stages.

Tonight on the same floor, Chemainus will face North Surrey at 7 and Oak Bay will tackle Abbotsford at 8:30.

In a prelimary tussle Friday, Al Huddlestone scored 14 points to pace Oak Bay "B" to a 30-24 win over Colquitz Junior High.

ABBOTSFORD (66)—Larsen 8, Bryde 13, Bingham 8, Loewen, Wissen 16, Edgecumbe 6, Heibert, Bede 9, Dictcher 6, Roeske, Frienen.

Anglers' Meeting Slated for Feb. 4

Annual general meeting of the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association will be held on Saturday, Feb. 4, and not tonight, as previously reported.

Scheduled for the Ingraham Hotel, the meeting will start at 8 p.m. It will be preceded by a dinner at 6:30 and followed by a dance.

Annual meeting of the Chinook Club, an organization within the VSIAA, will also be held at the Ingraham. It will follow the same format, with the meeting at 8 and dinner at 7.

THUNDERETTES WIN

CALGARY (CP) — The University of British Columbia Thunderettes downed the University of Calgary Dinettes 71-54 in a Western Canada inter-collegiate women's basketball game Friday.

Clay Just Doesn't Qualify As Ring's Classic Example

NEW YORK (AP) — For the second time since it started making an annual award, Ring magazine has passed up naming a Fighter of the Year because it frowned on some of the non-boxing activities of heavyweight champion Cassius Clay.

The boxing monthly says that strictly on the basis of his ring achievements, which included five title defences during the year, Clay deserved the Fighter of the Year citation for 1966.

"The Fighter of the Year must by recognized as an example to the growing American boy," the magazine says adding that Clay did not qualify this year. It points out that Ring awarded Clay the citation in 1963.

Since 1963, Ring says, Clay has allied himself with the Black Muslims, "who avowedly are not friendly toward the United States of America," has protested his draft into the army, and "has been guilty of utterances which have not rebounded to the credit of boxing."

After disqualifying Clay, Ring names the following as the 1966 standouts: 1. light heavyweight champion Dick Tiger, Nigeria; 2. middleweight champion Emil Griffith, New York; 3. lightweight champion Carlos Ortiz, New York; 4. welterweight champion Curtis Cokes, Dallas, and 5. featherweight champion Vincente Saldivar.

One will be Jim Ryun, who has run the fastest mile and half mile, making one of his two indoor track appearances of the year.

Manchester Clubs Win As Cup Play Lures Fans

LONDON (CP) — Inside forward Denis Law sent favored Manchester United into the last 32 of the English Football Association Cup today—England's biggest soccer bonanza since the national team won the World Cup six months ago.

An estimated 1,000,000 fans poured into grounds all over England.

It was the biggest turnout for English third-round cup matches for about 12 years.

A crowd of 65,000 watched Manchester United—one of the biggest crowd pullers — beat Stoke City 2-0.

Law, the £100,000 ($300,000) star, scored for Manchester against Stoke in the 35th minute. Then centre forward David Herd got another in the second half. Herd's shot went in off the post.

Manchester City, playing only a few miles away, defeated Leicester City 2-1 in one of Manchester's biggest soccer days in years. A total more than 100,000 watched the two games.

SCORED THREE

Geoff Hurst, who scored three goals in England's 4-2 victory over West Germany in the World Cup final, turned on his goal-scoring magic to save West Ham United's face against Third Division Swindon.

Hurst netted all his team's goals in a 3-3 draw against the underdog squad.

Tottenham Hotspur travelled to their near-London neighbors, Millwall, and was met by a sell-out crowd of 40,000.

The Second Division squad held the mighty stars of First Division Tottenham — Jimmy Greaves included—to a scoreless tie.

Tottenham could have taken the match when centre forward Alan Gilzean had a great chance. Greaves was waiting for a pass. Instead Gilzean let fly on a shot of his own and the ball hit Millwall's goalkeeper.

Glasgow Celtic was a first-round winner in Scottish Football Association Cup play, defeating Arbroath 4-0. Glasgow Rangers, however, fell 1-0 to Berwick Rangers.

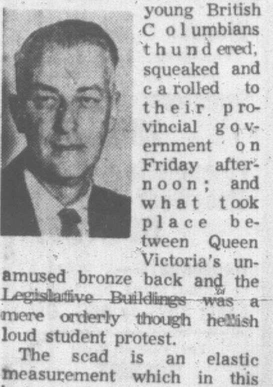
Victoria Daily Times

VICTORIA, B.C., SATURDAY, JANUARY 28, 1967—PAGE 21

Arthur Mayse

Cap'n Vancouver atop his dome might have considered the scene one of rank mutiny.



But "The Times, They Are A-Changing," as a scad of young British Columbians thundered, squeaked and carolled to their provincial government on Friday afternoon; and what took place between Queen Victoria's unamused bronze back and the Legislative Buildings was a mere orderly though hellish loud student protest.

The scad is an elastic measurement which in this instance amounted to possibly 2,200 demonstrators. These, marching under their banners and placards, formed a crocodile equal to the distance between The Bay and Eaton's.

I watched them swinging along Douglas Street, and an impressive spectacle they offered, even though a policeman in one of those ridiculous ice cream-cart ticketing vehicles led their van.

Arrived, crowded into an inverted "T" formation before the main steps, they represented such a sending of youth as those grey buildings have rarely seen.

★

There were freedom-songs both straight and in parody: "The answer is blowing in the wind" became "The answer is in Bennet's hands"—a claim which I would advise the singers not to take at face value.

The times, they are indeed a-changing, and it could be that the long honeymoon—Social Credit wedded to prosperity—may have cooled a trifle.

Anyway, it was all very loud and exciting, and will one day make a tale to bore children who have their own demands and protests to occupy them.

I watched and listened to all this from mid-crowd, behind a mufflered private-school girl who screamed like a witch from under her companion's black umbrella. We were joined by a pair of teeny-boppers, alike in brass-buttoned pea jackets except for their basic angles and curves.

Company of Young Canadians volunteer Lynn Curtis, bearded and gentle, paused to look up at the protestants from the group he works to help. These carried a two-stick banner with the legend, "Why Dropouts?" lettered in black; and for reasons beyond my understanding, later pelted Education Minister Peterson with artificial flowers.

★

Since neither of their respective parties controls the government purse-strings, we can pass over Opposition Leader Strachan's and Liberal head Perrault's hay-making speeches.

The confrontation was between students and education minister; and I feel that both he and our University of Victoria contingent handled themselves well. The Uvic people were not a mob, nor would they be turned into one. They gave an indifferent hearing to firebrand Randy Enomoto, the same mainland student who rocked tradition by running for UBC chancellor last year, and departed as they came, in good order.

Although I'm not sure what they got except some assurances yet to be implemented—those, and a sour unintended joke about Cadillac-driving undergrads—they made a staunch case for arguments worth hearing and heeding.

As the crowd began to scatter, a gaggle of UBC co-eds flew helter-skelter from the buildings with the claim that they had come upon the premier in a corridor and made their pitch direct. According to their leader, a drenched girl with elf-locks straggling every-which way, Mr. Bennett spoke to them briefly, then strode off along a corridor.

"What did he tell you?" I asked.

"Oh," said their leader, "the same old B.S."

Behind me at the time was an aged lady, bright as a squirrel, who had been patiently tagging after in hopes of winning through to the public galleries.

"My, my," she said, "they take me right back to the suffragettes!"

WEEKEND HIGHLIGHTS ON CAMPUS

Highlights of Uvic Open House tonight include a new play at Phoenix Theatre and an address by U.S. geneticist Dr. Garrett Hardin.

The theatre is near the gym in the old army buildings section of the campus. Curtain time is 8:30. Phone 477-4821 for reservations.

Dr. Hardin, from University of California, will speak on Ethical Challenges of Biology to Education in the Education and Arts Building at 8:15.

Sunday there will be film showings in the Elliott lecture wing and a concert by the University Choir at 2:30 p.m. in the Education and Arts Building.

. . . Before They Cross Over to Join US

By PETE LOUDON

"It's open house at Uvic today and Sunday," we explained over the phone, "and we'd like to do a piece for Saturday telling readers what to expect."

"Okay. Meet me at the SUB at nine," said the brisk young man at the university." So we went there and this is what life at university is like.

SUB, we found is short for Student Union Building, very modernistic stone and brick and shrubbery and skylights and glass walls and five tents pitched on the lawn.

And under the covered entrance are a dozen boys and girls in shorts and parkas, checked logging shirts and high-laced hiking boots, stretchie pants and tight blue jeans and turtle necks. They are cooking breakfast on camp stoves.

Signs in the area indicate they speak initialese. UVODC said their sign. (Much of campus communication is by sign.)

●

A large sign beside them reads "HAQQ TODAY SUB-12:30" and through the glass door you see two more signs "HAQQ IS HERE" and "HAQQ IS GONE." There were no interpreters.

Another sign about a lecture topic asks "CHRIST — WHY BOTHER?" Another advertises "SOC-HOP SATURDAY" (with the fabulous Corduroys, 50 cents stag and 75 cents drag).

There were 63 signs and bulletins in the lobby, some of them dated, like "FRIDAY WE MARCH — HELP STAMP OUT WAFFLE WORDS" and "BLUES BY FIVE" and "REFORM OR BERKLEY."

There's a pretty receptionist in a red dress who can communicate with old people in their 40s. She said she isn't a student. She just works there. She brought us a coffee while starting a search for the serious young man of the telephone.

While we rested our old bones we realized that our young man was craftily sending the university to us. Two young men started piling boxes of a student publication "Tower" in the lobby, pausing to scratch a beard or ogle a passing parade of net stockings.

●

A window-walled, skylighted auditorium off the lobby hung with art by Shadbolt and other impressionists contained rows of empty seats and a player piano where a youth with heavily-framed glasses and with a serious mein heavily framed with hair, made jazz. It was a hand-clapper piece he played. Two boys and a girl listened and watched with glazed eyes.

The boxes of Towers mounted, towered. Girls of UVODC passed back and forth bearing soiled dishes. A portly townswoman discussed student billeting with the pretty receptionist.

Doors opened and closed and the parade of sweaters and beards and team jackets and hair and stretch pants and net stockings and tight jeans and parkas went on and on.

Somewhere in the university there are art exhibitions, displays of visual aids to teaching, displays of publications, demonstrations of a talking machine, a centennial showing of history, students in national costumes preparing to do folk songs of Russia, Germany, France and Spain, charts on economics, laboratory experiments. A brochure urges visitors to attend noon to 6 p.m. today and Sunday.

We'll leave that to the realists.

●

For us, the university is the SUB where time is forever and only youth exists and old people in their 40s find memory stirred by a world they'll never join again and envy permeates them, but it's a nice, bittersweet feeling.

That's what university is like. If you're lucky and your guide forgets to appear, you might see it this way too. And you'll be grateful that for the kids who like to sleep on the lawn it can be this way for just a few years, before they cross over to join us.

CLAIM MAJORITY

All-Canadian Union Seeks Support for Gold R. Bid

By ROGER STONEBANKS

The Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada today called for public support in its bid to gain certification at the Gold River pulp mill.

"At present there is an application for certification before the Labour Relations Board, which seems very reluctant to come to a final decision," said Alan Hickman, president of Gold River Local 11.

His statement, addressed as "an open letter to the people of B.C.," was issued as the national executive of the Canadian union began a three-day meeting in Victoria.

"Our last application dated Dec. 14, 1966, was rejected due to the lack of a clear majority. At that time there were approximately 20 employees in the mill.'

An amendment based on this application and submitted Jan. 5 was also rejected "although no specific reason was given.

60 AT MILL

"However, as there are now approximately 60 men in the mill, we feel our majority of 70 per cent is sufficient to warrant a final decision.

"We feel a group of men this size has the right to a union agreement and the protection it will offer. Without this protection we are completely at the company's disposal and have no right whatsoever to voice opinions or ask for any obviously necessary changes.

"It is our opinion that further delays will increase the chances of dissatisfaction which will jeopardize further relations between a union and the Tahsis Company. Once again we ask for your support in our efforts to attain the rights we feel are legally ours."

Applications by both the Canadian union and the rival International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers were rejected by the board.

UNIQUE BID

But a unique bid by the International Woodworkers of America for the west coast Vancouver Island mill under construction is still being investigated by the Labour Relations Board.

In an interview, national union president Orville Braaten of Vancouver said "We'll certainly apply again" for bargaining rights at the Harmac mill near Nanaimo.

The Canadian union applied for bargaining rights at Harmac, Prince George and Elk Falls last summer. All three bids were turned down by the Labour Relations Board and no vote was held among the employees.

RECOGNIZE FEELINGS

"The MLAs must look at this situation," he said. "The legislature must certainly recognize the feeling that exists towards Canadian unions and must get some fairness introduced into the Labour Relations Board — that is where the problem is.

"Why shouldn't the men have the right to a free vote for the union of their choice — that is all we are asking."

Mr. Braaten said it is not for union leaders to decide, "but the men — let's have a free vote."

He also said there are "tremendous sections" of the IWA membership which don't agree with the certification bid at Gold River.

He "couldn't indicate" what mills the Canadian union may seek this summer at the next legal open period for certification applications.

ACROSS CANADA

Asked if the union plans to organize outside B.C., he replied:

"Our structure is to organize across Canada. This is our whole aim. Of course, we're going to do the work here first."

He also said the Canadian union is part of "this whole struggle" for Canadian independence "like Walter Gordon."

Canadians should be "masters in their own house." This was "not anti-American, but pro-Canadian."

The Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada was formed four years ago this month and currently represents about 2,000 workers in B.C. The international pulp-sulphite union has about 6,000 members in the province.

The current executive meeting is the first to be held in Victoria and is designed to give leaders a chance to talk to MLAs.

Songhees Pupil Gets $300 Award

A member of the Songhees band is among seven B.C. Indian students who received Indian Affairs branch scholarships on Friday.

Clarence Dick, an art student, was awarded $300 for studies at the Vancouver School of Art.

Others were Jean Galligos of Powell River, Mary Rose Harry of Pavilion, Naydeen Janet Kelly of Chilliwack, Richard Band of Squamish, Saul Terry of Bridge River and Vernon Brown of Kitkatla, near Prince Rupert.

Curtis View 'Incredibly Shallow'

The president of the students council at the University of Victoria reacted angrily today to reported comments by Saanich Reeve Hugh Curtis.

Stephen Bigsby described the comments, which appeared in another newspaper, as "incredibly shallow' for a person in such a position.

The reeve was quoted as saying Friday's demonstration was a "movie tactic . . . something not worthy of them."

The reeve was also quoted as being disappointed "at the sight of hundreds of casually-dressed young men and women" and expressed the belief they "would be farther ahead if they presented their case in the more usual and formal way."

Mr. Bigsby said the reeve's comments put him in the same category as those who ask what is the academic average of the demonstrating students.

ROOT OF PROBLEM

"Anyone who thinks students want to march as an exercise is refusing to look at the root of the problem.

"He's refusing to recognize the reason for the march — the government s lack of response in the past to formal representations made in the approved manner.

"We've made formal representations regularly for the last four years and each time we've warned responsible officials the problems are more urgent and that the attitude of the students is becoming more hostile because of the government's apparent disinterest.

"The tragedy is not that 2,000 students hit the streets but that the government in the past has failed to respond to our representations."

Q.—What is the name of the special rose developed for Canada's Centenery?—E.F.E.

A.—There are three: "Canada Centennial," an orange floribunda developed in the United States; "Miss Canada," a bi-colored hybrid tea rose, the candidate of Canadian nurserymen, and "Confederation," a pink hybrid tea developed at Milliken, Ont.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

Victorian Killed In Ontario Crash

Mother Of Four Victim

A Victoria mother of four was killed in a two-car crash on an icy Ontario road Friday while enroute to her husband's Halifax service posting.

Mrs. Marietta Helen Johnson (nee Logan) left Victoria Jan. 17 with her family, husband Petty Officer William Robert Johnson, daughters Wendy, 5, and Joanne, 7, and sons Danny, 8, and Wayne, 9.

A graduate of Esquimalt High School, Mrs. Johnson was a former employee of Hudson's Bay Co. and Woolco stores here. She was 27.

The accident happened during a storm on Highway 69, 12 miles south of Sudbury.

HIT BROADSIDE

The Johnson station wagon, travelling south, was hit broadside by the second car coming the other way.

Wendy Johnson is in critical condition at Sudbury General Hospital.

Petty Officer Johnson, who had sold his home at 997 Londonderry in Saanich, before leaving for his Maritime Command posting, suffered arm and head cuts.

The three other children were treated at the hospital.

SECOND VICTIM

A second woman, a passenger in the other car, was also killed.

Mrs. Johnson had lived here all her life. Her husband, 29, had come to Victoria from Calgary to join the navy.

A family friend said the Johnsons were to return here after two years in Halifax. They recently bought a lot near Metchosin.

Mrs. Johnson is survived by her parents and a sister in Victoria.

One-Man Show Set Wednesday

Pierre Viala, an internationally known French comedian, will give a one-man show Wednesday in the new education-arts lecture theatre at the University of Victoria.

The show starts at 12:30.

The artist is on a tour of Canada and the United States.

30 Seconds Was It!

You looked out your window about 9:30 this morning and there it was — full, golden, resplendent sunshine.

And it lasted about 30 seconds.

"That's what we meant when we told you to look out for 'slight clearing'," weatherman Allan McQuarrie said today.

"That was it."

Mr. McQuarrie said there might be one or two more breaks in the cloud today and Sunday but the total picture didn't offer "much hope."

Rain will be almost steady through Sunday night. It rained all Friday night.

FRANK CALDER
. . . urges new effort

'CYC Has Failed' Job on Reserves

The B.C. legislature's only Indian MLA Friday called for a new effort to combat poverty on the reservations because the Company of Young Canadians has failed.

All levels of government should become involved in the problems "because this is not only an Indian problem, it is a Canadian society problem," said Frank Calder (NDP—Atlin).

He said "the Company of Young Canadians has failed thus far to cope with the situation so I suggest (a study of) the advisability of a joint federal-provincial action in solving poverty on Indian reserves."

Mr. Calder said Indians should not be blamed because they didn't set up the reserves "which are nothing but slum acres."

He said federal Indian policy originally was "subjection first and planning second.

"Poverty and apartheid in relation to the reserve system in this country are black eyes in the Canadian centennial year."

★

Other MLAs applauded as he added:

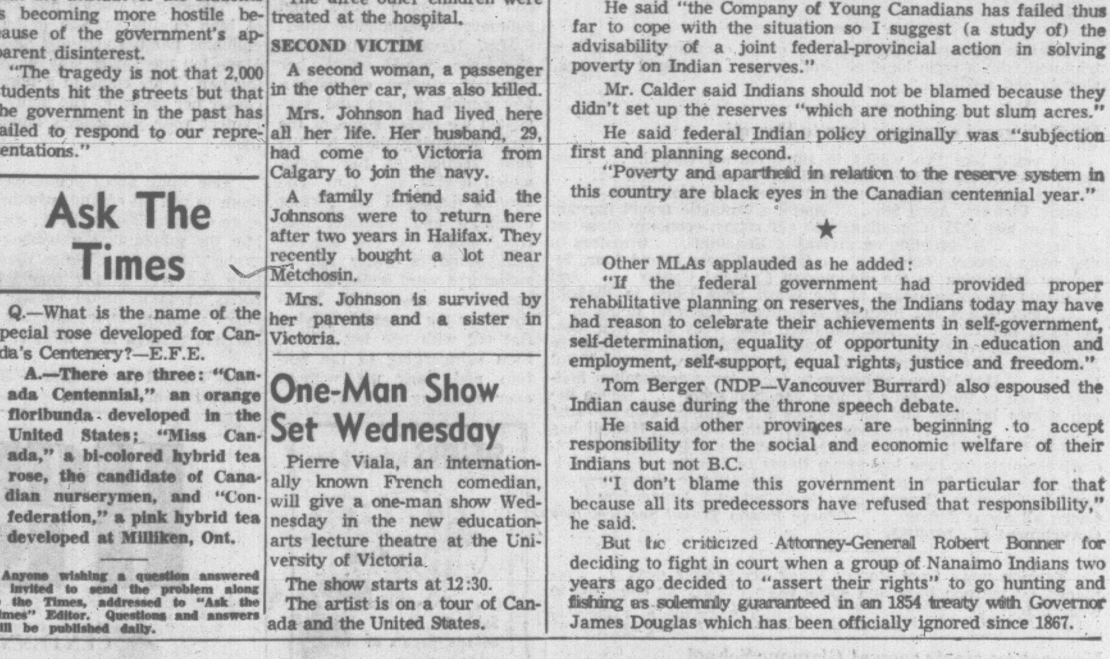
"If the federal government had provided proper rehabilitative planning on reserves, the Indians today may have had reason to celebrate their achievements in self-government, self-determination, equality of opportunity in education and employment, self-support, equal rights, justice and freedom."

Tom Berger (NDP—Vancouver Burrard) also espoused the Indian cause during the throne speech debate.

He said other provinces are beginning to accept responsibility for the social and economic welfare of their Indians but not B.C.

"I don't blame this government in particular for that because all its predecessors have refused that responsibility," he said.

But he criticized Attorney-General Robert Bonner for deciding to fight in court when a group of Nanaimo Indians two years ago decided to "assert their rights" to go hunting and fishing as solemnly guaranteed in an 1854 treaty with Governor James Douglas which has been officially ignored since 1867.



GUIDING SKILL of John Todd, 23, of 451 Newport is shown by the trophies he displays. These giant Tyee were boated by sports fishermen he guided last August at Painter's Lodge near Campbell River. The 77-pounder, centre, is the largest ever taken in local Island waters with sports tackle, he claims. John, a biology and zoology student at university, does the taxidermy for his clients.

WHISTLER MOUNTAIN, B.C. (UPI) — Werner Bleiner, Austria, scored an upset in the men's giant slalom of the Du Maurier international ski meet here today by beating world champion Georges Mauduit of France. Bleiner, flashed through the 73-gate course in a time of 2:37.27. Jakob Tischauser of Switzerland had the second-best time on the one-and-an-eighth mile course.

Victoria Team Scores Win

KITIMAT (CP) — Victoria and Penticton scored opening-round victories today at the B.C. School Curling Championship.

Jim Armstrong's Victoria foursome edged Bob Smith of Fernie 7-6 while Greg Pruden of Penticton defeated Grant MacDonald of Whitehorse 12-7.

Taxi Driver Shot to Death

SMITHERS (CP) — The body of a taxi driver, shot four times through the back, was found in a ditch 10 miles north of this northern community, police said today.

Eugene Scott Prince, 23-year-old driver for Totem Taxi Ltd. of Smithers, had been missing since Monday.

Giant Quake But No Damage

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — A large earthquake shook the unpopulated area in the Aleutian Islands early today but there was nothing there to damage.

The quake was 1,960 miles southwest of Fairbanks and registered between 6.25 and 6.75 on the Richter scale. The 1906 San Francisco quake resgistered 8.25 and the 1964 Alaska quake registered 8.2.

Food Not to Blame In Deaths

SUMMERLAND (CP) — A woman and her son who died Jan. 13 were victims of carbon monoxide poisoning and not food poisoning, the coroner said today.

Dr. H. B. Munn said police laboratory technicians in Vancouver found that home preserves were not to blame for the deaths of Dorothy Hollinger, 32, and her son Todd, 9. He said the pair apparently succumbed to fumes from a faulty furnace.

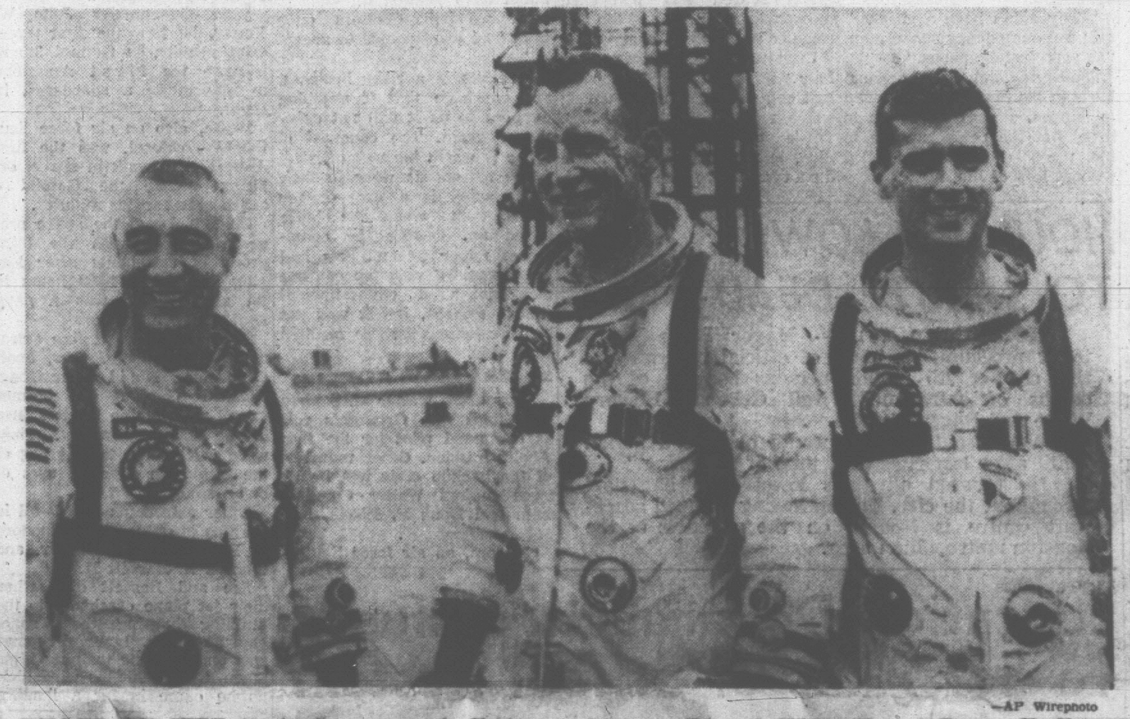
U.S. LOSES TOP ASTRONAUTS

Desperate Fire Cry Before Trio Killed



—AP Wirephoto

Mishap During Simulated Flight

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — One of the three Apollo astronauts cried, "fire in the spacecraft," a split second before all three were to die in their spaceship, the head of an investigating team said today.

The victims were Virgil I. (Gus) Grissom, 40, Edward H. White, 36, and Roger B. Chaffee, 31.

Maj.-Gen. Samuel Phillips, Apollo program director, said it was not known whose voice crackled over the radio-monitoring system as a searing flash fire snuffed out the three lives.

It was the first time in the U.S. space program that the chilling cry had been heard, for it was the first blaze ever to erupt inside a capsule.

Earlier, it had been reported that no word came from the spacecraft and the astronauts apparently died in the first quick flash of the fire.

COUNTDOWN ON HOLD

The tragedy struck as the countdown on a simulated flight was being held at T-minus 10 minutes because of difficulty in the quality of communications between the spacecraft and the checkout building, Phillips said.

Phillips, head of a preliminary investigating team which began seeking the cause of the blaze that turned the space ship into a death trap, that until a board has made its findings, he could not speculate on plans for future Apollo flights.

One and one-half miles from Pad 34, site of the tragedy, the bodies of the astronauts lay in an infirmary.

They were practising for a two-week space mission, the first of the Apollo flights which will culminate in the lunar landing, when the hot blaze snuffed out their lives in an instant.

CALLS FOR HARD LOOK

Space officials said they would push on with the program, but the tragedy which capped a long series of troubles with the Apollo spacecraft will call for a soul-searching look before other lives are risked.

Apollo, first scheduled to blast off before the end of last year, has been plagued by malfunctions.

During the final checkout and testing of Apollo I, many changes and modifications were made.

Two of the victims were space veterans, the other a rookie.

Grissom flew in Mercury and Gemini programs, helping blaze the first American trails in space. White was the first U.S. astronaut to leave his ship and become a human satellite. Chaffee was training for his first lanch.

All three were married and each has two children.

Twenty-seven launch pad crew members were overcome by smoke in brave but futile ef-

'TRAGEDY' SAY RUSS WORKERS

Times News Services

Europe and Asia joined the United States today in mourning the loss of America's three Apollo astronauts.

In Moscow, the only official reaction was a terse, four-line dispatch about the tragedy by the Tass news agency.

Russian office workers, hurrying to their jobs, however, were shocked and dismayed upon hearing the news.

"It is a tragedy," said one. Let's hope it's the last tragedy in space exploration."

Despite unconfirmed reports in the West, the Russians have always denied any fatal space accidents of their own.

Here is what prominent leaders said:

President Johnson: "Three valiant young men have given their lives in the nation's service. We mourn this great loss and our hearts go out to their families."

Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey, chairman of the national aeronautics and space council: "The United States will push ever forward in space and the memory of these men will be an inspiration to all future spacefarers. . . ."

Paul T. Hellyer, Canadian defence minister: "We are shocked and saddened by this tragic loss of the young men who have contributed so much to space exploration and the advancement of man's knowledge of his universe. The sympathy of the Canadian people goes to the families, friends and colleagues of these fine astronauts."

U Thant, secretary-general of the United Nations: "The spacemen of our times . . . unavoidably face great risks which they take in behalf of all mankind. I know that the international community which the United Nations represents mourns these three deaths and appreciates the sacrifices which these men have made."

President Giuseppe Saragat of Italy: "Grief constrains the heart. . . ."

STORM AFTERMATH

Looters Roaming Chicago Streets

CHICAGO (AP) — Looters roamed Chicago's streets today and all police leaves were cancelled as Illinois, Indiana and Michigan struggled free of snow.

The storm left at least 37 dead in Illinois—28 in Chicago—as well as 10 in Michigan, five in Wisconsin and three in Indiana.

The weather bureau said the storm — "one of the biggest snowstorms of the century" dumped 23 inches on Chicago in 29 hours and surpassed the 19.2-inch record for a single storm set March 25-26, 1930.

Civic leaders estimated the storm would cost the city $35,000,000 in lost business.

Temperatures tumbled toward zero in Chicago as police chased looters from the streets.

A 10-year-old girl was shot to death during an exchange of gunfire between police and about 50 looters.

Virtually every city and suburban school closed, as did courts, financial exchanges and most businesses. Officials said O'Hare International Airport, closed for an unprecedented 36 hours, probably wouldn't reopen until 5 p.m. today.

Trains ran as much as 16 hours behind schedule.

MARITIMES AWAITS LASH FROM WINTER

TORONTO (CP) — Quebec and the Maritimes braced today for a vicious winter storm which dumped 11 inches of snow, rain, sleet and hail on dozens of southern Ontario communities Friday.

Many Toronto motorists abandoned their cars as they stalled after slashing through the huge puddles which covered the streets.

In other areas, drifting snow was a bigger problem.

BEATTLE SHEARING IN REVERSE

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — When David Newman, 10, came home from school with his Beatle hair jaggedly cut and said his teacher did it, his parents decided to take the law into their own hands.

They grabbed a pair of scissors, rushed down to Rock Hill School, and while Mr. Newman held teacher Mrs. Doris Straley, Mrs. Newman cut her locks.

"We had to give David some satisfaction," Mrs. Newman said.

China-Soviet Tiff Fanned in Moscow

MOSCOW (AP)—The Chinese embassy called an unprecedented press conference today and released a message from Premier Chou En-lai and Foreign Minister Chen Yi accusing Soviet police of "bloody repression" against Chinese students in a Red Square scuffle Wednesday.

Later, the Soviet foreign ministry called a rival press conference and charged the Red Square incident was a planned provocation "unprecedented in Soviet-Chinese relations."

A Chinese spokesman said the skirmish, in which the Chinese claim 30 students were injured—10 of them with bloody faces—was "one more example of the criminal collusion between the Soviet revisionist ruling clique and the U.S. leaders.

The Chinese claimed 69 students on their way home from studies in Western Europe were attacked by police when they placed a wreath at the Lenin Mausoleum in Red Square.

The Soviet Union claims the Chinese students molested Russians in Red Square, disrupted procedures for visiting the mausoleum, and that enraged Russians pushed them away.

Sixty of the students, many of them with faces smeared with iodine and bearing plaster patches, left by train for Peking Thursday. Several others were said to have been too badly injured to travel.

In their press conference, the Soviet said Mao Tsyun, a first secretary of the Chinese embassy, directed the incident in Red Square.

Tass reported Boris Pyadyshev, deputy head of the press department of the foreign ministry, told correspondents the incident was "nothing but an undisguised prococation, planned in advance."

The aim, he said, was to damage Soviet-Chinese relations and the friendship between the two peoples. Another aim was to make the Chinese students returning home from Western countries join in the current internal struggle in China on the side of Mao Tse-tung, Chinese Communist party chairman.

Armed Troops Blast Soviet Embassy

PEKING (Reuters) — Armed Chinese troops took part in a demonstration against the Soviet embassy for the first time ever today.

Soldiers and airmen in uniform with rifles and fixed bayonets drove to the area of the embassy on the third day of a massive demonstration against alleged Soviet atrocities on Chinese students in Moscow.

The troops shouted slogans attacking Soviet leaders and waved their weapons in the air.

Eastern European sources said that Friday night demonstrators stopped the car of Hungarian Ambassador Jozef Halasz as he drove to the Soviet Embassy.

The sources said the demonstrators tore the Hungarian flag from his car and broke a window.

Champ Leads In Skating

TORONTO (CP) — Donald Knight, 19, of Toronto scored seven out of seven firsts in compulsory figures today to take the lead in the senior men's competition at the Canadian Figure Skating Championships.

Knight, defending Canadian men's champion, had 1,072.9 points. Jay Humphry, 17-year-old Vancouver skater training in Toronto, was second with 987.7 points.

Dr. Charles Snelling, 29, of Toronto, six-time Canadian champion, was third in the tracings with 939.8 points.

The compulsory figures are worth 60 per cent of a skater's total mark. The free-style final, worth 40 per cent, will be skated Sunday.

BOOS, CATCALLS DROWN WORDS

Minister Faces Angry Students

By DESMOND BILL

An angry but orderly rally of about 1,500 students hooted, booed, hissed and catcalled Education Minister Leslie Peterson outside the legislature Friday.

They had marched in the heavy rain through downtown Victoria to protest the refusal of the government to spend more money on higher education.

The students roared applause for Opposition Leader Robert Strachan when he said he supported equalization grants for out-of-town students and the setting up of an independent grants commission to finance universities.

They threw flowers at Mrs. E. E. Dailly (Burnaby North), the New Democratic spokeswoman on educational affairs, when she promised them her support.

And they long and loudly cheered Liberal Leader Ray Perrault when he blasted the government for ducking responsibility for education and promised to carry the students' demands into the House.

But the mood changed completely when Education Minister Peterson appeared on the steps. He had kept the students waiting 10 minutes in the rain before he came out.

They whiled away the time singing a satirical song, "In Bennett's Hands" to the tune of "Blowin' in the Wind". Each verse outlined their complaints and ended with the chorus:

"The answer, my friends, is in Bennett's hands,
"The answer is in Bennett's hands."

Mr. Peterson started by saying to the massed students, who filled all the steps in front of the legislature and spilled over on the lawns:

"It is not often I have the chance to deal with such a large group of political scientists."

His sarcastic opening made the students groan.

Then he continued:

"I do not support this type of demonstration." There were loud boos and he waited for them to stop before continuing.

"We have the right of free speech in this country. I am

Moon Further Away As Apollo Reviewed

HOUSTON (AP) — The U.S. moon program has suffered heavily, not only by the personal tragedy of losing three astronauts, but also by stalling perhaps for months the effort to land men on the moon by 1970.

However, officials say it is too early to tell whether the U.S. goal of trying a moon trip by the end of the decade is in jeopardy after Friday's disaster.

Several major factors are involved in determining how long the National Aeronautics and Space Administration now must wait before launching its first manned Apollo flight, a mission of up to two weeks.

First, an investigating board must determine exactly what caused the fire, whether it was something only peculiar to this one spaceship, or whether it was a problem that might force a re-designing of the Apollo vehicle's systems.

Then, there is the matter of equipment — whether the spaceship involved in the fire must be completely discarded and a new one used in its place.

NASA has other spaceships. The delays would result, though, from weeks of testing required before a vehicle is taken to a launch pad—tests the final ship already had completed.

BATTLE CREEK, Mich.—A young marine on leave and headed for Vietnam was snowbound at a state police outpost today just a few miles from his wife while his four-day pass slowly ran out.

Lt. James Rohrback, 23, was headed to see his wife, Vickie, 20, a nurse in training at Bronson Hospital in Kalamazoo. Huge drifts stopped his progress on Interstate 94 and he was taken to the Battle Creek state police post.

He left Camp Pendleton, Calif., Thursday night and must be in Camp LeJeune, N.C., Monday night. From there he goes to Vietnam.

OTTAWA — Parliament has degenerated to the point where it is merely a form of entertainment for Ottawa residents, historian Frank Underhill said Friday night.

"Nobody pays any attention to it any more and you can't really blame them," he said in the third of a series of eight centennial lectures at Carlton University on political leadership in Canada.

CAIRO — Egypt's 2,000 belly dancers today waited for Mustapha Darweesh to make up his mind about their navel manoeuvres.

Darweesh, Egypt's new chief censor charged with deciding if the girls can again strip down to the traditional scanty costume banned six years ago, has been spending his days watching up to six moving pictures of belly dancers doing their bumps and grinds.

But Friday night he went to a nightclub to see it in person as sort of a royal commission investigation.

MOSCOW — Drunkenness, low morals and vicious fights have become a way of life at Moscow Training Institute and have driven one girl student to suicide, according to a Soviet newspaper.

The regional Moscow newspaper Leninskoye Znamya said modeling student Tamara Zyuzzzina jumped to her death from a fifth floor dormitory window Jan. 3, because of "an assault on her virtue" by a male student.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. — The Young Republican Club of New Jersey voted itself out of existence Friday night. It had been censored by senior party members for singing anti-Semitic and anti-Negro songs at a recent state convention.

Conover Spencer, executive director of the Republican state committee, said the dissolution of the Young Republicans was a "move aimed specially and exclusively to get rid of the rat finks."

He added, "This is the first time in the nation that this has happened. Usually these movements wither away. This one had to be put out of business."

Ice Floe Break Greatest Fear

BRECHIN, Ont. (CP) — Protected from the elements and plentifully supplied with food, the greatest fear for 11 men rescued Friday from a five-mile-long ice floe adrift in Lake Simcoe was that the ice would disintegrate under them.

Police spokesmen said the men were in little danger of exposure while waiting to be rescued from their fishing huts. The men said they had food and fuel that could have lasted a week.

Pilots Clifford Lewis, 46, and Paul Foster, both of Orillia, 15 miles northwest of here, said the ice was crumbling by the time the airlift of the men was completed.

The two pilots were successful in landing their planes on the ice several hours after RCAF search and rescue helicopters were grounded at Trenton air force base.

ICING BAD

"It was the worst icing conditions I have ever flown in," said Lewis, a former RCAF pilot and 10-year veteran with Orillia Air Services Ltd., who flew his two-seater plane over the windswept lake to rescue the first of the men.

In all, the pilots made seven landings during the rescue.

Foster was forced to return to Orillia after the first flight with his three-seater for de-icing.

Charles Shier, 45, of Brechin, one of the men caught on the flow, said he had plenty of supplies with him but was concerned about the thickness of the ice. He said it was between five and eight inches thick but should have been about two feet thick for this time of year.

Rescue operations with the two aircraft lasted for almost three hours before all of the men were brought ashore about 5 p.m.

Police said they had several spotters around the lake with binoculars to keep the men in sight through the swirling snow.

Winds reached 45 miles an hour. A spokesman said that at one point, there was a danger of the floe colliding with an island and breaking up.

A truck, several motorized toboggans and all of the huts had to be abandoned on the flow.

Quit Malta British Told

LONDON (AP)—A delegation of British MPs flew to Malta for urgent talks today, hours after Britain had been ordered to quit the Mediterranean island.

The delegation from the House of Commons will investigate the effects on the island's economy of projected cuts in British forces stationed there.

Malta's premier, Dr. Borg Olivier, issued his ouster ultimatum Friday night. He contended Britain will be breaking its defence pact with the tiny island when it reduces the Malta garrison.

...'FIRE IN THE SPACECRAFT'

forts to get through to the astronauts. Two were taken to hospital.

Not until 1:55 a.m., more than seven hours after the fire broke out, were the bodies removed from the smouldering spaceship.

"They didn't have a chance," said a space agency spokesman. "It was instantaneous."

Some day, every spaceman knew in his heart, it was bound to happen. It was too much to hope that the perilous route to the moon could be travelled without loss of life.

But when it came, they thought, it would be in the far reaches of space, not this way.

The emergency escape system was closed to them, because the entire craft was locked in a protective gantry.

Fire hot enough to ignite metal seared and blackened the spaceship. Bodies of the astronauts were badly charred.

Until this sudden disaster, so far unexplained, Americans had come through many daring space rides without a mishap. Three other astronauts had died, but in plane crashes. The deaths leave the American space program with 47 astronauts.

Johnson and officials of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said the moon program would push forward with renewed dedication and purpose — as the three men would have wanted it.

"If we die," Grissom once said, "we want people to accept it."

"We are in a risky business, and we hope that if anything happens to us it will not delay the program. The conquest of space is worth the risk of life."

The astronauts were in their space suits, in a pure oxygen environment, when the blaze flared up. During the countdown, minor troubles had been reported with the communications and environmental control system, but it was not known whether the fire resulted from this.

SCHIRRA TAKES OVER

Navy Capt. Walter M. Schirra now steps into Grissom's role as command pilot for the first Apollo mission. Other members of the backup crew will be air force majors Walter Cunningham and Donn F. Eisele, both space rookies.

Grissom, an air force lieutenant-colonel, was one of the original seven pioneering astronauts and the first to ride a blazing rocket twice into the skies.

After his first flight, a sub-orbital hop in a Mercury spacecraft, Grissom wound up swimming for his life when the ship sank in the Atlantic.

With Commander John W. Young, he flew the first three-orbit mission in Gemini 3 and became the first American to manoeuvre a spacecraft in flight.

White, also an air force lieutenant-colonel, was the first American to walk in space, orbiting outside the Gemini 4 spacecraft for 21 minutes.

Chaffee joined the space program in 1963 with the third group of astronauts after logging more than 1,800 hours in jet aircraft. He was a navy lieutenant-commander.

The president and five astronauts — Gordon Cooper, Scott Carpenter, Neil Armstrong, Richard Gordon and James Lovell were at the White House in the hour of tragedy. They were celebrating the signing of the treaty on peaceful uses of outer space.

Other astronauts killed—all in the line of duty—were Theodore C. Freeman, Eliot See Jr. and Charles A. Bassett II.

See and Bassett died when their jet plane crashed into the building housing their space capsule at St. Louis. Freeman was on a routine training flight when a goose hit his windshield as he came in for a landing.

HOUSTON LOWERS FLAG TO SALUTE DEAD TRIO

HOUSTON (UPI) — Mayor Louie Welch today proclaimed a state of official mourning in this city of 1.5 million persons because of the deaths of astronauts Virgil Grissom, Edward White and Roger Chaffee.

Welch said the city would observe a period "until after last rites as a time of mourning."

He ordered all flags lowered to half-staff throughout the city. The sprawling manned spacecraft centre is located on the outskirts of the Houston metropolitan area.

Education Department Refuses To Set Aims of School System

The department of education has deliberately not laid down the aims of the public school system in the province.

This was revealed Friday night by A. J. Longmore, assistant superintendent of schools for Greater Victoria.

He made the statement under questioning by Canon Hilary Butler at the opening session of the Community Conference on Education at the Oak Bay Beach Hotel.

Mr. Longmore was sitting in on one group that was discussing the aims of education. Canon Butler, canon-lecturer at Christ Church Cathedral, asked him, "What is the stated aim of the public school system?"

Replied Mr. Longmore: "There is no stated, documented aim laid down by the department."

Canon Butler pointed out that the Chant Royal Commission had recommended that the primary aim of education should be "the development of the intellect."

True, said Mr. Longmore, but this aim has never been accepted and endorsed by the department.

"Courses set out specific aims but there are no general aims," Mr. Longmore said.

Mr. Longmore said some general aims were stated up until 1960 when they were deliberately dropped because the Chant report criticized them as being too generalized.

The group also discussed the question of whether the public schools tried to teach "values" to students and, if so, how they were inculcated.

Alan Batey, principal of the Institute of Adult Studies, said values are taught, often unconsciously, in every course of study. He said a student taking a course in auto mechanics could often absorb a sense of values, even unknowingly.

But his statement was questioned by Gordon Price, a student at Victoria Senior Secondary School, who said, "There is a credibility gap in what I hear.

"When I sit in class I see no direct teaching of values. If they are taught, I've never been aware of them until now," he said.

Mr. Price said students he knows criticize education on the grounds that teaching of the sciences is too specific and teaching of the humanities is too generalized.

"Maths are taught in unnecessary depth. But literature is taught in survey courses that don't explore anything in depth.'

The conference continues today. Delegates are representative of various community groups and were described at the opening session Friday by Ray Wunderlich, co-chairman of the conference, as the "decision-makers and opinion-molders in the community."

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Arctic air continues to retreat northward through the interior of B.C. as mild moist Pacific air spreads across southern sections of the province. Overnight low temperatures of 45 at Vancouver and Nanaimo gave the mildest night since mid December. A disturbance moving northeastward toward Vancouver Island will give rain to coastal B.C. on Sunday.

Canadian Nazi Party Adopts New Name

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Nazi party went out of existence Firday night and in its place rose the Canadian National Socialist party.

William John Beattie of Toronto remains leader of the newly-named organization. He said Friday night he decided to change the name of the party because the word Nazi is a slur.

He said in an interview his decision was influenced by Martin Wieche of London, Ont., national chairman of the National Socialists, who convinced Beattie that the word Nazi is "a propagandist slur."

Beattie also said he intends to talk with Prime Minister Pearson about the refusal of the Royal Bank of Canada to allow him to open an account in the name of the party.
